McGovern plea in court

WASHINGTON (UPI)—With the Democratic convention only six days off, a three-judge U.S. Court of Appeals panel held a rare holiday session Tuesday to consider the fate of 153 California delegates pledged to George S. McGovern and a 59-member Illinois slate headed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

For nearly four hours, opposing lawyers sought to persuade the judges to uphold or reverse last week's Credentials Committee decisions awarding more than half of McGovern's California bloc to rival candidates and giving the Illinois seats to Daley challengers.

Although the judges acknowledged the urgency of the situation, they also advised the attorneys in frequent exchanges that they saw the issues as extremely complex and, a short time after retiring to their chambers, they announced they would not rule before today.

On Monday, three floors below, U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. refused to interfere in any way with the Credentials Committee actions. He said they did not raise constitutional questions and were matters to be decided by the full convention opening Monday in Miami Beach.

Chief Judge David L. Bazelon of the Appeals Court and his two colleagues, George E. MacKinnon and Charles Fahy, questioned all the lawyers frequently about Hart's finding and appeared to share some of his doubts about federal judicial jurisdiction over the delegate selection cases.

At issue in the California case was whether the state's June 6 winner-take-all presidential primary was in violation of a party reform commission's guidelines aimed at affording proportional representation for all candidates running in the election. McGovern won the race and had the entire 271-member California delegation until last Thursday's Credentials Committee ruling.

The battle over the Illinois delegation focused on how it was chosen. The Credentials Committee sided with a group of challengers claiming that only individuals acceptable to the Daley political organization were fully informed of the selection process and that the result "discriminately maliciously against blacks, Latins, women and youth."

Stroudsburg youth feared drowned in swim mishap

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE — An 18-year-old Stroudsburg R.D. 2 youth was missing and presumed drowned in the Delaware River following a late night swimming mishap near DePue's Island in Shawnee-on-Deleware Monday.

The missing youth, identified as Gary Fisher had been swimming in the Delaware River with two friends, John Valinote, also 18, of Sciota and 17-year-old Walter Lactis of Delaware Water Gap.

According to a state police spokesman from the Stroudsburg barracks, the boys were swimming from DePue's Island to the Pennsylvania shore at approximately 10:30 p.m. Fisher either became exhausted or got into some kind of trouble.

The two other boys helped him to a boat dock near the shore, but Fisher slipped beneath the surface and could not be found.

The Shawnee Volunteer Fire Department was standing by at a fireworks display in the area and responded to the scene with one truck, three boats and 10 men after they were called. Men from the National Park Service as well as Pennsylvania State Police were also participating in the search, which was halted at 1 a.m. due to darkness and the murky condition of the river.

Volunteers from the fire department began searching again Tuesday morning with 10 men and four boats, assisted from the air by a New Jersey State Police helicopter. After combing the bottom of the river in the area where the youth disappeared, the search was again called off.

The Delaware River was still clouded with mud from the recent rains in the area and to the north and the helicopter was unable to spot anything from the air.

Shawnee Fire Chief George Fuller said men from his department will search again when the river clears up in a few days.

The area in which Fisher disappeared is the same part of the Shawnee-on-Deleware region where trapper Robert Taylor was reported missing last November. Taylor's body was discovered near Easton by a fisherman May 2.

Auto crash kills two

GREENTOWN — Two teenage boys were killed and their two female companions injured Tuesday afternoon when their auto went out of control on Legislative Route 63113 near Greentown and struck a utility pole.

The dead boys and the injured girls were not immediately identified.

A spokesman from the Pennsylvania State Police barracks in Honesdale said one of the injured girls was taken to Wayne Memorial Hospital and the other was taken to Community Medical Center East, Scranton.

Police were still attempting to identify the boys late Tuesday night and notify relatives.

Legislators try again for budget agreement

HARRISBURG (UPI)—Efforts by state legislative leaders to convene a bi-lateral conference committee hearing on the Pennsylvania budget failed Tuesday promising little hope for quick passage of the spending proposal as the Independence Day weekend came to a close.

The legislators returned to the state capital today to resume budget activity in the House and Senate as the state entered a fifth day without spending authorization.

The old fiscal year ended Friday at midnight, immobilizing state paymasters and closing fund sources for hundreds of thousands of government employees and welfare recipients.

The House failed to concur Saturday on a $3.1 billion general appropriations bill passed hours before by the Senate, and both bodies recessed for the weekend, leaving the budget issue to a conference committee.

House Majority Leader K. Leroy Irvy, D-Allegheny, said the conference committee would meet Monday. But none of the conferees came to the capitol Monday.

None of the conferees were available by telephone Monday. Helene Wohlgenuth, secretary of welfare, announced some 200,000 public assistance recipients will not receive their checks this week as scheduled.

The state treasurer's office is not authorized to write checks out of the General Fund without a budget.

State Treasurer Grace M. Sloan said she still has the power to write checks out of special funds, such as the unemployment compensation fund.

She said her department now is writing 50,000 checks a day compared to 110,000 under normal circumstances.

"There will be payless paydays for General Fund state employees and for recipients of public assistance benefits," Mrs. Sloan said.

"Obviously, since we process 40,000 welfare checks daily and approximately 25,000 employee salary checks daily, a backlog will begin amassing as of today.

"However, the Treasury Department wants to assure all who are affected that we will resume processing welfare and pay checks the moment the General Appropriations bill is signed into law and continue operations on an overtime basis until we return to a current basis."

Gov. Milton J. Shapp asked all state employees to continue working through their "payless paydays." The governor's office reported no incidents involving employees who refused to work without pay.

Among those who will not be paid this week are 15,000 persons in the Property and Supplies Department; 2,000 in Revenue; 25,000 at state hospitals; 10,000 at state colleges; 600 in the auditor general's office and 400 in the treasurer's office.

Employees of agencies like the Fish and Game Commission and the Liquor Control Board will receive paychecks. They are paid out of special funds.

Mrs. Wohlgenuth said her department will be unable to pay welfare recipients in Allegheny, Bedford, Butler, Centre, Fayette, Greene, Philadelphia, Lackawanna, Erie, Delaware, York, Lycoming, Tioga, Warren and Cambria counties.

"It is the ultimate in irresponsibility for the legislature to have adjourned to celebrate the Fourth of July holiday while turning its back on the citizens and especially the poor of Pennsylvania," Mrs. Wohlgenuth said.

"It is tragic that the legislature through sheer inaction has not only been unable to provide relief for the victims of the worst flood in the history of the state, but has further inflamed the crisis by disrupting the lives of the most vulnerable citizens of the commonwealth—the aged, the disabled and families with dependent children."

She said county assistance offices would remain open to provide services to clients. The offices have been authorized to give emergency assistance money to flood victims.

Food stamps, paid wholly by the federal government, will be issued, she said.

Mrs. Wohlgenuth said she expected suppliers of state hospitals to continue delivering goods with the promise they will be paid.

Mrs. Wohlgenuth also asked landlords to extend credit to welfare recipients.

"In the present emergency I am asking merchants and landlords to realize that they have a steady source of income from recipients and to cooperate in our efforts to continue to provide services by extending credit until the General Assembly votes funds for assistance checks," she said.

Kowalyshyn, Hobbs swap blame tie-up

By ANDREA B. STERN

STROUDSBURG — While state legislators enjoyed an extended July 4 weekend at their homes, some $150 million worth of proposed flood relief funds were curtailed because the state lost its spending power Friday as the 1971-72 fiscal year expired.

But Rep. Russell Kowalyshyn (D-138) Tuesday blamed the Senate for failure to appropriate the flood assistance, claiming it is holding out until a budget is adopted first.

"I object to that. I think the flood relief should be independent of the budget. It is needed immediately," he stressed.

"The House passed a $152 million flood relief bill which the Senate could have adopted, but they want to hold back the flood relief until the budget is approved."

But Sen. Frederick Hobbs (R-29) in turn tossed the blame back to the Democrats, calling it "a political maneuvering by the Democratic leadership."

"The Democratic leadership is afraid that, if they passed the flood relief prior to the general appropriations bill, they would never have a general appropriations bill because the troops would take off for the summer without approving it," he maintained.

However, Hobbs conceded the Democrats are doing only what the Republicans would do were the situation reversed.

With the House having thrown the $3.1 billion general appropriations bill into a conference committee before adjourning for their vacation, Kowalyshyn said the move has been misunderstood.

"Many people think we just wanted to go home for July 4 but, when the conference committee meets, they have to have time to do their work," he stated.

'Land of open door'

Nixon 'invites' foreigners

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon Tuesday offered to open the nation's borders and urged Americans to open their own homes to a flood of foreign visitors in 1976 when the United States celebrates its 200th birthday.

"Let America be known throughout the world as the 'land of the open door,'" the President said in an Independence Day radio address to the nation.

In his speech from his Western White House office Nixon concentrated on plans for the nation's bicentennial celebration, especially efforts to attract 28 million foreign tourists in 1976, double the flow of visitors last year.

The President said the celebration, which has been the object of periodic controversy, will be divided into three themes: "Heritage '76" which will concentrate on history; "Horizons '76" which will stress goals for the third century, and "Festival USA," the campaign to increase tourism.

The radio address was the only thing on the President's Fourth of July schedule. He was spending a quiet day at his bluff-top villa overlooking the Pacific.

The President, clad in a red sports jacket, sat at his desk to read the speech. In brief banter with technicians before he went on the air, Nixon likened the address to former President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "Fire-side Chats."

Nixon said the cause of world peace requires greater people-to-people contacts "aimed at reducing the fear and ignorance which have divided mankind.

"In the near future, I will be sending formal and official invitations to the governments of nations around the globe, extending a welcome to the people of those nations to visit the United States, as laws and circumstances permit."

SAIGON — Saigon troops penetrated Quang Tri City, meeting only light resistance. Allied sources said several hundred airborne troops staged a lightning assault against enemy defenders, recaptured a dozen artillery pieces lost to the enemy two months ago, and set up camp a half mile from the city's center. Allied officers expressed puzzlement at the relatively light opposition, but one warned that if the North Vietnamese "put all their people in Quang Tri and stand and fight, it's going to be rough." Enemy forces maintained pressure on Hue, shelling the old imperial capital for the third consecutive day.

Korean reaction cautious to stunning unity action

SEOUL (UPI)—Stunned South Koreans reacted with caution Wednesday to the announcement that North and South Korea had agreed in secret negotiations to reopen communication in a search for peaceful reunification of the bitterly divided nation.

The action, which represented the most significant initiative between the Koreans since the end of the Korean War nearly 20 years ago, took even high ranking diplomats by surprise.

In Japan, the Philippines, Thailand, Australia and Indonesia the move was welcomed as a step toward a lasting peace in Asia. But the Nationalist Chinese government warned it had learned from its own experience that Communists are "never sincere" in negotiations.

Some South Koreans expressed hope; many others were cautious about the chances of a detente between the countries split since Soviet troops moved into the north in 1945 at the end of World War II and embittered by a war which ended in 1951 with an armistice but no peace treaty.

In the announcement, made simultaneously Tuesday in Seoul and the North Korean capital of Pyongyang, the two countries pledged that neither would attack the other and that they would continue their dialogue through a North-South coordinating committee to prevent the outbreak of any unexpected military clashes.

It was disclosed that a hotline already had been installed between the two capitals—one phone in the office of the director of the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), Lee Hu-Rak, and the other in the office of the director of North Korea's Organization and Guidance Department, Kim Young-Joo.

Lee and Kim, a younger brother of North Korean Premier Kim Il-Sung, began the arrangements for the secret negotiations which opened with Lee's visit to Pyongyang May 2, the communique said. North Korean Second Vice Premier Park Sung-Chul traveled to Seoul in late May for further talks.

Lee told a news conference he had contacted Kim Young-Joo and asked to meet him in March because of serious clashes late last year had increased tensions to the point where it was feared war might break out again.

The North Korean Central News Agency said in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo that the principles agreed on were originated by Kim Il-Sung and called the agreement a "brilliant victory" for the north.

The agreement, Lee said, was a move from "a confrontation without dialogue into a confrontation with dialogue." Warning against haste, he said, "This is a hard dialogue, maybe harder than war."

North Korea has remained more tightly closed to the Western world than any of the other Communist nations.

Blacks ponder anti-Nixon stand; angered at policies

DETROIT (UPI)—Blacks are so upset about the "anti-Negro" policies of President Nixon that the NAACP national convention may break a historic nonpartisan tradition and call for Nixon's defeat in November, the NAACP's highest officer said Tuesday.

Bishop Stephen G. Spottswood, chairman of the Board of Directors of the NAACP, told a news conference that while the leadership opposes such a departure in policy, the convention's 2,300 delegates may force it.

"Nixon's record is so blatant in being anti-Negro," Spottswood said. "That I would not be surprised at all at such a resolution coming out of this convention."

But Spottswood, bishop of the AME Methodist Church, doubted that the anti-Nixon resolution could help Democrats defeat Nixon. "It isn't likely," Spottswood said.

The 75-year-old black minister also told newsmen that a resolution calling for a NAACP policy of limiting its presidential office to a black man would be "overwhelmingly defeated by the delegates," if it came to the convention floor.

While the NAACP is considering a resolution calling for the defeat of the Republican President, it has no plans to consider a resolution endorsing a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, he said.

Spottswood said his personal choice is Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey because of Humphrey's long record in championing civil rights causes.

He described Humphrey as one of the few white Americans who does not reflect "innate racism." He said he was not sure about South Dakota Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic frontrunner.

"When you lift out the small amount of people without racism," Spottswood said, "I would put Hubert Humphrey in that crowd. I do not know enough specifically about Senator McGovern to put him in either crowd."

Truman undergoes testing

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Former President Harry S. Truman, ailing but strong enough to go on a short handshaking tour of a hospital corridor and eat a roast beef and potato dinner Monday, spent independence Day undergoing more medical tests.

Doctors said Tuesday his condition continued satisfactory.

Because he was confined to Research Hospital, Truman failed to make his traditional appearance at the July Fourth parade which passed in front of his Independence, Mo., home. In recent years Truman has watched the parade from his front porch, waving and saluting.

A hospital statement issued at 11 a.m. Tuesday said the 33rd chief executive was rested after a good night. He has a gastrointestinal ailment.

"The President was settled at 11 p.m. and slept until 7 a.m., awakening only several times throughout the night as he usually does," said spokesman John P. Dreyer.

This was in contrast to his first night in the hospital when he slept only two hours.

Truman's appetite was described as good. Dreyer said for lunch Monday Truman had roast beef, potatoes and gravy, pudding and iced tea. His evening meal consisted of soup, iced tea and custard.

Talks end in stalemate

France, Germany divided

BONN (UPI)—Leaders of West Germany and France wound up a two-day conference Tuesday, apparently still divided on many issues affecting Europe's future.

Spokesmen for both sides spent more time at the concluding news conference turning aside probing questions than explaining details of what took place.

Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany failed to win firm backing of French President Georges Pompidou for a Summit conference of the 10 nations of the enlarged European Common Market in Paris in October.

This was a major West German objective in the talks, because Brandt faces probable elections in November and may be out of office if the summit is postponed beyond then.

The spokesmen said both Pompidou and Brandt agreed that a Summit conference was "desirable." But they made its timing dependent on whether a conference of Common Market foreign ministers scheduled for July 19 could come up with a suitable agenda.

State Secretary Jean-Philippe Lecat, spokesman for the French team, said the Summit agenda would have to be "restricted to a few essential problems capable of giving promise of results."

Japan to elect new leader

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic party (LDP) will meet Wednesday to elect a new prime minister in a party convention climaxing the nation's most hectic political campaign in nearly a decade.

Kakuei Tanaka, the 54-year-old minister of international trade and industry, was the favorite as the convention opened but he faced a strong challenge by Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda, 67, the personal choice of outgoing Prime Minister Eisaku Sato.

Crime unit probe on drugs to open

MIAMI (UPI)—The Select Committee on Crime of the U.S. House opens the second in a series of hearings today into the problem of drugs in the schools and the "abject failure" of government to do anything about it.

"Most regrettably, the policy of most school boards seems to be one of turning away from the problem by refusing to acknowledge the extent to which it exists at the local school level," said Chairman Claude Pepper, D-Fla., in a statement read to newsmen Tuesday.

"During the course of our hearings the committee expects to hear evidence establishing that teachers are unable, or unwilling, to cope with students high on drugs," Pepper said.

The hearings will be held today through Friday at three local schools. Pepper said witnesses will include administrators, teachers, students and law enforcement officers.

Pepper said he was "very disappointed" that Dade County School Superintendent Edward Whigham and two of his top administrative assistants would not be in town for the hearings.

The committee's first hearings were held in New York and led to strong criticism of school administrators there. "Our hearings are designed to determine the extent to which drugs are being bought, sold and abused by children in our schools," Pepper said.

"More importantly, however, the committee will inquire into the abject failure of our governmental institutions — especially our schools — to aggressively attack the problems and control the increase in narcotics abuse by school-age children," said Pepper.

Criticizes drug tests

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Less Aspin, D-Wis., criticized Tuesday the military's drug testing laboratories, charging that "hundreds of GI drug users are slipping through."

Aspin, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said the military's labs were "doing a worse job than even the much criticized commercial laboratories that are testing for the Army."

He released government statistics showing that the nine service laboratories had achieved only a 62 per cent accuracy rate in weeding out GI drug users.

Ulster's Protestants vow to fight

BELFAST (UPI)—Leaders of Northern Ireland's para-military Ulster Defense Association (UDA) said Tuesday their forces would shoot back if British troops fired on them in any new confrontation between the two sides.

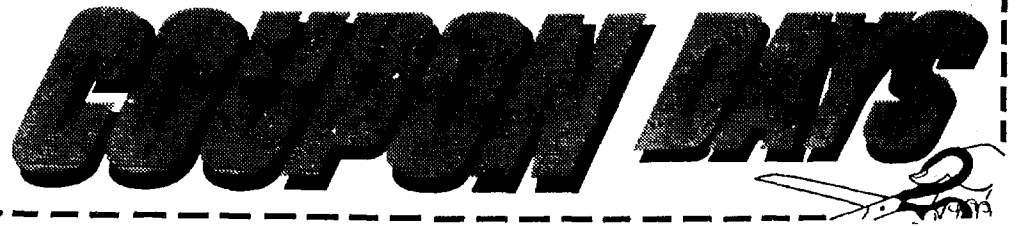

The statement followed a narrowly averted showdown Monday night between 8,000 UDA men and 1,500 British troops who moved in to prevent the Protestants from creating another barricaded "no go" stronghold in Belfast.

Protestants sealed off three areas in Belfast last weekend to protest the refusal of British authorities to force destruction of barricades barring entry to security forces into the Londonderry Roman Catholic districts of Bogside and Creggan.

The Catholic barricades went up a year ago and are manned by militants of the provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

The hooded UDA men, armed with iron bars and clubs, faced the troops for five hours Monday on the Protestant side of Springfield Road. Both sides backed off when UDA leaders agreed not to erect permanent barricades around the district.

Korean reaction cautious to stunning unity action

SEOUL (UPI) — Stunned South Koreans reacted with caution Wednesday to the announcement that North and South Korea had agreed in secret negotiations to reopen communication in a search for peaceful reunification of the bitterly divided nation.

The action, which represented the most significant initiative between the Koreans since the end of the Korean War nearly 20 years ago, took even high ranking diplomats by surprise.

In Japan, the Philippines, Thailand, Australia and Indonesia the move was welcomed as a step toward a lasting peace in Asia. But the Nationalist Chinese government warned it had learned from its own experience that Communists are "never sincere" in negotiations.

Some South Koreans expressed hope; many others were cautious about the chances of a detente between the countries split since Soviet troops moved into the north in 1945 at the end of World War II and embittered by a war which ended in 1951 with an armistice but no peace treaty.

In the announcement, made simultaneously Tuesday in Seoul and the North Korean capital of Pyongyang, the two countries pledged that neither would attack the other and that they would continue their dialogue through a North-South coordinating committee to prevent the outbreak of any unexpected military clashes.

Blacks ponder anti-Nixon stand; angered at policies

DETROIT (UPI)—Blacks are so upset about the "anti-Negro" policies of President Nixon that the NAACP national convention may break a historic nonpartisan tradition and call for Nixon's defeat in November, the NAACP's highest officer said Tuesday.

Bishop Stephen G. Spottswood, chairman of the Board of Directors of the NAACP, told a news conference that while the leadership opposes such a departure in policy, the convention's 2,300 delegates may force it.

"Nixon's record is so blatant in being anti-Negro," Spottswood said, "That I would not be surprised at all at such a resolution emitting from this convention."

But Spottswood, bishop of the AME Methodist Church, doubted that the anti-Nixon resolution could help Democrats defeat Nixon. "It isn't likely," Spottswood said.

The 75-year-old black minister also told newsmen that a resolution calling for a NAACP policy of limiting its presidential office to a black man would be "overwhelmingly defeated by the delegates," if it came to the convention floor.

While the NAACP is considering a resolution calling for the defeat of the Republican President, it has no plans to consider a resolution endorsing a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, he said.

Sight conservation effort termed success by head

BY RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter

LA ANNA — Arthur Frey, sight conservation chairman of the Tobyhanna-Newfoundland Lions Club is a soft-spoken man who refuses to take credit for his contribution to the humanitarian program.

The convivial La Anna funeral director has been sight conservation chairman since 1959. He has personally been involved in 20 sight restoration cases.

"I first became interested in the blind when I was in Professional School in New York City," he explains, "I liked to sing and went with a group to entertain the blind at the Lighthouse for the Blind."

"I became so interested I used my free time as a volunteer at the Lighthouse for the duration of my stay at school."

Frey uses the firm's hearses to transport the donor's body to Monroe County General Hospital, where the eyes are removed. They are packed in a special container and taken to hospitals where recipients are prepared and waiting.

"Usually there is someone waiting at the hospital to take the eyes to wherever they are needed," he explains.

"The State Police have been very helpful in the transporting of the eyes."

"All arrangements are made by the Northeast Pennsylvania Eye Bank in Easton."

"The Eye Bank was founded in 1957," he continued. "Since the bank has been in operation, 1,444 eyes have been received."

"Our Lions Club belongs to District 14-K and we have 10,032 pledges out of a total of 34,825 pledges from all other clubs in District 14," he proudly states.

"In 1971," he said, "District 14-K delivered 48 eyes. So far in 1972 we have delivered 22 eyes."

"I would say that most of these eyes were delivered to the Wills Eye Hospital in Philadelphia."

First case
"The first case that I was personally involved in was that of an 80-year-old woman in a local nursing home," he said. "She was so happy she could give the gift of sight to someone else that every time I visited the home she was constantly reminding me that she was a donor."

"When she died I made the arrangements and found out later that the transplants were successful," he added.

"Five hundred Americans go blind every week. There are over 400,000 totally blind people in the United States and 16,000 can be helped with a corneal transplant."

"There is usually a long waiting list for these transplants," he continued. "On the priority list are men with young families, children and elderly people living alone."

"High on the list are the elderly people, because it is important to help make them feel self-sufficient."

"One of the major problems is that the next-of-kin fails to remember that their loved ones pledged their eyes. It is therefore important that the donor advises all members of their family, their clergyman and family physician of their pledge."

Frey went on to explain, "The primary purpose of any Eye Bank is to furnish eyes for corneal transplants. But this is not the only restoration of sight given. The implanting of the vitreous (liquid substance) from a good eye to that of a patient whose sight is impaired and who may be helped by the injection of this good live fluid has been done and proven effective."

ive, especially when loss of vision is caused by a detached retina."

"Even diseased or impaired eyes can be used for research."

Lack of donors

"Because of the lack of donors only about 1,000 transplants are being done each year. All the eyes we can get are badly needed," he said. "Out of 1,000 pledges only two or three sets of eyes each year are produced."

"Many next-of-kin believe appearances will be distorted in the embalming and are discouraged from carrying out the pledge."

As a funeral director Frey states that this is not true. With the use of their skill the features remain unchanged.

"All faiths and creeds have endorsed the program," he said. "The pledging of your eyes is as easy as writing your name."

"We Lions do more than help with the eye restoration program," he said. "We sponsor the Beacon-Lodge Camp for the Blind."

"Located in Lewistown, this will be the 23rd year the camp has been in operation. Ninety per cent of the campers depend on sponsorships. Each Lions Club sponsors one or more weeks at the cost of $65 per week."

The camp provides a program of recreation and rehabilitation for the visually handicapped. Activities such as swimming, boating, bowling, picnics, hikes, roller skating, checkers, chess, bingo, cards, dancing and crafts are provided by well trained volunteers.

Other programs sponsored by the Lions are mobile units, guide and lead dogs, eye glasses and other programs relating to the visually handicapped.

Frey said, "We recently distributed 3,000 pamphlets to the Tobyhanna Army Depot employees and if we receive 20 per cent in pledges we will consider the drive a success."

Pending before legislature in Pennsylvania is a bill to allow properly trained funeral directors to remove the eyes from the deceased, he explained. "This would alleviate the transporting of the donor's body to nearby hospitals. This would save time in getting the eyes to the recipients."

Church to present show

Mount Pocono Bureau
SOUTH STERLING — The South Sterling United Methodist Church, South Sterling, will hold its fifth annual variety show at 8 p.m. today at the church.

Committee members for the show are Bart Barnes, Elaine Muller, Beverly Gilpin, Edythe Gilpin, Carlene Stoddard and Leah Scott.

The show titled "Once Upon a Nursery Rhyme" offers a new twist to nursery rhymes. It will afford much entertainment for people of all ages.

Milo Stoddard, formerly with The Abington Players, will be the star of the show.

John Muller, formerly with the Newfoundland Theater Group, will also participate.

Old faces will be seen as well as new ones.

An offering will be taken and refreshments will be served.

The event is open to the public.

Bangor Water Company seeks rate hike approval

HARRISBURG — The Bangor Water Co. has filed an application for increased rates with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission in Harrisburg.

The proposed new rates, subject to approval by both the PUC and the Federal Price Commission, would increase the average residential water bill 19 per cent, or about three and a half cents per day.

Residential customers now pay an average of $5.39 a month for water service. Under the proposed new rate, the average monthly water bill will be $6.46.

Frederick W. Baker, company manager, said the PUC and the price commission have been requested to approve increases for all service classifications except public fire protection, which covers all fire hydrant networks in the company's service area.

Baker said the rate hikes are being sought to offset a 39 per cent rise in operating expenses since the company's last rate increase on Nov. 1, 1969.

He said operating revenue has grown only 11 per cent during that same period.

The official commented, "Several of the reasons our company hasn't maintained the financial levels hoped for after the last rate increase have been increases in the costs of electricity and maintenance, particularly for distribution mains."

The proposed increase in rates would boost revenue by approximately $58,000.

According to Baker, last year, the company delivered a record 467 million gallons of water to its customers in the Boroughs of Bangor and Roseto, and Upper Mount Bethel, Plainfield and Washington Townships.

The PUC is still considering an appeal by a group of West Bangor residents who are protesting the amount of the 1969 rate increase.

If the PUC approves the company's request for the new rate hike, the increase would be effective Sept. 1.

Tennis stars to perform on new Hideout courts

HAMLIN — Pancho Gonzales, at age 44 and still one of the United States' premier tennis players, and Peter Curtis, a member of seven British Davis Cup teams, will play July 22 and July 23 at The Hideout, a recreation community located in Hamlin, Pike County.

Gonzales, Curtis and two other international professionals, yet to be selected, will give instructional clinics and will play exhibition matches each day.

Participation in the clinics will be limited to The Hideout's property owners and their families. However the public is invited to observe the clinics as well as the exhibition matches.

The clinics will take place from 10 a.m. to noon both days. The exhibitions, singles on Saturday and doubles on Sunday, will start at 2 p.m.

The two outdoor courts are the newest of the recreational facilities at the community located on Rte. 590 approximately 25 miles from Interstate Route 81.

Gonzales, Curtis and the other players will be giving the courts their first official test.

Gonzales, twice United States Lawn Tennis Assn. National Champion, will be coming to The Hideout after a European Tour that includes the All-England Championships at Wimbledon.

Curtis, 26, also will be coming from competition at Wimbledon where he first played seven years ago.

He was a member of the British Davis Cup team from 1965-71 and was ranked number two in Britain before leaving the world professional circuit earlier this year to begin a career as a tennis consultant and promoter.

Five persons to receive memorial camperships

STROUDSBURG — Five memorial camperships will be presented and a new library dedicated at ceremonies to be held Sunday, July 9, at the Golden Slipper Camp.

S. Ty Steinberg, president of the camp, said that the camperships have been established to provide a week's annual campership for a child for the life of the camp. A "Gold Key" plaque will be presented to the donors of each campership.

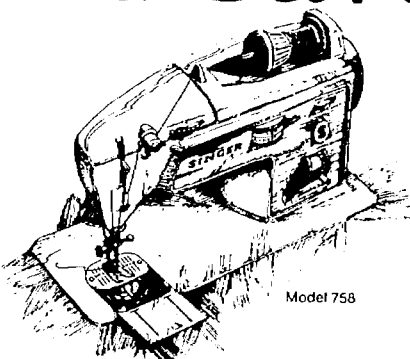

The five camperships have been established by Jerome P. Heilweil, Lawrence G. Horowitz, Nathaniel Pincus, Stanford L. Stevens, and the Golden Slipper Camp.

The Rose McKenna Library will be dedicated in memory of Mrs. William E. McKenna, first president of "The Friends of the Golden Slipper Camp." Her husband, a former club and camp president, will officiate at the dedication.

summer through the efforts of the 800-member philanthropic men's organization.

LA ANNA — Arthur Frey, sight conservation chairman of the Tobyhanna-Newfoundland Lions Club is a soft-spoken man who refuses to take credit for his contribution to the humanitarian program.

The convivial La Anna funeral director has been sight conservation chairman since 1959. He has personally been involved in 20 sight restoration cases.

"I first became interested in the blind when I was in Professional School in New York City," he explains, "I liked to sing and went with a group to entertain the blind at the Lighthouse for the Blind."

"I became so interested I used my free time as a volunteer at the Lighthouse for the duration of my stay at school."

Frey uses the firm's hearse to transport the donor's body to Monroe County General Hospital, where the eyes are removed. They are packed in a special container and taken to hospitals where recipients are prepared and waiting.

"Usually there is someone waiting at the hospital to take the eyes to wherever they are needed," he explains.

"The State Police have been very helpful in the transporting of the eyes."

"All arrangements are made by the Northeast Pennsylvania Eye Bank in Easton."

"The Eye Bank was founded in 1957," he continued. "Since the bank has been in operation, 1,444 eyes have been received."

"Our Lions Club belongs to District 14-K and we have 10,032 pledges out of a total of 34,825 pledges from all other clubs in District 14," he proudly states.

"In 1971," he said, "District 14-K delivered 48 eyes. So far in 1972 we have delivered 22 eyes."

"I would say that most of these eyes were delivered to the Wills Eye Hospital in Philadelphia."

First case

"The first case that I was personally involved in was that of an 80-year-old woman in a local nursing home," he said. "She was so happy she could give the gift of sight to someone else that every time I visited the home she was constantly reminding me that she was a donor."

"When she died I made the arrangements and found out later that the transplants were successful," he added.

"Five hundred Americans go blind every week. There are over 400,000 totally blind people in the United States and 16,000 can be helped with a corneal transplant."

"There is usually a long waiting list for these transplants," he continued. "On the priority list are men with young families, children and elderly people living alone."

"High on the list are the elderly people, because it is important to help make them feel self-sufficient."

"One of the major problems is that the next-of-kin fails to remember that their loved ones pledged their eyes. It is therefore important that the donor advises all members of their family, their clergyman and family physician of their pledge."

Frey went on to explain, "The primary purpose of any Eye Bank is to furnish eyes for corneal transplants. But this is not the only restoration of sight given. The implanting of the vitreous (liquid substance) from a good eye to that of a patient whose sight is impaired and who may be helped by the injection of this good live fluid has been done and proven effective."

ive, especially when loss of vision is caused by a detached retina."

"Even diseased or impaired eyes can be used for research."

Lack of donors

"Because of the lack of donors only about 1,000 transplants are being done each year. All the eyes we can get are badly needed," he said. "Out of 1,000 pledges only two or three sets of eyes each year are produced."

"Many next-of-kin believe appearances will be distorted in the embalming and are discouraged from carrying out the pledge."

As a funeral director Frey states that this is not true. With the use of their skill the features remain unchanged.

"All faiths and creeds have endorsed the program," he said. "The pledging of your eyes is as easy as writing your name."

"We Lions do more than help with the eye restoration program," he said. "We sponsor the Beacon-Lodge Camp for the Blind."

"Located in Lewistown, this will be the 23rd year the camp has been in operation. Ninety per cent of the campers depend on sponsorships. Each Lions Club sponsors one or more weeks at the cost of $65 per week."

The camp provides a program of recreation and rehabilitation for the visually handicapped. Activities such as swimming, boating, bowling, picnics, hikes, roller skating, checkers, chess, bingo, cards, dancing and crafts are provided by well trained volunteers.

Other programs sponsored by the Lions are mobile units, guide and lead dogs, eye glasses and other programs relating to the visually handicapped.

Frey said, "We recently distributed 3,000 pamphlets to the Tobyhanna Army Depot employees and if we receive 20 per cent in pledges we will consider the drive a success."

Pending before legislature in Pennsylvania is a bill to allow properly trained funeral directors to remove the eyes from the deceased, he explained. "This would alleviate the transporting of the donor's body to nearby hospitals. This would save time in getting the eyes to the recipients."

Church to present show

Mount Pocono Bureau

SOUTH STERLING — The South Sterling United Methodist Church, South Sterling, will hold its fifth annual variety show at 8 p.m. today at the church.

Committee members for the show are Bart Barnes, Elaine Muller, Beverly Gilpin, Edythe Gilpin, Carlene Stoddard and Leah Scott.

The show titled "Once Upon a Nursery Rhyme" offers a new twist to nursery rhymes. It will afford much entertainment for people of all ages.

Milo Stoddard, formerly with The Abbington Players, will be the star of the show.

John Muller, formerly with the Newfoundland Theater Group, will also participate.

Old faces will be seen as well as new ones.

An offering will be taken and refreshments will be served.

The event is open to the public.

Bangor Water Company seeks rate hike approval

HARRISBURG — The Bangor Water Co. has filed an application for increased rates with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission in Harrisburg.

The proposed new rates, subject to approval by both the PUC and the Federal Price Commission, would increase the the average residential water bill 19 per cent, or about three and a half cents per day.

Residential customers now pay an average of $5.39 a month for water service. Under the proposed new rate, the average monthly water bill will be $6.46.

Frederick W. Baker, company manager, said the PUC and the price commission have been requested to approve increases for all service classifications except public fire protection, which covers all fire hydrant networks in the company's service area.

Baker said the rate hikes are being sought to offset a 39 per cent rise in operating expenses since the company's last rate increase on Nov. 1, 1969.

He said operating revenue has grown only 11 per cent during that same period.

The official commented, "Several of the reasons our company hasn't maintained the financial levels hoped for after the last rate increase have been increases in the costs of electricity and maintenance, particularly for distribution mains."

The proposed increase in rates would boost revenue by approximately $58,000.

According to Baker, last year, the company delivered a record 467 million gallons of water to its customers in the Boroughs of Bangor and Roseto, and Upper Mount Bethel, Plainfield and Washington Townships.

The PUC is still considering an appeal by a group of West Bangor residents who are protesting the amount of the 1969 rate increase.

If the PUC approves the company's request for the new rate hike, the increase would be effective Sept. 1.

Tennis stars to perform on new Hideout courts

HAMLIN — Pancho Gonzales, at age 44 and still one of the United States' premier tennis players, and Peter Curtis, a member of seven British Davis Cup teams, will play July 22 and July 23 at The Hideout, a recreation community located in Hamlin, Pike County.

Gonzales, Curtis and two other international professionals, yet to be selected, will give instructional clinics and will play exhibition matches each day.

Participation in the clinics will be limited to The Hideout's property owners and their families. However the public is invited to observe the clinics as well as the exhibition matches.

The clinics will take place from 10 a.m. to noon both days. The exhibitions, singles on Saturday and doubles on Sunday, will start at 2 p.m.

The two outdoor courts are the newest of the recreational facilities at the community located on Rte. 590 approximately 25 miles from Interstate Route 81.

Gonzales, Curtis and the other players will be giving the courts their first official test.

Gonzales, twice United States Lawn Tennis Assn. National Champion, will be coming to The Hideout after a European Tour that includes the All-England Championships at Wimbledon.

Curtis, 26, also will be coming from competition at Wimbledon where he first played seven years ago.

He was a member of the British Davis Cup team from 1965-71 and was ranked number two in Britain before leaving the world professional circuit earlier this year to begin a career as a tennis consultant and promoter.

Five persons to receive memorial camperships

STROUDSBURG — Five memorial camperships will be presented and a new library dedicated at ceremonies to be held Sunday, July 9, at the Golden Slipper Camp.

S. Ty Steinberg, president of the camp, said that the camperships have been established to provide a week's annual campership for a child for the life of the camp. A "Gold Key" plaque will be presented to the donors of each campership.

The five camperships have been established by Jerome P. Heilweil, Lawrence G. Horowitz, Nathaniel Pincus, Stanford L. Stevens, and the Golden Slipper Camp.

The Rose McKenna Library will be dedicated in memory of Mrs. William E. McKenna, first president of "the Friends of the Golden Slipper Camp." Her husband, a former club and camp president, will officiate at the dedication.

More than 700 youngsters are provided with a summer vacation at the camp each summer through the efforts of the 800-member philanthropic men's organization.

Harrisburg's at it again!

How many years has it been since the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has not been broke at the beginning of its fiscal year?

Maybe some oldtimer could tell us, but it seems that the Shafer Administration never managed to get a budget through the Assembly at all. At least the Shapp Administration gets one through, although a trifle late ... say by a month or two.

That doesn't help when it comes to paying bills, but there is more involved than that. State employees, who should have as much right to their paychecks as anyone else, won't be receiving theirs until the legislators make the deals they want and approve a budget.

Welfare recipients won't get their checks, either, and that will hurt the elderly, the disabled and the dependent. And we imagine many a small businessman will be distressed by not receiving the payment he expected for services rendered to the state.

Saddest of all, however, is the case of the victims of the worst flood in this state's history in terms of property damage. They are laboring to recover from the watery blow, and need help right now. The federal government, in a rare burst of speed, approved massive aid for those unfortunates. Too bad the state couldn't follow that example.

Instead, we have the sorry spectacle of a group of grown men haggling bitterly over the wording of the placement of the bill to allocate flood recovery funds, simply because each major party wants to take the credit for the aid and keep it from the other.

In effect, the virtues of charity and generosity (not to mention the genuine emotion of sympathy) takes second place to election year politics. What kind of fools do these legislators of ours take us for? Do they really think that someone would be influenced to vote either Republican or Democratic because he believed only one party or the other really favored helping those in need?

Well, it is out of such games Harrisburg's year is made. (And for this, the legislature wants a dramatic pay increase?) It is also out of such foolishness that the state again finds itself without a budget, without means to pay its bills.

As an aside, it is interesting to note that, while the House couldn't make up its mind what to do about flood relief and a budget, its members were able to get up on their moral high horse and vote down a bill to grant full adulthood to 18-to-20-year-olds and to defeat a measure to reduce the size of the legislature.

Incidentally, if you want a good laugh, think about the reason the House gave for voting down that size-trimming measure: It would deprive the citizenry of the individual, high-quality representation they have a right to expect!

The Pennsylvania Story

Excellent coverage

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania journalism can take a bow for its excellent coverage of the historic flooding which swept across the State, particularly the mid-State media.

Several newspapers were knocked out by the high waters including the Harrisburg Patriot and Evening News whose building was inundated. This was the first time in its 120 year history that the newspaper had to suspend a daily publication.

Nonetheless, its staff and those of similarly affected newspapers carried on with coverage of the disaster. (The Harrisburg paper resumed publication with the co-operation of the Allentown Call-Chronicle Co.)

To its credit, the "electronic" media, both radio and television, provided outstanding coverage and public service. Harrisburg WHP Radio, just to cite one example, ran a "newspaper of the air" news segment every 20 minutes — this along with its regular newscasts. Spot announcements during the peak of the disaster were of particular value.

Newsletters missed But — no question about it — the newspapers were missed! And when they hit the newstands they were scooped up eagerly by readers anxious to catch up with that type of news coverage that only the print media can supply. (As the first Harrisburg papers were being unloaded from trucks here, people were buying them before the driver could place them in the coin machines — with some buying three or four at a clip.)

In Carlisle, The Evening Sentinel was published via the help of an 18-foot motor boat which conveyed three staffers including a pressman across the flooded Conodoguinet Creek.

Robert Moore of Carlisle R. D. 2, was the skipper and the "Sentinel's" Al Grippin was his first mate.

Although hard hit by Hurricane Agnes, the

Pottsville Republican completed delivery to nearly 90 per cent of its subscribers "despite rain that drenched newspaper boys, and washed out bridges and flooded highways," in the words of that Central Pennsylvania newspaper, which added, "even department executives took to rain-soaked streets in some communities to personally deliver copies."

The Chambersburg Public Opinion offered a special three-day package newspaper — and quickly sold out on the same day it hit the streets. "Because of heavy demand, a special flood tabloid will be published," the Public Opinion said following this rapid sell-out.

Meanwhile, up on Capitol Hill here, the newsroom served as the nerve center for churning out the news statewide and nationally. Newsroom reporters and photographers clocked several hours in helicopters covering the disaster. Many newsmen (and newswomen!) went without sleep for a couple of days at a time.

Three-day flooding

During the three-day flooding, the photography team for the Harrisburg paper snapped some 500 pictures — when not involved in getting people off houses, out of trees and off cars and truck tops. Several times chief photographer Tom Leask set his camera aside to help rescue efforts.

Then, of course, there was the helicopter crash at the Harrisburg airport killing three newsmen and the pilot.

These are just some examples of the "above and beyond" type of journalistic coverage provided by the Pennsylvania news corps during the greatest flooding that ever hit this Country.

It is no doubt that similar exploits occurred in other flood-ravaged areas up and down the swollen Susquehanna River, particularly in the Wilkes-Barre area.

Pennsylvania journalism stands a little taller.

End of war in sight

END TO VIETNAMESE WAR IN SIGHT. Reason is that the Soviet Union, China and the United States have all decided they want it to end.

It is a remarkable feat of diplomacy which the President has brought off. He has apparently found ways to bring both Moscow and Peking into joint efforts with the United States to get peace in Vietnam.

HOW DID THE PRESIDENT DO IT? He began working on it from the first day he took office — to get Russia and China to see that it was in their interests to help end the war.

Nixon deliberately went to Peking before going to Moscow. He wanted the Soviets to know that he could do diplomatic business with China. They got the point. He then went to Moscow to demonstrate that he was doing nothing behind Russia's back and that the United States wanted to be friends with both.

It wasn't polite conversation which brought the two big Communist powers closer to the United States. It was their fear of each other.

Russia is acutely distrustful of the Chinese; China is acutely distrustful of the Russians. They can't do business with each other, but each decided that it is time to do business with the United States.

HOW AND WHEN WILL IT END? The expectation in Washington now is that there will be an end to the fighting before November.

The war could end in two stages — military and diplomatic:

1. — A cease-fire internationally supervised.

2. — A negotiated settlement resulting from military stalemate.

Hanoi always has an alternative to a negotiated peace. It can just let the offensive peter out, withdraw its forces — and wait for another day.

WHO WILL BENEFIT MORE POLITICALLY — the Democratic nominee or the President?

Sen. George McGovern has been among the earliest to change his position from support of the war to opposition and vehement critic of it. He can fairly argue that his leadership in opposition has pressured Nixon and thus contributed to ending the fighting.

But Nixon is the one who will be ending it and it is Hubert Humphrey's candid view that the handling of the Vietnamese War will be a significant political plus for the President.

Right and wrong

"The Great Literary Hoax," or, "With Clifford Irving Down the Drain," has undergone an alteration in emphasis. For months deprived readers have been titillated daily by stories of how Clifford and Edith tried $750,000 from a publishing house named McGraw-Hill and delivered an autobiography of Howard Hughes.

The book, sadly, turned out to be as spurious as Edith's eyelashes. The law collared them and, after due process, slapped Cliff on the wrist with 2½ years and Edith with two months. This, I thought, made them a pair of crooks. Even worse, crooks who were caught.

A few weeks ago, Mrs. Irving began to submit to some shrewd sub-sister interviews. It develops that our system of jurisprudence will not punish the parents — it will traumatize the two innocent children, Nedsky, 4; and Barnaby, 2.

Now I've seen a few traumatized kids — my own. I have written 18 books and the Bishops were broke and in heck through some of the earlier ones. I didn't have the brains to steal $750,000. Virginia Lee and Gayle grew up with eyes ticks from looking at rejection slips.

The Women's News Service sent out one of the new sobbing interviews and the lead goes like this: "New York — Downstairs, the lobby of the Hotel Chelsea was bright with her paintings, auctioned off for the money she desperately needs. Upstairs in her room she said, 'At some point they'll have to let us breathe again. It has to stop somewhere.' It was the night before she was taken to jail."

I am touched — not as McGraw-Hill was touched — but touched withal. Somewhere in the cool recesses of the publishing house there must be an editor or two who signed the contract with Clifford Irving and handed out three quarters of a million. If the editors have children, they're traumatized. Cliff may be out of jail in 18 months; some of the editors may be out of work for years. This makes instant neurotics.

"It's like a never-ending nightmare," says Edith. "If it hadn't been for my children, I would have gone on drugs. It's for the children that I am most concerned. The little one, he's still in diapers; 2½: I have become his whole horizon cooped up in this room with him for months. What will be think when I am gone?"

Probably who's-gonna-change-me; or what-to-do-with-daddy's manuscript. Mrs. Irving, bright and talented, maintains that she saw nothing wrong in switching the $750,000 from one Swiss bank to another, and endorsing it "H.R. Hughes."

"Sure," she says brightly to the lady journalist, "I'll go to Switzerland and move the money from one bank to another. Why not, if it helps my husband's work? Neither one of us knew we were committing a crime ... If anybody found out, we'd just give them back the money, that's all."

Somehow, the sentences do not parse well, nor the meter scan. If there is "nothing wrong," why move the moola from one bank to another? Why a phony endorsement? Why, when the story broke on the front pages all over the world, didn't Cliff and Edith holler: "We did it, but we didn't do anything wrong." They remained in hiding until tracked and pinched.

Clifford Irving is not going to be hanged for intelligence. As his subject, he selected one of the world's most successful businessmen, a man who fights for his privacy. A dangerous choice. Clifford must have known — even when he was flying to remote places with a playgirl — that one of the few men no one can sting without being squashed is Howard Hughes.

The author, barely known in the book publishing profession, lied and lied and lied about his personal interviews in remote places, even when he knew his daily work was not literary — it was betraying his wife. I am left with the feeling that Clifford Irving has about as much integrity as he has writing ability.

Sensation sells

I have had book contracts since 1944, and I do not like to see the standards lowered. Part of the fault lies with the new breed of book editors, who are prone to buy books from non-writers, so long as they are sensational enough to sell.

There is a surging nausea within me when I read that Cliff has used his pre-prison time to race through the writing of a book which explains how he swindled McGraw-Hill. Irving says he has a publisher who, one must suppose, is willing to publish a non-book which explains an anti-book.

Edith says: "All I ask is to be allowed to go home. I'll plead with the Swiss government to forgive us and let us go on with our lives." If, as she says, they did nothing wrong there is nothing to forgive.

I am beset by an ugly suspicion that Edith is coming us again, this time with the help of sympathetic lady journalists. ...

Merry-go-round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The White House has quietly started twisting arms on Capitol Hill to authorize tougher measures against marijuana violators.

For months, a fierce debate has raged inside the Nixon Administration between those who want to legalize marijuana and those who favor a marijuana crackdown. The crackdown crowd has won now.

The word has gone out from the White House to put the heat on Congress to pass two measures that would assure continued prosecution of marijuana users.

The instructions were delivered by White House aide Walt Minnick to Donald Miller, chief counsel for the Justice Department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

Miller immediately called representatives from several federal departments behind closed doors on June 13 to plan the lobbying campaign.

The principal measure is an international drug control treaty which would obligate the U.S. to make possession of certain drugs, including marijuana, "punishable offenses."

The other measure is an enabling law, which would be needed to clear the way for Congress to approve the treaty.

The treaty, known as "The Convention on Psychotropic Substances," would empower the Justice Department to control drugs regardless of the medical recommendations from the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

Drug controversy

This would directly contravene a drug abuse law, enacted by Congress two years ago, giving HEW the power to decide which drugs are dangerous.

A number of HEW officials are dismayed over the White House action. They believe HEW, as the scientific and medical arm of the government, should rule on dangerous drugs.

The president's own National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse has recommended that penalties for personal possession of marijuana be abolished.

BNDI officials, however, are sternly opposed to relaxing any of the laws against marijuana use. Their views were underscored in a recent speech by John Ingersoll, the hard-line BNDI director. He told a group of California policemen that the legalization of marijuana and other drugs might mean the fight against drug abuse was "lost altogether."

He added: "It is our duty not only to protect the public in the streets from vicious criminals but to protect the public from harmful ideas."

Footnote: HEW officials believe the White House deliberately began lobbying for the drug control treaty on the eve of the election campaign, figuring it might be difficult for Members of Congress to oppose it in an election year. But Minnick explained to use that the timing had been determined by the Senate Judiciary Committee's schedule. The committee must process the enabling legislation.

It has been many moons since the bluecoats won their last skirmish with the rekins in the struggle for the West. But the federal government is still crowding the Indians.

The Pennsylvania Story

Excellent coverage

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania journalism can take a bow for its excellent coverage of the historic flooding which swept across the State; particularly the mid-State media.

Several newspapers were knocked out by the high waters including the Harrisburg Patriot and Evening News whose building was inundated. This was the first time in its 120 year history that the newspaper had to suspend a daily publication.

Nonetheless, its staff and those of similarly affected newspapers carried on with coverage of the disaster. (The Harrisburg paper resumed publication with the cooperation of the Allentown Call-Chronicle Co.)

To its credit, the "electronic" media, both radio and television, provided outstanding coverage and public service. Harrisburg WHP Radio, just to cite one example, ran a "newspaper of the air" news segment every 20 minutes — this along with its regular newscasts. Spot announcements during the peak of the disaster were of particular value.

Newspapers missed

But — no question about it — the newspapers were missed! And when they hit the newsstands they were scooped up eagerly by readers anxious to catch up with that type of news coverage that only the print media can supply. (As the first Harrisburg papers were being unloaded from trucks here, people were buying them before the driver could place them in the coin machines — with some buying three or four at a clip!)

In Carlisle, The Evening Sentinel was published via the help of an 18-foot motor boat which conveyed three staffers including a pressman across the flooded Conodoguinet Creek.

Robert Moore of Carlisle R. D. 2, was the skipper and the "Sentinel's" Al Grippin was his first mate.

Although hard hit by Hurricane Agnes, the

Pottsville Republican completed delivery to nearly 90 per cent of its subscribers "despite rain that drenched newspaper boys, and washed out bridges and flooded highways," in the words of that Central Pennsylvania newspaper, which added, "even department executives took to rain-soaked streets in some communities to personally deliver copies."

The Chambersburg Public Opinion offered a special three-day package newspaper — and quickly sold out on the same day it hit the streets. "Because of heavy demand, a special flood tabloid will be published," the Public Opinion said following this rapid sell-out.

Meanwhile, up on Capitol Hill here, the newsroom served as the nerve center for churning out the news statewide and nationally. Newsroom reporters and photographers clocked several hours in helicopters covering the disaster. Many newsmen (and newsladies!) went without sleep for a couple of days at a time.

Three-day flooding

During the three-day flooding, the photography team for the Harrisburg paper snapped some 500 pictures — when not involved in getting people off houses, out of trees and off car and truck tops. Several times chief photographer Tom Leask set his camera aside to help rescue efforts.

Then, of course, there was the helicopter crash at the Harrisburg airport killing three newsmen and the pilot.

These are just some examples of the "above and beyond" type of journalistic coverage provided by the Pennsylvania news corps during the greatest flooding that ever hit this Country.

It is no doubt that similar exploits occurred in other flood-ravaged areas up and down the swollen Susquehanna River, particularly in the Wilkes-Barre area.

Pennsylvania journalism stands a little taller.

End of war

END TO VIETNAMESE WAR IN SIGHT.

Reason is that the Soviet Union, China and the United States have all decided they want it to end.

It is a remarkable feat of diplomacy which the President has brought off. He has apparently found ways to bring both Moscow and Peking into joint efforts with the United States to get peace in Vietnam.

HOW DID THE PRESIDENT DO IT? He began working on it from the first day he took office — to get Russia and China to see that it was in their interests to help end the war.

Nixon deliberately went to Peking before going to Moscow. He wanted the Soviets to know that he could do diplomatic business with China. They got the point. He then went to Moscow to demonstrate that he was doing nothing behind Russia's back and that the United States wanted to be friends with both.

It wasn't polite conversation which brought the two big Communist powers closer to the United States. It was their fear of each other.

Russia is acutely distrustful of the Chinese; China is acutely distrustful of the Russians. They can't do business with each other, but each decided that it is time to do business with the United States.

HOW AND WHEN WILL IT END? The expectation in Washington now is that there will be an end to the fighting before November.

The war could end in two stages — military and diplomatic:

1. — A cease-fire internationally supervised.
2. — A negotiated settlement resulting from military stalemate.

Hanoi always has an alternative to a negotiated peace. It can just let the offensive peter out, withdraw its forces — and wait for another day.

WHO WILL BENEFIT MORE POLITICALLY — the Democratic nominee or the President?

Sen. George McGovern has been among the earliest to change his position from support of the war to opposition and vehement critic of it. He can fairly argue that his leadership in opposition has pressured Nixon and thus contributed to ending the fighting.

But Nixon is the one who will be ending it and it is Hubert Humphrey's candid view that the handling of the Vietnamese War will be a significant political plus for the President.

Right and wrong

"The Great Literary Hoax," or, "With Clifford Irving Down the Drain," has undergone an alteration in emphasis. For months deprived readers have been titillated daily by stories of how Clifford and Edith pried $750,000 from a publishing house named McGraw-Hill and delivered an autobiography of Howard Hughes.

The book, sadly, turned out to be as spurious as Edith's eyelashes. The law collared them and, after due process, slapped Cliff on the wrist with 2½ years and Edith with two months. This, I thought, made them a pair of crooks. Even worse, crooks who were caught.

A few weeks ago, Mrs. Irving began to submit to some shrewd sub-sister interviews. It develops that our system of jurisprudence will not punish the parents — it will traumatize the two innocent children, Nedsky, 4; and Barnaby, 2.

Now I've seen a few traumatized kids — my own. I have written 18 books and the Bishops were broke and in hock through some of the earlier ones. I didn't have the brains to steal $750,000. Virginia Lee and Gayle grew up with eye ticks from looking at rejection slips.

The Women's News Service sent out one of the new sobbing interviews and the lead goes like this: "New York — Downstairs, the lobby of the Hotel Chelsea was bright with her paintings, auctioned off for the money she desperately needs. Upstairs in her room she said, 'At some point they'll have to let us breathe again. It has to stop somewhere.' It was the night before she was taken to jail."

I am touched — not as McGraw-Hill was touched — but touched withal. Somewhere in the cool recesses of the publishing house there must be an editor or two who signed the contract with Clifford Irving and handed out three quarters of a million. If the editors have children, they're traumatized. Cliff may be out of jail in 18 months; some of the editors may be out of work for years. This makes instant neurotics.

"It's like a never-ending nightmare," says Edith. "If it hadn't been for my children, I would have gone on drugs. It's for the children that I am most concerned. The little one, he's still in diapers; 2½; I have become his whole horizon cooped up in this room with him for months. What will he think when I am gone?"

Probably who's-gonna-change-me; or what-to-do-with-daddy's manuscript. Mrs. Irving, bright and talented, maintains that she saw nothing wrong in switching the $750,000 from one Swiss bank to another, and endorsing it "H.R. Hughes."

"Sure," she says brightly to the lady journalist. "I'll go to Switzerland and move the money from one bank to another. Why not, if it helps my husband's work? Neither one of us knew we were committing a crime . . . If anybody found out, we'd just give them back the money, that's all."

Somehow, the sentences do not parse well, nor the meter scan. If there is "nothing wrong," why move the moola from one bank to another? Why a phony endorsement? Why, when the story broke on the front pages all over the world, didn't Cliff and Edith holler: "We did it, but we didn't do anything wrong." They remained in hiding until tracked and pinched.

Clifford Irving is not going to be hanged for intelligence. As his subject, he selected one of the world's most successful businessmen, a man who fights for his privacy. A dangerous choice. Clifford must have known — even when he was flying to remote places with a playgirl — that one of the few men no one can sting without being squashed is Howard Hughes.

The author, barely known in the book publishing profession, lied and lied and lied about his personal interviews in remote places, even when he knew his daily work was not literary — it was betraying his wife. I am left with the feeling that Clifford Irving has about as much integrity as he has writing ability.

Sensation sells

I have had book contracts since 1944, and I do not like to see the standards lowered. Part of the fault lies with the new breed of book editors, who are prone to buy books from non-writers, so long as they are sensational enough to sell.

There is a surging nausea within me when I read that Cliff has used his pre-prison time to race through the writing of a book which explains how he swindled McGraw-Hill. Irving says he has a publisher who, one must suppose, is willing to publish a non-book which explains an anti-book.

Edith says: "All I ask is to be allowed to go home. I'll plead with the Swiss government to forgive us and let us go on with our lives." If, as she says, they did nothing wrong there is nothing to forgive.

I am beset by an ugly suspicion that Edith is conning us again, this time with the help of sympathetic lady journalists. . .

Merry-go-round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The White House has quietly started twisting arms on Capitol Hill to authorize tougher measures against marijuana violators.

For months, a fierce debate has raged inside the Nixon Administration between those who want to legalize marijuana and those who favor a marijuana crackdown. The crackdown crowd has now won.

The word has gone out from the White House to put the heat on Congress to pass two measures that would assure continued prosecution of marijuana users.

The instructions were delivered by White House aide Walt Minnick to Donald Miller, chief counsel for the Justice Department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

Miller immediately called representatives from several federal departments behind closed doors on June 13 to plan the lobbying campaign.

The principal measure is an international drug control treaty which would obligate the U.S. to make possession of certain drugs, including marijuana, "punishable offenses."

The other measure is an enabling law, which would be needed to clear the way for Congress to approve the treaty.

The treaty, known as "The Convention on Psychotropic Substances," would empower the Justice Department to control drugs regardless of the medical recommendations from the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

Drug controversy

This would directly contravene a drug abuse law, enacted by Congress two years ago, giving HEW the power to decide which drugs are dangerous.

A number of HEW officials are dismayed over the White House action. They believe HEW, as the scientific and medical arm of the government, should rule on dangerous drugs.

The president's own National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse has recommended that penalties for personal possession of marijuana be abolished.

BNDD officials, however, are sternly opposed to relaxing any of the laws against marijuana use. Their views were underscored in a recent speech by John Ingersoll, the hard-line BNDD director. He told a group of California policemen that the legalization of marijuana and other drugs might mean the fight against drug abuse was "lost altogether."

He added: "It is our duty not only to protect the public in the streets from vicious criminals but to protect the public from harmful ideas."

Footnote: HEW officials believe the White House deliberately began lobbying for the drug control treaty on the eve of the election campaign, figuring it might be difficult for Members of Congress to oppose it in an election year. But Minnick explained to use that the timing had been determined by the Senate Judiciary Committee's schedule. The committee must process the enabling legislation.

It has been many moons since the bluecoats won their last skirmish with the redskins in the struggle for the West. But the federal government is still crowding the Indians.

Back in 1865, the government signed a treaty with the Winnebago tribe granting them land "for use and occupancy forever." As late as 1944, the Army Engineers — descendants of the bluecoats — pledged that they would never appropriate Indian lands without prior tribal consent.

But now the federal authorities want to build a recreation project on Winnebago land in Iowa and Nebraska. Without regard for past treaties and pledges, the government took the land away from the Indians for the Oxbow Lake project.

Not that the friendly Winnebago mind opening their homeland to their white brothers for fishing and picnicking. But the tribe would like to retain the title and collect the income from park concessions.

Footnote: Congressional sources tell us that a House Appropriations Subcommittee may settle the issue, strictly for budgetary reasons, by turning down the $750,000 appropriation for the Oxbow project.

FBI and Alinsky

Saul Alinsky, the self-proclaimed "professional radical," died earlier this month. He would have been dismayed over the eulogies that appeared in several newspapers.

His popularity with more respectable reformers caused him recently to reassure his staff: "Don't worry, boys, we'll weather this storm of approval and come out as hated as ever."

He would be comforted to know, however, that the FBI at least regarded him as a menace. The G-men kept him under regular surveillance and tried to paint him red.

But the FBI file on him isn't convincing. Despite Alinsky's rabble-rousing, he was hardly a routine revolutionary. "I love this country," he kept on saying, "and we're (the common people) going to take it back."

Agnes aftermath: In Wilkes-Barre, bitterness, confusion

WILKES-BARRE (UPI) — It is the aftermath of a disaster and 400 businessmen, most of them ruined by the "great flood of '72," hold a "town meeting" with an elite task force of federal officials.

Bernard Newman, 53, a hulking product of Pennsylvania's hard coal region, sits brooding to one side, his massive forearms folded across his chest.

"We are not here with a pre-packaged set of programs and answers," U.S. Commerce Secretary Peter G. Peterson tells them. "We are here to listen to your problems. We want to know what can be done, when and how."

Accompanying Peterson are Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, George A. Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Planning, and Anthony B. Chase, deputy director of the Small Business Administration (SBA).

Store ruined

Louis Hess, an elderly man with a faint "old country" accent is the first to speak. He says his dress shop was inundated by the Susquehanna River flood waters.

"I am a total loss," he says, "but this town has been good to me and I want to stay here. I love my town and I think I can get back with the help of my government, my landlord and my God."

Newman moves as if to rise but slouches back in his seat as Abraham Martin of Wilkes-Barre complains loudly about the red tape involved in applying for SBA loans.

"I've been a certified public accountant for 32 years and I don't even know my own social security number," he says.

"Most of my records were washed away."

He joins a chorus of listeners who demand immediate payments from the federal government.

"These people have been sending billions of dollars to Washington. Now Big Brother has to do something for us. You got our money over the years, now you have to take care of us."

Newman nods his head and claps vigorously.

"We can process a claim in a day," Chase replies, "but it might take a month. It depends on credit ratings and the nature of the loan."

"But you're not going to see the grass growing under anybody's feet. If you don't get a prompt response and the SBA is at fault, somebody's head will roll."

A man shouts out, "Let's stop the platitudes and the speeches and let's talk business. Newman then makes up his mind and strides to the center of the room."

His appearance was somewhat of a shock to the federal officials. They did not have time to view the devastated areas of the city, but Newman must have given them some idea.

He was literally covered with mud. It was smeared on his overalls, caked on his arms and matted in his hair. He spoke slowly and bitterly.

"I worked for 25 years to have enough money to buy my dress factory," he says. "I bought it four years ago and had only one more year to pay it off. Now it's gone."

"Then I bought my house three years ago and I don't see how it is feasible for me to take on another mortgage. God knows what it will be worth after this."

"I have one pair of shoulders. They're broad, but they can only take so much."

Involved in cleanup

Later Newman explains he has come to the meeting directly from working to clean up his home.

"I came here to find out as much information as I can about money," he says. "I think the federal government will help, but I don't know if it will be enough."

Newman says he and many of the other businessmen in Wilkes-Barre feel the same way about help from the federal government.

"A lot of people have worked for years to establish their businesses," he says. "They paid a lot of taxes during the years and the government should pay them back."

"We should get grants without any interest rate from the government. The federal government should give us full compensation for our losses. A lot of people here are high taxpayers and it is unfair to ask us to pay and pay and pay."

Low interest rates

Chase tells them the U. S. House of Representatives has approved and the Senate should agree on a bill to lower interest rates on disaster loans to homeowners and businessmen.

Under the bill, the rates would be lowered from 5 1/2 per cent to 3 per cent on loans where $2,500 is forgiven and 1 per cent on loans where there is no forgiveness.

"We should not have to pay anything," one man hollers. "You say the interest rate will be one per cent. I say one per cent is more than enough."

Another calls out: "Stop the war in Vietnam for a month. Use the money to pay us."

Hodgson explains later he can understand the frustration of bitterness.

"These people have gone through a tremendous shock," he says. "They haven't got adjusted to it yet and they are confused and in the midst of self questioning over what they can do."

Lincoln predicts the feelings will pass and that the area will bounce back better than ever.

"The people felt like this on the Gulf Coast after Hurricane Camille three years ago," he said. "But they recovered, and things are better now than they ever were."

Yippies say peace, but . . .

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The Yippies pledged Tuesday to try to keep the peace at next week's Democratic National Convention, but warned that if the city does not establish a campsite for demonstrators, "We'll have to take one."

The Miami Beach City Council meets today and is expected to vote on whether to allow protesters to set up camp at Flamingo Park or at a golf course near the convention hall. Last month, the council voted down similar proposals, 5-2.

Despite the camping ban, 16 members of the militant Yippie faction of the Youth International Party camped out on the golf course Monday night. Police cars cruised by occasionally but did not stop and the Yippies remained through the night.

"We gave ourselves a permit," said one Yippie.

The Yippie faction of the group, however, changed its plans to defy the camping ban and elected instead to accept the invitation of a synagogue to sleep in its carpeted, air-conditioned social hall.

The Yippies said they would not use the golf course until after the city council meets today.

But Yippie spokesman Stew Albert warned: "If we don't get one (a campsite), we'll have to take one."

The radical Yippie faction was disowned by the other protest groups for committing "provocative acts jeopardizing the peaceful intentions and programs of all other members" of the Conventions Coordinating Committee.

France explodes A-bomb

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI)—France secretly exploded a second nuclear device last Friday and is planning the third—and possibly final—blast of the current series later this month or early August, unofficial reports said Tuesday.

French officials here and in Paris refused to comment on the reports, which also were published in the Monday edition of the Journal de Tahiti newspaper.

France has never officially admitted the first nuclear test which took place June 25 from a balloon tethered high over the Mururoa atoll, 800 miles southeast of here.

Frenchman heading for record Atlantic sail

LONDON (UPI) — France's Jean Yves Terlain, sailing the 128-foot American-designed schooner Vendredi XIII, the largest yacht ever entered in the singlehanded transatlantic race, Tuesday surged toward a record for a solo crossing of the Atlantic.

A race spokesman said the Vendredi XIII (Friday the 13th) could reach the finish line at Newport, R. I., by next weekend, only 20 days after setting out from Plymouth, England.

This would shave six days off the record run in 1968 by Geoffrey Williamson in the 56-foot ketch Sir Thomas Lipton.

At last report, the Vendredi XIII's closest competitors were another Frenchman, Alain Colas in the 70-foot trimaran Pen Duick IV and American Tom Follett in another triple-hulled vessel, the 46-foot trimaran Three Cheers.

U.S. naval architect Dick Carter designed Terlain's three-masted schooner specifically for this race. It is believed to be the largest vessel ever sailed by a one person.

There are no restrictions on the size of the yachts entering the Sunday Observer news-

From Saigon to Toronto—feelings about 4th of July

By United Press International

To a Vietnam soldier, a draft dodger in Canada, a U.S. congressman, a youth at a religious festival and a Coney Island tourist, the Fourth of July has different meanings.

How do Americans feel about their Independence Day? In interviews ranging from such places as Saigon to Sylacauga, Ala., to the mountains of Colorado, they reply:

SAIGON—To Air Force Sgt. Richard L. Taylor the Fourth of July in Saigon means a half day's work and a "couple of beers."

But back in his home town of Jackson, Mich., it was different.

"In Jackson, my best friend, Ritchie Collins, and some other friends and I would go to the lake (Portage Lake State Park), lie in the sun, do some swimming and soak in a little suds," recalled Taylor, 21, a Jackson native who has been in the Air Force two and one-half years. His mother now lives in San Diego, Calif.

"We'd just sort of lounge around and have a good time," he said Tuesday while eating a bowl of chili and drinking a soda for breakfast at the Saigon USO.

"Jackson's known for two things—the Cascades and it's got the biggest walled prison in the world, Southern Michigan Prison," said Taylor, who has four months left in his one-year Vietnam tour. "Then the Fourth of July there was always a fireworks thing at the Cascades—that's a man-made waterfall with pools and lakes."

"I'm celebrating the Fourth of July here," he said smiling. "I just bought suits and pants and I have a half day off. After that I might go see a movie and have a couple of beers in the office and then crash."

"The airman's club is having a big bash—free dinner and bands—but that's no big thing," Taylor said.

nation where so many people were so free, where the most humble man stood so equal before the law," said Nichols, who drove here from Washington Tuesday to observe July 4 with his family and to tour his congressional district.

"There is plenty wrong with America," Nichols added. "There always was. I guess there always will be. But it still is the best place in the world for the man who loves freedom and I have confidence that the next generations will keep it that way, and in their flourishing best perhaps improve it."

NEW YORK CITY—Richard Kall, his wife and infant son were among the estimated 1,000,000 persons strolling the boardwalk at Brooklyn's famous Coney Island July 4.

Hall, 31, a self-employed hairdresser and former Brooklyn resident, has spent Independence Day at the landmark amusement area for years.

"I moved away 15 years ago to Queens," Kall said, "but I come back every year to get a N a t i o n's (hotdog) because they're like a magnet to me, they're so good."

What does Independence Day mean to Kall?

"Ever since I was a kid the Fourth of July has meant hot dogs and soda pop. It's a tradition."

TORONTO—"Well, I haven't purchased any fireworks, if that's what you mean."

Bob Kolpin, 25, a U.S. Army draft dodger from Tucson, Ariz., who has been in Canada "about a week," was talking Tuesday about his July 4 plans, or non-plans.

"I mean it's not a holiday up here," Kolpin said. "My plans?

A 1968 graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Kolpin served in the U.S. Peace Corps (which he left, however, for "personal reasons" before his term was up) and lived in France and Germany to evade the U.S. draft.

"It's rather a hypocrisy to talk about independence," he said, "when so many Americans don't have it—me, for example. Now the only freedom I have in the U.S. is the freedom to go to prison."

"These people have been sending billions of dollars to Washington. Now Big Brother has to do something for us. You got our money over the years, now you have to take care of us."

Newman nods his head and claps vigorously.

"We can process a claim in a day," Chase replies, "but it might take a month. It depends on credit ratings and the nature of the loan.

"But you're not going to see the grass growing under anybody's feet. If you don't get a prompt response and the SBA is at fault, somebody's head will roll."

A man shouts out, "Let's stop the platitudes and the speeches and let's talk business. Newman then makes up his mind and strides to the center of the room.

His appearance was somewhat of a shock to the federal officials. They did not have time to view the devastated areas of the city, but Newman must have given them some idea.

He was literally covered with mud. It was smeared on his overalls, caked on his arms and matted in his hair. He spoke slowly and bitterly.

"I worked for 25 years to have enough money to buy my dress factory," he says. "I bought it four years ago and had only one more year to pay it off. Now it's gone."

"Then I bought my house three years ago and I don't see how it is feasible for me to take on another mortgage. God knows what it will be worth after this."

"I have one pair of shoulders. They're broad, but they can only take so much."

Involved in cleanup

Later Newman explains he has come to the meeting directly from working to clean up his home.

"I came here to find out as much information as I can about money," he says. "I think the federal government will help, but I don't know if it will be enough."

Newman says he and many of the other businessmen in Wilkes-Barre feel the same way about help from the federal government.

"A lot of people have worked for years to establish their businesses," he says. "They paid a lot of taxes during the years and the government should pay them back."

"We should get grants without any interest rate from the government. The federal government should give us full compensation for our losses. A lot of people here are high taxpayers and it is unfair to ask us to pay and pay."

Low interest rates

Chase tells them the U. S. House of Representatives has approved and the Senate should agree on a bill to lower interest rates on disaster loans to homeowners and businessmen.

Under the bill, the rates would be lowered from 5 1/2 per cent to 3 per cent on loans where $2,500 is forgiven and 1 per cent on loans where there is no forgiveness.

"We should not have to pay anything," one man hollers. "You say the interest rate will be one per cent. I say one per cent is more than enough."

Another culls out: "Stop the war in Vietnam for a month. Use the money to pay us."

Hodgson explains later he can understand the frustration of bitterness.

"These people have gone through a tremendous shock," he says. "They haven't got adjusted to it yet and they are confused and in the midst of self questioning over what they can do."

Lincoln predicts the feelings will pass and that the area will bounce back better than ever.

"The people felt like this on the Gulf Coast after Hurricane Camille three years ago," he said. "But they recovered, and things are better now than they ever were."

Yippies say peace, but . . .

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The Yippies pledged Tuesday to try to keep the peace at next week's Democratic National Convention, but warned that if the city does not establish a campsite for demonstrators, "We'll have to take one."

The Miami Beach City Council meets today and is expected to vote on whether to allow protestors to set up camp at Flamingo Park or at a golf course near the convention hall. Last month, the council voted down similar proposals, 5-2.

Despite the camping ban, 16 members of the militant Zippie faction of the Youth International Party camped out on the golf course Monday night. Police cars cruised by occasionally but did not stop and the Yippies remained through the night.

"We gave ourselves a permit," said one Zippie.

The Yippie faction of the group, however, changed its plans to defy the camping ban and elected instead to accept the invitation of a synagogue to sleep in its carpeted, air-conditioned social hall.

The Yippies said they would not use the golf course until after the city council meets today.

But Yippie spokesman Stew Albert warned: "If we don't get one (a campsite), we'll have to take one."

The radical Zippie faction was disowned by the other protest groups for committing "provocative acts jeopardizing the peaceful intentions and programs of all other members" of the Conventions Coordinating Committee.

France explodes A-bomb

PA'ETE, Tahiti (UPI)—France secretly exploded a second nuclear device last Friday and is planning the third—and possibly final—blast of the current series later this month or early August, unofficial reports said Tuesday.

French officials here and in Paris refused to comment on the reports, which also were published in the Monday edition of the Journal de Tahiti newspaper.

France has never officially admitted the first nuclear test which took place June 25 from a balloon tethered high over the Mururoa atoll, 800 miles southeast of here.

Frenchman heading for record Atlantic sail

LONDON (UPI) — France's Jean Yves Terlain, sailing the 128-foot American-designed schooner Vendredi XIII, the largest yacht ever entered in the singlehanded transatlantic race, Tuesday surged toward a record for a solo crossing of the Atlantic.

A race spokesman said the Vendredi XIII (Friday the 13th) could reach the finish line at Newport R. I., by next weekend, only 20 days after setting out from Plymouth, England.

This would shave six days off the record run in 1968 by Geoffrey Williamson in the 56-foot ketch Sir Thomas Lipton.

At last report, the Vendredi XIII's closest competitors were another Frenchman, Alain Colas in the 70-foot trimaran Pen Duick IV and American Tom Follett in another triple-hulled vessel, the 46-foot trimaran Three Cheers.

U.S. naval architect Dick Carter designed Terlain's three-masted schooner specifically for this race. It is believed to be the largest vessel ever sailed by a one person.

There are no restrictions on the size of the yachts entering the Sunday Observer news-

From Saigon to Toronto—feelings about 4th of July

By United Press International

To a Vietnam soldier, a draft dodger in Canada, a U.S. congressman, a youth at a religious festival and a Coney Island tourist, the Fourth of July has different meanings.

How do Americans feel about their Independence Day? In interviews ranging from such places as Saigon to Sylacauga, Ala., to the mountains of Colorado, they reply:

SAIGON—To Air Force Sgt. Richard L. Taylor the Fourth of July in Saigon means a half day's work and a "a couple of beers."

But back in his home town of Jackson, Mich., it was different.

"In Jackson, my best friend, Ritchie Collins, and some other friends and I would go to the lake (Portage Lake State Park), lie in the sun, do some swimming and soak in a little suds," recalled Taylor, 21, a Jackson native who has been in the Air Force two and one-half years. His mother now lives in San Diego, Calif.

"We'd just sort of lounge around and have a good time," he said Tuesday while eating a bowl of chili and drinking a soda for breakfast at the Saigon USO.

"Jackson's known for two things—the Cascades and it's got the biggest walled prison in the world, Southern Michigan Prison," said Taylor, who has four months left in his one-year Vietnam tour. "Then the Fourth of July there was always a fireworks thing at the Cascades—that's a man-made waterfall with pools and lakes."

"I'm celebrating the Fourth of July here," he said smiling. "I just bought suits and pants and I have a half day off. After that I might go see a movie and have a couple of beers in the office and then crash."

"The airmen's club is having a big bash—free dinner and bands—but that's no big thing," Taylor said.

SYLACAUGA, Ala.—"America today is not exactly as many people wish it were," said Rep. Bill Nichols, D-Ala., in an Independence Day statement.

"It is not as it used to be. Its promises have been delayed for some, and there are those who were never equipped to take full advantage of all America has to offer," the congressman added.

"It may very well be true that there have been people who did not enjoy all the benefits that could be earned in a growing, rampaging stream of American history."

"But there has never been a nation where so many people were so free, where the most humble man stood so equal before the law," said Nichols, who drove here from Washington Tuesday to observe July 4 with his family and to tour his congressional district.

"There is plenty wrong with America," Nichols added. "There always was. I guess there always will be. But it still is the best place in the world for the man who loves freedom and I have confidence that the next generations will keep it that way, and in their floundering best perhaps improve it."

NEW YORK CITY—Richard Kall, his wife and infant son were among the estimated 1,000,000 persons strolling the boardwalk at Brooklyn's famous Coney Island July 4.

Hall, 31, a self-employed hairdresser and former Brooklyn resident, has spent Independence Day at the landmark amusement area for years.

"I moved away 15 years ago to Queens," Kall said, "but I come back every year to get a Nathan's (hotdog) because they're like a magnet to me, they're so good."

What does Independence Day mean to Kall?

"Ever since I was a kid the Fourth of July has meant hot dogs and soda pop. It's a tradition."

TORONTO—"Well, I haven't purchased any fireworks, if that's what you mean."

Bob Kolpin, 25, a U.S. Army draft dodger from Tucson, Ariz., who has been in Canada "about a week," was talking Tuesday about his July 4 plans, or non-plans.

"I mean it's not a holiday up here," Kolpin said. "My plans?

You'll want to remember this.

I'm going to the library to read."

He continued, "All my life I was neutral to stuff like the Fourth of July. But now I'm negative."

A 1968 graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Kolpin served in the U.S. Peace Corps (which he left, however, for "personal reasons" before his term was up) and lived in France and Germany to evade the U.S. draft.

"It's rather a hypocrisy to talk about independence," he said, "when so many Americans don't have it—freedom, for example. Now the only freedom I have in the U.S. is the freedom to go to prison."

Reish-Warner nuptials

STROUDSBURG — Miss Debbie Ann Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Warner of 23 North Ninth St., Stroudsburg, and Dwayne L. Reish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Reish of Stroudsburg R.D. 5 were united in marriage on Saturday, June 24 in the Zion United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg.

Rev. Marshall J. Riu Jr., pastor and Rev. George M. Doll Jr. of the Poplar Valley Methodist Church performed the double ring ceremony at a candlelight service. The altar was decorated with vases of white carnations and babies breath, two baskets of white gladioli and babies breath, and white daisies and palms. The pews were decorated with bows and ribbons.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of ivory organza and Venice lace. The lace bordered the square neckline and waistband and formed a panel down the front. The gown had Camelot sleeves trimmed with matching lace and an attached train. She wore a Camelot cap trimmed with lace and pink ribbon, holding an elbow length veil of imported illusion and carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and babies breath.

Mrs. Geoffrey Robbins of Stroudsburg was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Ellen Shook and Miss Debbie Ace of Stroudsburg and Mrs. Sherry Grech of New York City.

They all wore long gowns of pink dotted Swiss with square necklines, Camelot sleeves and a lace-trimmed bodice matching the bride's gown. They wore large picture hats trimmed with ribbons and daisies in matching pink and carried clusters of babies breath with pink daisies and carnations.

Raymond Van Horn of Stroudsburg R.D. 2 was best man. Ushers were Geoffrey Robbins, Charles Grech of New York City, and Bruce Reish of Philadelphia.

The flower girl, Bethany Burgin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burgin, wore a miniature of the bridesmaids' gowns and carried a pink basket with pink daisies, carnations and babies breath matching her flowered headband.

Troy Reish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Reish, was ring bearer and wore a tuxedo, matching the ushers. Acolytes were Jeffrey Somers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Somers of Stroudsburg, and Bret Reish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Reish.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Mrs. Lucy Quig, church organist. Leonard Zetlemoyer sang "The Lord's Prayer," "Ava Maria," "One Hand, One Heart" and "Always."

Immediately after the

Mrs. Dwayne L. Reish

ceremony, guests were received in the narthex of the church. A reception, cocktail hour and dinner for 200 guests was held in the crystal ballroom of the Penn Stroud Hilton.

The prayer was given by Rev. George M. Doll Jr. and music was provided by Numa Snyder's group. The bridal table was decorated with a centerpiece of white rosebuds, carnations and babies breath with the same flowers garlanded around candelabras at both ends of the table. Guest tables were decorated with flowers and candles.

The five-tier wedding cake, decorated in white and pink matching the wedding party was wheeled to the center of the room to be cut. James Somers of Stroudsburg served as master of ceremonies.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length aqua gown with gold accessories and an orchid on a gold bag. The bridegroom's mother wore a print chiffon gown with green accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride was married on the 52nd wedding anniversary of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eilenberger, 21 North Ninth St., Stroudsburg. Mrs. Eilenberger wore a light blue jacket dress with matching accessories.

The paternal grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Florence Warner, wore a pink jacket dress with matching accessories and corsage of pink rosebuds. The bride's great grandmother, Mrs. Rose Gower, wore a light blue dress with matching accessories and corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Mrs. Orien Reish, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a gold dress with a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Miss Janice Baringer assisted the guests in registering. Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Stroudsburg High School. The bride is a graduate of Centenary College for Women and is employed by Jordan Surgical Group, East Stroudsburg, as a medical secretary. The bridegroom was graduated from Electronics School, New Jersey, and is employed in Easton.

After a honeymoon touring the southern states, Mr. and Mrs. Reish will make their home in East Stroudsburg.

The wedding party was entertained at a rehearsal dinner by the bridegroom's parents at Stroudsmoor.

St. Matthew's Altar, Rosary reorganized

EAST STROUDSBURG — Officers were elected and fall schedule was set up at the reorganization meeting of the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church called by Msgr. Thomas J. Cawley, pastor.

Presiding at the meeting, he presented the meaning and aims of the society: to care for the altars, place flowers, care for the linens and be responsible for keeping the altars in order at all times. They are also asked to remember the sick and deceased, to promote Catholic Action, and to work in harmony with all groups.

A nominating committee, Mrs. Guy Nicholas, Mrs. Arthur Blewitt and Mrs. G.B. Dalessio presented a slate of officers who were elected and installed by Msgr. Cawley in a candlelight installation.

President, Mrs. Tomas Rosso; vice president, Mrs. David McGarry; secretary, Mrs. Kenneth Bailey; treasurer, Mrs. Herman Eitzenberger; financial secretary, Mrs. Edward Mesko.

Mrs. Rosso presided at the remainder of the meeting when plans for the year were discussed. The first meeting will be on Sept. 20 with a covered dish supper in St. Matthew's Auditorium.

The fall festival, formerly the annual bazaar, will be held on Saturday, Oct. 21 at Notre Dame High School. Volunteers willing to help are asked to call Mrs. Rosso at 421-5323.

A communion breakfast is being planned for Sunday, Nov. 12. Several other suggestions are being considered.

Book Fair flourishes as finds uncovered

STROUDSBURG — With the rush of the first day of the annual Book Fair of the American Assn. of University Women over, the members who are serving as saleswomen all this week find they still have lots of books left over in the Plaza Shops of Wyckoff's, North Sixth St.

The sorting committee has been working for months arranging the books under the many categories and the shelves and tables in the commodious Plaza Shop give them plenty of room to display their wares from reference books to paper back mysteries.

While the browsers may uncover their own rare books, the committee has already discovered such treasures as the complete works of George Eliot; leather bound 1880 edition (Holman's) of the "Holy Bible" completely illustrated.

There is also an 1881 edition of the "Life of James Garfield" and the 1890 edition of "Spinning Wheel Stories" by Louisa May Alcott. The complete works of Shakespeare in a midget edition contrasts with the three volume 1924 edition of the "Dairy of Samuel Pepys."

They also have three limited bound editions of the poems of Robert Burns, the works of George Eliot and Stearns' works.

They have "how-to" books in all categories, text books, music, art, painting, poetry, best sellers of past years.

Proceeds from the Book Fair are used to provide grants-in-aid toward college expenses for one girl in each of the four high school's graduating classes, which this year was $250 each.

From the fund, the branch also contributes to fellowships for international study.

The fair is being staffed during store hours until Saturday at noon, including evening hours. A display of art by members of the branch is held in conjunction with the show.

Barbara Lord is chairman of the fair and has been assisted by Bobbie Slee, pick-up; Bethany Scheibel, sorting; Nona Goldsmith, art; Maggie Price, book drop barrels; Anna Meislich, scheduling and Nathalie Lufly, publicity.

Emma Waygood wed to Russell McDonald

POCONO PINES — Mrs. Emma Waygood became the bride of Russell M. McDonald of Austell, Ga., on Saturday, June 24 at 11 a.m. in the Salem United Church of Christ, Pocono Pines with Rev. Elmer G. Meissner officiating.

The bride is the former Emma LaBarre Miller Waygood, a long time summer resident of this area and former resident of Philadelphia. She is a Smith College graduate in the class of 1914 and spent the last five winters in Penney Farms, Fla., founded by J.C. Penney 42 years ago for retired missionaries, ministers and Christian workers.

Jackson cooks preparing for carnival

READERS — The Jackson Twp. Volunteer Fire Co. will hold the annual carnival the week of July 10.

Everyone is asked to donate baked goods for the baked good stands. A suggested schedule for different areas has been set up to bake, although baked goods will be welcomed at any convenient night during the carnival.

The schedule is: Monday, firehouse road; Tuesday, Appenzell; Wednesday, Singertown; Thursday, Mountain Road; Friday, Readers; Saturday, Neola.

Members are also asked to come out and volunteer their help.

Y Service Club plans summer work sessions

STROUDSBURG — The YMCA Mothers Service Club closed their meeting year with a dinner and theatre party with 13 members making the trip.

However, they have not closed their summer activities since members will be meeting each Monday night at the Y to work on articles and novelties to be sold at the Christmas bazaar.

Mrs. Mary Katz also has yarn for those members willing to knit mittens for the Well-Baby Clinic sponsored by the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs.

Ratio varies

High cost vs. value

By ANNE HINKLE
Asst. Home Economist

STROUDSBURG — Higher priced foods don't necessarily mean you get higher food value. Often you spend extra pennies to buy a brand-name item, when a store-brand is just as nutritious and more suitable to your needs.

What is the main difference between foods labeled high and low quality?

Appearance of the product — Lower-quality foods may not be as aesthetically pleasing — the pieces may be smaller or broken up or they may be a mixture of sizes. In addition, flavor and color may not equal that of the more expensive products.

Appearance of the label on products — Influences your choice in the supermarket. Radio, TV and magazine advertisements tell us to buy certain brand names.

High quality store brands, which are packed especially for that store and labeled with special names, are equal to high quality brand names and usually cost two to three cents less.

High quality store brands are identified as "our finest quality" or "bond of quality." Both the high quality brand names and the high quality store brands offer you a firm, colorful and fairly uniform product.

When you are shopping, consider what you intend to use the product for. Is appearance important? If you need whole items, then select a high quality product for your use.

Reish-Warner nuptials

STROUDSBURG — Miss Debbie Ann Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Warner of 23 North Ninth St., Stroudsburg, and Dwayne L. Reish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Reish of Stroudsburg R.D. 5 were united in marriage on Saturday, June 24 in the Zion United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg.

Rev. Marshall J. Riu Jr., pastor and Rev. George M. Doll Jr. of the Poplar Valley Methodist Church performed the double ring ceremony at a candlelight service. The altar was decorated with vases of white carnations and babies breath, two baskets of white gladiolus and babies breath, and white daisies and palms. The pews were decorated with bows and ribbons.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of ivory organza and Venice lace. The lace bordered the square neckline and waistband and formed a panel down the front. The gown had Camelot sleeves trimmed with matching lace and an attached train. She wore a Camelot cap trimmed with lace and pink ribbon, holding an elbow length veil of imported illusion and carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and babies breath.

Mrs. Geoffrey Robbins of Stroudsburg was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Ellen Shook and Miss Debbie Ace of Stroudsburg and Mrs. Sherry Grech of New York City.

They all wore long gowns of pink dotted Swiss with square necklines, Camelot sleeves and a lace-trimmed bodice matching the bride's gown. They wore large picture hats trimmed with ribbons and daisies in matching pink and carried clusters of babies breath with pink daisies and carnations.

Raymond Van Horn of Stroudsburg R.D. 2 was best man. Ushers were Geoffrey Robbins, Charles Grech of New York City, and Bruce Reish of Philadelphia.

The flower girl, Bethany Burgin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burgin, wore a miniature of the bridesmaids' gowns and carried a pink basket with pink daisies, carnations and babies breath matching her flowered headband.

Troy Reish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Reish, was ring bearer and wore a tuxedo, matching the ushers. Acolytes were Jeffrey Somers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Somers of Stroudsburg, and Bret Reish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Reish.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Mrs. Lucy Quig, church organist. Leonard Zetlemoyer sang "The Lord's Prayer," "Ava Maria," "One Hand, One Heart" and "Always."

Immediately after the

ceremony, guests were received in the narthex of the church. A reception, cocktail hour and dinner for 200 guests was held in the crystal ballroom of the Penn Stroud Hilton.

The prayer was given by Rev. George M. Doll Jr. and music was provided by Numa Snyder's group. The bridal table was decorated with a centerpiece of white rosebuds, carnations and babies breath with the same flowers garlanded around candelabras at both ends of the table. Guest tables were decorated with flowers and candles.

The five-tier wedding cake, decorated in white and pink matching the wedding party was wheeled to the center of the room to be cut. James Somers of Stroudsburg served as master of ceremonies.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length aqua gown with gold accessories and an orchid on a gold bag. The bridegroom's mother wore a print chiffon gown with green accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride was married on the 52nd wedding anniversary of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eilenberger, 21 North Ninth St., Stroudsburg. Mrs. Eilenberger wore a light blue jacket dress with matching accessories.

The paternal grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Florence Warner, wore a pink jacket dress with matching accessories and corsage of pink rosebuds. The bride's great grandmother, Mrs. Rose Gower, wore a light blue dress with matching accessories and corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Mrs. Orien Reish, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a gold dress with a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Miss Janice Baringer assisted the guests in registering.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Stroudsburg High School. The bride is a graduate of Centenary College for Women and is employed by Jordan Surgical Group, East Stroudsburg, as a medical secretary. The bridegroom was graduated from Electronics School, New Jersey, and is employed in Easton.

After a honeymoon touring the southern states, Mr. and Mrs. Reish will make their home in East Stroudsburg.

The wedding party was entertained at a rehearsal dinner by the bridegroom's parents at Stroudsmoor.

Ratio varies

High cost vs. value

By ANNE HINKLE
Asst. Home Economist

STROUDSBURG — Higher priced foods don't necessarily mean you get higher food value. Often you spend extra pennies to buy a brand-name item, when a store-brand is just as nutritious and more suitable to your needs.

What is the main difference between foods labeled high and low quality?

Appearance of the product — Lower-quality foods may not be as aesthetically pleasing — the pieces may be smaller or broken up or they may be a mixture of sizes. In addition, flavor and color may not equal that of the more expensive products.

Appearance of the label on products — Influences your choice in the supermarket. Radio, TV and magazine advertisements tell us to buy certain brand names.

High quality store brands, which are packed especially for that store and labeled with special names, are equal to high quality brand names and usually cost two to three cents less.

High quality store brands are identified as "our finest quality" or "bond of quality." Both the high quality brand names and the high quality store brands offer you a firm, colorful and fairly uniform product.

When you are shopping, consider what you intend to use the product for. Is appearance important? If you need whole items, then select a high quality product for your use.

The Baby's Named

Bobbie Dawn Lowmaster
Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Lowmaster of Apple Lane, Sun Valley, Effort, announce the birth of a daughter on June 26, at the General Hospital, weighing seven pounds, seven ounces. The baby has been named Bobbie Dawn.

St. Matthew's Altar, Rosary reorganized

EAST STROUDSBURG — Officers were elected and fall schedule was set up at the reorganization meeting of the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church called by Msgr. Thomas J. Cawley, pastor.

Presiding at the meeting, he presented the meaning and aims of the society: to care for the altars, place flowers, care for the linens and be responsible for keeping the altars in order at all times. They are also asked to remember the sick and deceased, to promote Catholic Action, and to work in harmony with all groups.

A nominating committee, Mrs. Guy Nicholas, Mrs. Arthur Blewitt and Mrs. G.B. Dalessio presented a slate of officers who were elected and installed by Msgr. Cawley in a candlelight installation.

President, Mrs. Tomas Rosso; vice president, Mrs. David McGarry; secretary, Mrs. Kenneth Bailey; treasurer, Mrs. Herman Eitzenberger; financial secretary, Mrs. Edward Mesko.

Mrs. Rosso presided at the remainder of the meeting when plans for the year were discussed. The first meeting will be on Sept. 20 with a covered dish supper in St. Matthew's Auditorium.

The fall festival, formerly the annual bazaar, will be held on Saturday, Oct. 21 at Notre Dame High School. Volunteers willing to help are asked to call Mrs. Rosso at 421-5323.

A communion breakfast is being planned for Sunday, Nov. 12. Several other suggestions are being considered.

Book Fair flourishes as finds uncovered

STROUDSBURG — With the rush of the first day of the annual Book Fair of the American Assn. of University Women over, the members who are serving as saleswomen all this week find they still have lots of books left over in the Plaza Shops of Wyckoff's, North Sixth St.

The sorting committee has been working for months arranging the books under the many categories and the shelves and tables in the commodious Plaza Shop give them plenty of room to display their wares from reference books to paper back mysteries.

While the browsers may uncover their own rare books, the committee has already discovered such treasures as the complete works of George Eliot; leather bound 1880 edition (Holman's) of the "Holy Bible" completely illustrated.

There is also an 1881 edition of the "Life of James Garfield" and the 1890 edition of "Spinning Wheel Stories" by Louisa May Alcott. The complete works of Shakespeare in a midget edition contrasts with the three volume 1924 edition of the "Dairy of Samuel Pepys."

They also have three limited bound editions of the poems of Robert Burns, the works of George Eliot and Stearns' works.

They have "how-to" books in all categories, text books, music, art, painting, poetry, best sellers of past years.

Proceeds from the Book Fair are used to provide grants-in-aid toward college expenses for one girl in each of the four high school's graduating classes, which this year was $250 each.

From the fund, the branch also contributes to fellowships for international study.

The fair is being staffed during store hours until Saturday at noon, including evening hours. A display of art by members of the branch is held in conjunction with the show.

Barbara Lord is chairman of the fair and has been assisted by Bobbie Slee, pick-up; Bethany Scheibel, sorting; Nona Goldsmith, art; Maggie Price, book drop barrels; Anna Meixsell, scheduling and Nathalie Lutfy, publicity.

Emma Waygood wed to Russell McDonald

POCONO PINES — Mrs. Emma Waygood became the bride of Russell M. McDonald of Austell, Ga., on Saturday, June 24 at 11 a.m. in the Salem United Church of Christ, Pocono Pines with Rev. Elmer G. Meissner officiating.

The bride is the former Emma LaBarre Miller Waygood, a long time summer resident of this area and former resident of Philadelphia. She is a Smith College graduate in the class of 1914 and spent the last five winters in Penney Farms, Fla., founded by J.C. Penney 42 years ago for retired missionaries, ministers and Christian workers.

The bridegroom is a retired mathematics teacher in the Philadelphia High Schools and a Princeton graduate in the class of 1917.

Music for the wedding was provided by Mrs. William Kapell of New York who played the organ and Miss Andree Kapell who played several flute numbers.

Dr. and Mrs. E.U. Goodman of Florida and Vermont attended the couple.

Guests included Dr. and Mrs. John P. Scott and Mrs. Markley Stevenson, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McDonald of Florissant, Mo.; Miss Josephine Beach of Ivyland; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Baxter and family and Mrs. William Gross of Pocono Pines and Theodore Goodman of Morristown, N.J.

They couple are residing at Lake Naomi in Pocono Pines.

Mrs. McDonald, who has been researching and writing a book "Changing Times in the Poconos, 1882-1972," has just had the book published and it is appearing in local book stores and gift shops.

Jackson cooks preparing for carnival

REEDERS — The Jackson Twp. Volunteer Fire Co. will hold the annual carnival the week of July 10.

Everyone is asked to donate baked goods for the baked good stands. A suggested schedule for different areas has been set up to bake, although baked goods will be welcomed at any convenient night during the carnival.

The schedule is: Monday, firehouse road; Tuesday, Appenzell; Wednesday, Singertown; Thursday, Mountain Road; Friday, Reeders; Saturday, Neola.

Members are also asked to come out and volunteer their help.

Y Service Club plans summer work sessions

STROUDSBURG — The YM-CA Mothers Service Club closed their meeting year with a dinner and theatre party with 13 members making the trip.

However, they have not closed their summer activities since members will be meeting each Monday night at the Y to work on articles and novelties to be sold at the Christmas bazaar.

Mrs. Mary Katz also has yarn for those members willing to knit mittens for the Well-Baby Clinic sponsored by the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs.

Jeanne Meyer June bride

STROUDSBURG — Miss Jeanne Marie Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacques H. Meyer of Chipperfield Drive, Stroudsburg, became the bride of James Joseph Caverly on Saturday, June 24, at 2 p.m. St. Luke's Church in Stroudsburg was the setting for the nuptial folk mass celebrated by Rev. Francis G. Barrett.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Caverly of E. Kirmar St., Alden.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory princess style gown with a band of embroidered pastel flowers trimming the bodice, neckline and sleeves. She wore a sheer lace mantilla veil from Rome and carried one long-stemmed Tango rose.

Mrs. Woolsey Nebel of Saylorburg was matron of honor. She wore an orange and white organza gown with a matching orange hat and carried a long-stemmed Orange Delight rose.

Robert Caverly of Wilkes-Barre, was his brother's best man.

Ronald Meyer of Stroudsburg and Robert Meyer of Easton, brothers of the bride, served as ushers.

Music for the ceremony and reception was provided by The Inkeepers Two, Jack Wissler and Bob Harrington. Selections at the church included "The Hawaiian Wedding Song," "Kumbayah," "They'll Know We Are Christians" and "Song of Joy."

The bride's mother wore a light blue crepe dress with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige knit dress with matching accessories. Each wore a corsage of sweetheart roses.

A reception for 85 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. The four-tier wedding cake was decorated with pink roses and topped with a vase of pink rosebuds from the bride's mother's rose garden.

The bride is a graduate of Stroud Union High School and East Stroudsburg State College with a B.S. degree in education and a master of education degree in elementary education. He was employed as a probation officer by Northampton County for six years.

The couple will make their home in Chicago.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Always good for an argument, Budd Schulberg has cordially disagreed with us about practically everything. . . . One point of agreement, however, is that his most recent book, "Loser and Still Champion: Muhammad Ali," packs a punch. . . . When it comes to boxing, Budd's a pretty knowledgeable soul.

"That's one subject on which we always see eye to eye, Jack," Budd said recently. "The Sweet Science. Prize fighting. Boxing. The Manly Art. We can even discuss, with the full authority of the self-proclaimed expert, the wizardry of legendary boxers we have never seen."

"You and I came by our interests in this punishing but strangely mental sport at a tender age. There was your father-in-law, Jimmy Bronston, one of our most colorful boxing impresarios, in a mint era, the 20's and 30's. And my old man, B.P. Schulberg, rarely let his work as head of Paramount Pictures, interfere with his duties as a fight fan.

"He took me to my first fight, in the old Madison Square Garden, when I was six. Benny Leonard was facing a tough Irish challenger, Richie Mitchell. I pasted pictures of our idol into my scrapbook. B.P. was proud of knowing Benny Leonard — who would (like Cassius Clay two generations later) pick the round in which he planned to knock out his man, so that his Jewish cheering section could bet accordingly.

"It may seem unsporting to emphasize the Jewishness of Leonard, the Irish in Richie Mitchell. But I must confess that through the years of my youth I rooted for our ethnic champions — on the West Coast for little Newsboy Borwn, (Dave Montrose) and Jackie Fields (Jacob Finkelshtein) and my old favorite, Mushy Callahan (Morris Scheer). When Mushy outpointed the Nebraska Wildcat, Ace Hudkins, my proudest possessions where the boxing gloves Mushy wore in that fight. I hung them over my bed with almost religious awe.

"How nice it would be if we could become one peaceful human race free of racial barriers and suspicions. But alas, homo sapiens still clings to his tribal roots. Each tribe seems in need of symbolic heroes ready to go forth to do battle for the gen. For all our nuclear vision, we still inhabit a stone age of human emotions. In such a world, prize fights provide an emotional safety valve.

"That is why I consider Muhammad Ali a positive figure. Black people in America, so long deprived of their heritage, are in need and in quest of heroes. In Muhammad Ali they have their Benny Leonard, their Mickey Walker, their Rocky Marciano, rolled up into one irrepressible superstar.

"Misunderstood as a figure of hate, he survives as a figure of hope," Budd sermonized.

Anthony Quinn takes Greek singing lessons three days a week from Aris San at the Sirocco spot. To sing in an imminent film. It's an exuberant art form, fun to hear. . . . Fella in P. J. Clarke's the other 2 a.m. wanted to bring a lad over to our table to show owner Danny Lavezzo and us how a massive-molared gent could "bend dimes in his teeth." We said keep him away — the Greek waiter at Dionysos, best Athenian cafe in New York, picks up a whole table, dishes, glassware, silver, drinks, food and all with his teeth — and dances at the same time. The dime suddenly seemed terribly deflated. As did its latent scout. Such is saloon fame.

Newest theatre on the site of the old Astor Hotel has its noise-travail: expected operator Walter Reade says he won't operate it if the already built-in subway clamor from the IRT below keeps roaring into the gem of an auditorium. . . . Mark Harmon, who seems set to quarterback UCLA next fall, is grid Hall of Famer Tommy Harmon's chip off the old pigskin. Do they still make football from pigskin? Isn't everything plastic now?

Wilt the Stilt and Lakers owner Jack Kent Cooke had a wordy setto after they won the basketball championship. Max Kase tells us Wilt walked out of the champagne party and the rest of the team marched with Wilt.

Theaters on 42nd St. are irked at the big film chains — which sell them movies but won't include their theaters' names in the big ads. That's how terrible that one 42nd St. block (between Broadway and 8th) has come to mean, even where profits are coined. . . . And there are huge profits on that most sordid of all Manhattan streets. . . . Max Gordon, who produced some 40 of the most distinguished plays ever to decorate Broadway, asked Harry Brandt, operator of the beautiful New Amsterdam Theater where great Ziegfeld stage musicals once reigned, why he didn't return it to the legit theater. . . . Harry's very practical explanation: show him how he could get plays that would pay his theater a guaranteed $250,000 a year — which he makes with movies, good or tawdry.

Remember when Primo

Carnera was the tallest athletic specimen? That old chunk of championship gorgonzola stood a full seven inches shorter than Wilt Chamberlain and Kareem Jabbar.

Art Carney and Barbara Barrie signed to star in "Prisoner of 2nd Ave." on Bdwy., then discovered they summer next door in suburban Nyack. They save pennies commuting together. . . . Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara are straw-hatting profitably in "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," and after each curtain they come out and do their own comic act.

Ann Landers

Just habit?

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married less than three months and I must know if my husband is crazy or if I am the one.

When he goes to bed at night he always lines his shoes up so the heels are together and toes point out to form a V. When he puts his leather belt through the loops on his trousers, he always misses one loop, the one over his left kidney. Before he tosses his socks in the hamper he ties them together. I've asked him a dozen times not to but he insists he does it "unconsciously."

I'm beginning to think something is mentally wrong with him. Can you explain these strange little habits? No amount of "reminding" — such as, "you skipped one of the belt loops, dear," makes any difference. Thanks for your help, Ann.

Spooked in Spokane
Dear Spook: He is not trying to annoy you. These "strange little habits" are neurotic compulsions that have probably been with him for years. Be thankful his compulsions are harmless. Less fortunate women are married to compulsive drinkers, gamblers and skirt-chasers.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I attended a tea. I loaded my plate with creamed chicken, shoestring potatoes and a piece of pecan pie. Later when I returned to the sweet table for a piece of lemon meringue tart, I caught a blistering glance from an overweight lady who was nibbling on a soda cracker. If looks could kill I'd have died right there.

What so many fat people don't understand is that they are better off than skinny people. I battle every day of my life to put on a few ounces. What a disappointment to step on the scale after stuffing myself all week and discover I've lost half a pound! I walked around feeling overfed — painfully aware of my bony neck, angular arms and flat behind. How I envy the voluptuous, curvy women with round hips and provocative cleavage. They look healthy, fulfilled, well fed and well loved. Sign me

Forgive, forget

By Jean Adams

OLD STORY: (Q.) My boy friend just told me a story about something that happened two years ago. That was six months after we started going steady.

He said he got drunk and took another girl to bed. He cried and begged me to forgive him. He said he would never do it again.

I forgave him. Did I do the right thing? I was very hurt by what he told me, but not angry.

—Hurt in Indiana

(A.) He did the wrong thing two years ago, and he did the wrong thing to tell you two years later.

But you did the right thing when you forgave him. Do not mention it to him again.

HAIR ORDER: (Q.) I wear an Afro. My friends and relatives like it and so do I. But my mother nags me all the time about my hair. She wants me to get a skin.

The last time I had my hair cut, she told me to get it all cut off, but I didn't. So she put me on two-week restrictions. Really it is indefinite. She says I can't go anywhere until I get it cut off. I don't plan to get it cut.

16 in Virginia.

(A.) Hair is not controversial enough any longer to be the cause of a family crisis. This is what you and your mother have built up — a crisis.

Neither of you is being very mature or realistic. Show her this answer and offer to sit down and discuss with her some compromise to get you both off the hook.

GIRLS' SPORTS: (Q.) Our high school has a new girls' basketball team. I want to join it next season. I have been a cheerleader but have decided I would rather be in the game than on the sidelines.

What do boys think of girls who participate in sports?

Nearly 15 in New York State

(A.) Boys admire an athletic girl who retains her femininity — and her interest in boys.

which we always see eye to eye, Jack," Budd said recently. "The Sweet Science, Prize fighting, Boxing, The Manly Art. We can even discuss, with the full authority of the self-proclaimed expert, the wizardry of legendary boxers we have never seen.

"You and I came by our interests in this punishing but strangely mental sport at a tender age. There was your father-in-law, Jimmy Bronston, one of our most colorful boxing impresarios, in a mint era, the 20's and 30's. And my old man, B.P. Schulberg, rarely let his work as head of Paramount Pictures, interfere with his duties as a fight fan.

"He took me to my first fight, in the old Madison Square Garden, when I was six. Benny Leonard was facing a tough Irish challenger, Richie Mitchell. I pasted pictures of our idol into my scrapbook. B.P. was proud of knowing Benny Leonard — who would (like Cassius Clay two generations later) pick the round in which he planned to knock out his man, so that his Jewish cheering section could bet accordingly.

"It may seem unsporting to emphasize the Jewishness of Leonard, the Irish in Richie Mitchell. But I must confess that through the years of my youth I rooted for our ethnic champions — on the West Coast for little Newsboy Borwn, (Dave Montrose) and Jackie Fields (Jacob Finkelshtein) and my old favorite, Mushy Callahan (Morris Scheer). When Mushy outpointed the Nebraska Wildcat, Ace Hudkins, my proudest possessions where the boxing gloves Mushy wore in that fight. I hung them over my bed with almost religious awe.

"How nice it would be if we could become one peaceful human race free of racial barriers and suspicions. But alas, homo sap still clings to his tribal roots. Each tribe seems in need of symbolic heroes ready to go forth to do battle for the gen. For all our nuclear vision, we still inhabit a stone age of human emotions. In such a world, prize fights provide an emotional safety valve.

"That is why I consider Muhammad Ali a positive figure. Black people in America, so long deprived of their heritage, are in need and in quest of heroes. In Muhammad Ali they have their Benny Leonard, their Mickey Walker, their Rocky Marciano, rolled up into one irrepressible superstar.

"Misunderstood as a figure of hate, he survives as a figure of hope," Budd sermonized.

Anthony Quinn takes Greek singling lessons three days a week from Aris San at the Sirocco spot. To sing in an imminent film. It's an exuberant art form, fun to hear . . . Fella in P. J. Clarke's the other 2 a.m. wanted to bring a lad over to our table to show owner Danny Lavezzo and us how a massive-molared gent could "bend dimes in his teeth." We said keep him away — the Greek waiter at Dionysos, best Athenian cafe in New York, picks up a whole table, dishes, glassware, silver, drinks, food and all with his teeth — and dances at the same time. The dime suddenly seemed terribly deflated. As did its talent scout. Such is saloon fame.

Newest theatre on the site of the old Astor Hotel has its noise-travail: expected operator Walter Reade says he won't operate it if the already built-in subway clamor from the IRT below keeps roaring into the gem of an auditorium . . . Mark Harmon, who seems set to quarterback UCLA next fall, is grid Hall of Famer Tommy Harmon's chip off the old pigskin. Do they still make football from pigskin? Isn't everything plastic now?

Wilt the Stilt and Lakers owner Jack Kent Cooke had a wordy setto after they won the basketball championship. Max Kase tells us Wilt walked out of the champagneship party and the rest of the team marched with Wilt.

Theaters on 42nd St. are irked at the big film chains —

which sell them movies but won't include their theaters' names in the big ads. That's how terrible that one 42nd St. block (between Broadway and 8th) has come to mean, even where profits are coined . . . And there are huge profits on that most sordid of all Manhattan streets . . . Max Gordon, who produced some 40 of the most distinguished plays ever to decorate Broadway, asked Harry Brandt, operator of the beautiful New Amsterdam Theater where great Ziegfeld stage musicals once reigned, why he didn't return it to the legit theater . . . Harry's very practical explanation: show him how he could get plays that would pay his theater a guaranteed $250,000 a year — which he makes with movies, good or tawdry.

Remember when Primo

Carnera was the tallest athletic specimen? That old chunk of championship gorgonzola stood a full seven inches shorter than Wilt Chamberlain and Kareem Jabar . . .

Art Carney and Barbara Barrie signed to star in "Prisoner of 2nd Ave." on Bdwy., then discovered they summer next door in suburban Nyack. They save pennies commuting together . . . Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara are straw-hatting profitably in "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," and after each curtain they come out and do their own comic act.

Ann Landers

Just habit?

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married less than three months and I must know if my husband is crazy or if I am the one.

When he goes to bed at night he always lines his shoes up so the heels are together and toes point out to form a V. When he puts his leather belt through the loops on his trousers, he always misses one loop, the one over his left kidney. Before he tosses his socks in the hamper he ties them together. I've asked him a dozen times not to but he insists he does it "unconsciously."

I'm beginning to think something is mentally wrong with him. Can you explain these strange little habits? No amount of "reminding" — such as, "you skipped one of the belt loops, dear," makes any difference. Thanks for your help, Ann.

Spooked in Spokane

Dear Spook: He is not trying to annoy you. These "strange little habits" are neurotic compulsions that have probably been with him for years. Be thankful his compulsions are harmless. Less fortunate women are married to compulsive drinkers, gamblers and skirt-chasers.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I attended a tea. I loaded my plate with creamed chicken, shoestring potatoes and a piece of pecan pie. Later when I returned to the sweet table for a piece of lemon meringue tart, I caught a blistering glance from an overweight lady who was nibbling on a soda cracker. If looks could kill I'd have died right there.

What so many fat people don't understand is that they are better off than skinny people. I battle every day of my life to put on a few ounces. What a disappointment to step on the scale after stuffing myself all week and discover I've lost half a pound!

I walked around feeling overfed — painfully aware of my bony neck, angular arms and flat behind. How I envy the voluptuous, curvy women with round hips and provocative cleavage. They look healthy, fulfilled, well fed and well loved. Sign me

Dear Bones: Thanks for writing. I feel better already.

Forgive, forget

By Jean Adams

OLD STORY: (Q.) My boy friend just told me a story about something that happened two years ago. That was six months after we started going steady.

He said he got drunk and took another girl to bed. He cried and begged me to forgive him. He said he would never do it again.

I forgave him. Did I do the right thing? I was very hurt by what he told me, but not angry.

—Hurt in Indiana

(A.) He did the wrong thing two years ago, and he did the wrong thing to tell you two years later.

But you did the right thing when you forgave him. Do not mention it to him again.

HAIR ORDER: (Q.) I wear an Afro. My friends and relatives like it and so do I. But my mother nags me all the time about my hair. She wants me to get a skin.

The last time I had my hair cut, she told me to get it all cut off, but I didn't. So she put me on two-week restrictions. Really it is indefinite. She says I can't go anywhere until I get it cut off. I don't plan to get it cut.

Family balance sheet may provide surprise

Special to the Record
NEW YORK — How well off are Monroe County residents financially? Are they richer than they think?

Taking into account the cash savings of the average local family, together with the equity in its home, its car, personal property, furniture, insurance, pension reserves and other assets, what is its net worth?

A family balance sheet, with assets listed in one column and liabilities in another, may provide a pleasant surprise, since most people have never taken stock of how much they have acquired over the years.

Some guidance in this direction is available now, based upon local figures and upon national studies.

They show, as would be expected, there is a direct relationship between a family's average earnings and its net worth. Those in the high income brackets have assets equal to several times their annual income while those with modest incomes have accumulated proportionately less.

Applying the national yardstick to Monroe County and to the earning levels in the area, the indicated net worth of the average local family comes to approximately $21,500.

The figures apply to the so-called average family. Lumped together are all age groups—the older ones, who have been adding to their assets over the years, as well as the younger ones, who are on the way up.

For typical families in specific brackets, the estimates are as follows: those with after-tax income of $6,000 to $8,000, a net worth ranging from about $13,000 to $18,000; those with $9,000 to $12,000, from $21,000 to $38,000; and those in the $15,000 to $20,000 bracket, assets ranging from $68,000 to more than $140,000.

For the entire Monroe County population, on this basis, the total net worth is approximately $322,000,000.

On the plus side is the market value of all real estate, business interests, bank deposits, jewelry, household furnishings, clothing, appliances and other property.

Deducted from it to arrive at net worth are mortgages, installment debt, medical bills, bank loans and all other obligations.

Wimer wins math test

EAST STROUDSBURG — Scott W. Wimer, son of Dr. and Mrs. Kurt Wimer, 155 Warren St., East Stroudsburg, was recently named a winner in a nationwide contest in mathematics.

He has won a four-volume work, "The World of Mathematics," which was presented by the East Stroudsburg Jr.-Sr. High School on behalf of the Actuaries Club of Philadelphia.

The contest, sponsored jointly by the Mathematical Association of America and the Society of Actuaries, is designed to encourage wider interest in the study and application of mathematics.

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — It cost Monroe County taxpayers an average of $831.29 per pupil to send their children through school during the 1970-71 school year, as opposed to $766.13 a year earlier and the statewide average of $811.33 expenditure per pupil in average daily attendance, according to a study by the State Department of Education.

The figure does not include capital outlay and debt service — which if added brings the Monroe County tab to $934.36 per pupil ($882.59 a year earlier) in average daily attendance during the year ($973.00 for the state as a whole).

A breakdown of the so-called "current expenditure" figure of $831.29 for the county (with the preceding year noted in parenthesis in each case) shows $39.66 went for administration ($38.43); $552.67 ($514.79) for cost of instruction; $16.29 ($13.32) for pupil personnel services; $85.60 ($74.47) for operation and maintenance of school plant; $52.67 ($50.56) for fixed charges; and $84.39 ($74.53) for "other" or miscellaneous costs.

As a point of possible comparison, the following is the per pupil cost during the year on the basis of average daily membership, district by district in the county, with the total average cost including capital outlay and debt service noted in parenthesis immediately following first, or "current expenditure" per pupil figure:

East Stroudsburg Area School District — $887.42 ($992.45); Pleasant Valley School District — $727.61 ($810.25); Pocono Mountain School District — $877.53 ($1,007.72); and Stroudsburg Area School District — $797.34 ($886.34).

As for Pike County, the average cost per pupil was $884.16 ($742.03 the preceding year) in the current expenditure category and $1,035.56 ($904.04 a year earlier) in the total expenditure classification, with expenditures broken down into $53.13 ($46.97) for administration, $575.16 ($482.98) for instruction, $21.56 ($17.72) for pupil personnel services, $86.83 ($57.19) for operation and maintenance of school plant, $58.63 ($51.41) for fixed charges, and $88.85 ($85.72) for "other" costs.

Medical payments on rise

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — The State Department of Public Welfare said yesterday that medical payments were made in behalf of 549 medically needy Monroe countians during the month of March, for which final evaluation and tabulation has just been completed, at a cost of $38,771.

As a point of comparison, a year earlier 380 residents of the county were receiving medical assistance at a cost of $31,472.

Of the 549 Monroe County residents receiving the medical assistance available to needy persons, 18 were classified as receiving inpatient hospital care, 11 nursing care in the home and 65 in county institutional facilities. The remainder, largest single classification within the group of county recipients, embraced those who received physicians' services, dental services, clinic services, prescribed drugs and ambulance services — a total of 455 Monroe countians.

A breakdown of costs covering these various categories shows $15,818 paid out for inpatient hospital care during the month for county residents, $695 for nursing care in the home, $17,322 for county institution care and $4,936 for physicians' care, dental services, etc.

Miss Schmidt to receive club's dance scholarship

EAST STROUDSBURG — Nancy Schmidt, a junior physical education major at East Stroudsburg State College from Ridgewood, N.Y., has been named recipient of a full scholarship from the Contemporary Dance Club at ESSC to attend the internationally renowned Folk Dance Camp in Bridgeton, Maine.

Mary Ann and Michael Herman, directors of the camp, have taught throughout the United States as well as in Europe.

Students from ESSC have frequently attended folk dance classes at the Hermans' and on the College campus in master classes arranged by Mary Jane Wolbers, dance education specialist in the School of Health Sciences and Physical Education.

The Hermans visited ESSC during the Festival of Arts last April.

Miss Schmidt is currently attending a session at the Hermans' camp which focuses on dances of Latin and North America and the Balkans.

Family balance sheet may provide surprise

Special to the Record

NEW YORK — How well off are Monroe County residents financially? Are they richer than they think?

Taking into account the cash savings of the average local family, together with the equity in its home, its car, personal property, furniture, insurance, pension reserves and other assets, what is its net worth?

A family balance sheet, with assets listed in one column and liabilities in another, may provide a pleasant surprise, since most people have never taken stock of how much they have acquired over the years.

Some guidance in this direction is available now, based upon local figures and upon national studies.

They show, as would be expected, there is a direct relationship between a family's average earnings and its net worth. Those in the high income brackets have assets equal to several times their annual income while those with modest incomes have accumulated proportionately less.

Applying the national yardstick to Monroe County and to the earning levels in the area, the indicated net worth of the average local family comes to approximately $21,500.

The figures apply to the so-called average family. Lumped together are all age groups—the older ones, who have been adding to their assets over the years, as well as the younger ones, who are on the way up.

For typical families in specific brackets, the estimates are as follows: those with after-tax income of $6,000 to $8,000, a net worth ranging from about $13,000 to $18,000; those with $9,000 to $12,000, from $21,000 to $38,000; and those in the $15,000 to $20,000 bracket, assets ranging from $68,000 to more than $140,000.

For the entire Monroe County population, on this basis, the total net worth is approximately $322,000,000.

On the plus side is the market value of all real estate, business interests, bank deposits, jewelry, household furnishings, clothing, appliances and other property.

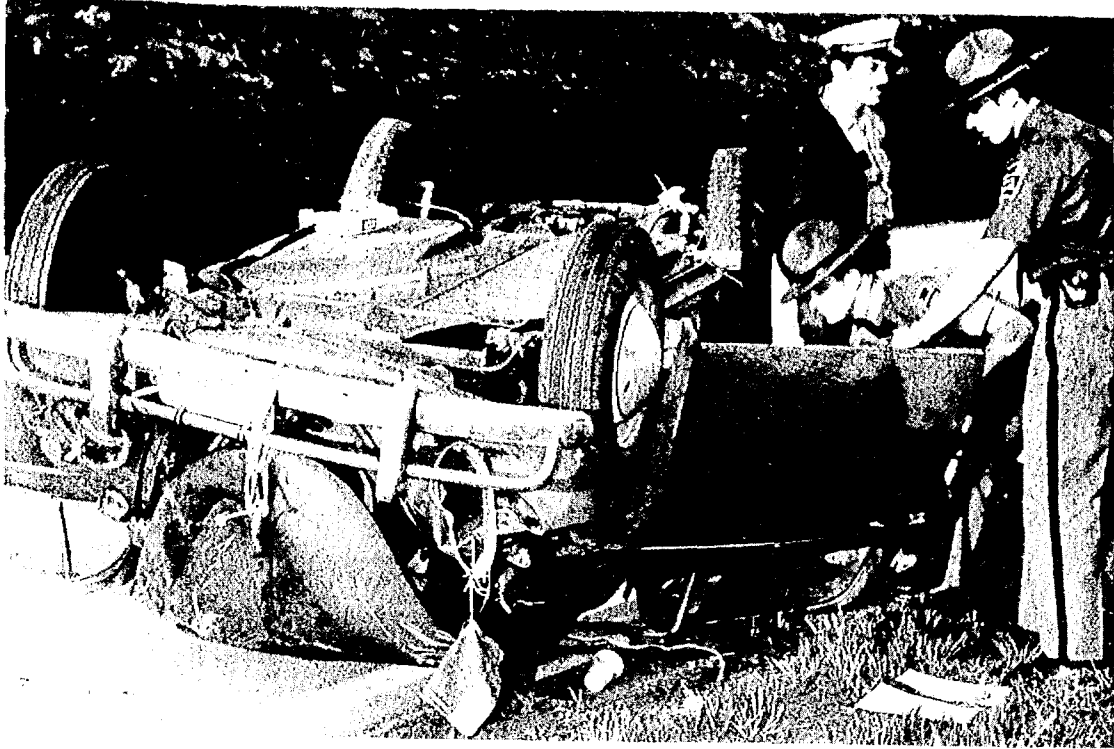

Deducted from it to arrive at net worth are mortgages, installment debt, medical bills, bank loans and all other obligations.

Residents protest 'X' films

STROUDSBURG — A protest against the advertising of X-rated movies has been registered by a "growing number" of concerned citizens — many of whom have never seen such a film.

A letter bearing the names of 42 persons recently requested the curtailment of advertising in The Pocono Record for the films.

It noted "the increasing decadence of the theater should be a matter of public concern" and asked that no more "salacious movie ads" be accepted.

"We aren't sure what the ads have to do with the quality of the films," said Alan Gould Jr., publisher of The Record. "From the petitioners' standpoint, without the ads they might not know what they didn't want people to see."

The manager for the local movie houses, Greg Tomkin, declined to comment on the petition after he couldn't reach the owner of the theaters or the general manager.

The forces against the X-rated films agreed the moves don't contribute to moral standards, but their reasons varied.

"Sex movies can not contribute to good, wholesome living," said William F. Altomose, a punch press operator who signed the petition.

He said the movies tend to condone pre-marital sex and would tempt people to cheat on their marriage.

"It is not right according to the Bible," Altomose said. "The Bible says to refrain from all appearances of evil. If a man looks upon a woman and lusts after her, he has already committed adultery in his heart."

This is also true for single men, Altomose said.

"Any person who stares at somebody with a bikini bathing suit on and has evil thoughts about that woman... then he has committed adultery in his mind."

Reasoning against the X-rated films took a less Biblical vein when stated by Timothy and Barbara Wagner, both signers of the letter.

Wagner is an associate professor of physics at East Stroudsburg State College. His wife is a physician.

"We feel a lot of these movies are pornography and they don't serve any useful purpose in the community," Professor Wagner said.

Stating neither he nor his wife had ever been to an X-rated movie, Wagner said he thought the films may distort sex because of the "greater than life" aspect of film producing in general.

"Maybe the films are nothing like the advertisements, Wagner said. "Maybe we should go to one and see."

Dr. Wagner said she believed the type of sex portrayed in the X-rated movies may not be healthy. "I personally believe sex is something for marriage and the family and not for mere curiosity."

The Wagners said they were concerned about college students flocking to the films.

Dr. A. John Dodds, professor of history at ESSC, gave his reasons for signing the petition as:

"I think these movies are a disgrace and have a bad effect on the young people. They place money values above human values."

Dodds said he thought the makers of the films could be prosecuted for pornography, but that would depend on the type of men in office today.

"The type of men who are in office are not disposed to exercise police powers with respect to public morals," Dodds said.

He conceded public morality is a question of values, but stated there is a certain line to be drawn with respect to what the public should be allowed to see.

There is a good argument in the fact people don't have to go to these movies, Dodds said, but he cited Plato's advocacy of control over the music and reading that people should be allowed to consume.

"We may be becoming an amoral nation," Dodds said. "I think it is a carry-over from dishonesty in public life and a general breakdown in government."

Another protester who refused to be identified, took a less theoretical approach by saying, "The movies are too sensuous. I know that because you hear people talking about them. I think these types of films are corrupting the morals of people."

And listening to other people talk about the films — is that corrupting?

"I am above those things. I don't feel it," was the answer.

TIRAC director resigns, further weakening unit

STROUDSBURG — The Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council (TIRAC) has been dealt yet another in a series of stinging blows with the resignation of its director-secretary.

In a letter to TIRAC Chairman Stephen Hayes, Thomas Klock said he intends to resign his post with the council on Sept. 30, culminating five years on the staff of the seven-county agency.

This may mark the end of the seven-year old council, predicts one TIRAC member. The organization has been fraught with recent tensions, as Pike County plans to withdraw Dec. 31 and TIRAC has refused to evolve into a regional planning body.

The latter decision is anticipated to cut off all federal and state grants to the advisory group and shrink its annual budget from $118,000 to $30,000.

Elwood Hintz, a past TIRAC member for four years during his term as a Monroe County commissioner, said Tuesday of Klock's resignation, "This is just about the end of TIRAC."

"I personally think it is too bad because the voice of any single county is just a very weak voice and TIRAC certainly was a unified voice over the seven-county area."

Thomas Klock

A "firm believer" there will be a Tocks Island dam, Hintz maintained dam construction could be a "blessing in disguise," causing the region's counties to recognize their common problems and unite to solve them.

With TIRAC drastically weakened by the members' unanimous June 10 vote to remain strictly an advisory group, Hintz attributed the move to "certain people connected with TIRAC who are out to stop the dam and TIRAC and everything else."

He said he "wouldn't be a bit surprised" to see Monroe County turn to the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania to satisfy the needs previously served by TIRAC.

"And here I say we're selfish. We show our sympathy and concern for people as long as we have some certain benefits," Hintz contended.

He added with Monroe County Commissioners Nancy Shukaitis and William Quinn opposing the dam, the council has been further weakened.

In his letter to Hayes, Klock said he intends to use his last three months to complete TIRAC's outstanding programs.

These include a comprehensive regional planning project, an interstate regional solid waste management study and a demonstration program on regional environmental design — all federally funded before new government agency guidelines set a preference for awarding grants to planning bodies over advisory groups.

Much accomplished Despite "anxieties, concerns and uncertainty" associated with TIRAC over the past years, Klock believes much has been accomplished, including "providing the region with a unified voice in the Tocks Island projects, a strong coordinating mechanism among all the various state and federal agencies, and a series of long range plans relating to growth and development in the region."

"On the last item, it is a personal satisfaction to see that TIRAC's planning efforts are being given serious consideration on all government levels," he wrote.

Mrs. Shukaitis and Quinn both expressed uncertainty Tuesday over TIRAC's future. But, if the council does continue, Mrs. Shukaitis said TIRAC's decision to remain an advisory group should not hinder its ability to receive funding grants.

"I don't see why we had to assume that was the end of federal grants," she maintained, claiming each of the counties could simultaneously apply for grants through their respective federal clearing house districts to provide funds for TIRAC's regional programs.

"I don't see how they could reject a legitimate request as long as each of the counties show their need," she added.

Hayes said Tuesday he intends to call a special TIRAC executive board session in the near future to discuss Klock's resignation.

"Something has to be done if we are going to go ahead," he declared.

Team to cover Miami

STROUDSBURG — A special reporting team of five members has been assembled to provide readers of The Pocono Record and other members of the Ottaway newspaper group with local and state coverage from next week's National Democratic Convention in Miami Beach.

Managing editor Ron Bouchard announced the plan for localized coverage to be teletyped to The Record from convention hall by newsmen representing Ottaway News Service (ONS).

"The ONS team," Bouchard said, "will be filing local and state stories that traditionally are all but ignored by the national news services and other news media."

"As a first priority, they will report activities of the delegates elected to represent the 20th and 29th Senatorial Districts, which cover the Poconos."

The ONS news team will also cover the more general news of the 137-member Pennsylvania delegation, attending caucuses and following action of the delegation on and off the convention floor.

Assignments set Assignments for the ONS convention team are being made on a geographical basis.

David Lynch of the Ottaway News Service Washington Bureau will be responsible for coverage of the pro-McGovern Massachusetts delegation; Kenneth Slack, public affairs editor of the Danbury News-Times, will cover the split Connecticut delegation; Edmund P. Klein, ONS bureau chief at Albany, will handle the large and heavily McGovern New York group; and Tim Metz, ONS chief, will cover the diverse Pennsylvania delegates.

"While coverage assignments are basically geographic," Bouchard said, "readers of The Record will also receive reports involving other parts of the Northeast that have an interest and appeal that is wider than one state."

Police unification rejected by Smithfield supervisors

MARSHALLS CREEK — The proposed consolidation of Pennsylvania State Police in Monroe County has been rejected by the Smithfield Township Supervisors.

Supervisors believe the action—for which no timetable has been announced—would lower police protection in their township and have sent letters to Gov. Shapp and area legislators decrying the possible move.

The state purchased about eight acres of land about two years ago in Swiftwater, with plans to consolidate the Stroudsburg, Mount Pocono and Fern Ridge barracks.

Bids for a building to house the men haven't even been sent yet, according to a state police spokesman. The spokesman said a prime reason for the proposal is to free policemen tied to desk jobs at the three barracks.

John Zukowski, chairman of the supervisors, said the reason for the letter was to remind governmental officials Smithfield Township needs more protection.

"It's a matter of common sense that if you reduce the number of barracks, you've got to reduce the number of men and consequently the coverage," contends Samuel Newman, township solicitor.

Newman said he has seen no statement claiming state police plan to increase the number of men in Monroe County.

He also said the federal government is "dragging its heels" in providing coverage in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area.

The letter sent to Gov. Shapp, Senators T. Newell Wood and Jeannette Reibman, and representatives William Foster and Russell Kowalshyn reads in part:

"As you know, there is an increasing police protection problem in the area of the Tocks Island Dam and National Recreation Area, which is located in large measure, in Smithfield Township."

"The closing of the barracks in Stroudsburg will only serve to reduce the measure of police protection available."

"As the township is small, with a relatively large tax base, it finds itself financially unable to support its own township police force. Therefore, it is very much dependent upon the police protection afforded by the state police."

"We very strongly feel that rather than closing this barracks, the amount of police protection afforded by the state police should be increased, not decreased."

ESSC scatters student teachers

EAST STROUDSBURG — Student teachers from East Stroudsburg State College were placed in 11 Pennsylvania counties in 46 school districts and in four districts in New Jersey, according to a report prepared by Dr. Lester J. Bowers, ESSC, director of student teaching.

A number of innovative programs were also conducted on an experimental basis during the school year. Two student teachers were assigned to the English department at East Stroudsburg High School for a full semester. Normally, student teachers are assigned to specific cooperating teachers.

Through this experience, the students were able to gain insights as to what goes on in a total teaching program, through exposure to more levels of ability, more varied backgrounds and grade levels and different groupings of students. Dr. Bowers said the program will be continued during the next school year.

Student teachers assigned to East Stroudsburg High were also assigned a mini-lesson for presentation. In both instances, the courses were adopted as a part of the school's mini-course elective program.

Another pilot program conducted during the year was the assignment of students in the public nursing curriculum to a field experience situation. Students worked with the public school nurse in this program, which also will be continued next year.

A breakdown of assignments indicates 171 students taught in the elementary area, 114 at the secondary level, 166 in physical education, 12 in speech correction and 12 in public nursing.

ESSC receives $30,000 grant

EAST STROUDSBURG — Congressman Fred B. Rooney has been advised by Department of Health, Education and Welfare officials that East Stroudsburg State College has been awarded nearly $30,000 in funds for Work-Study Program recipients through June 30, 1973.

Governor tours Kingston as cleanup effort continues

KINGSTON — Gov. Milton J. Shapp toured flood-ravaged Kingston over the holiday weekend, stopping for about 25 minutes in the section being cleaned by East Stroudsburg's Co. "C." 109th mechanized infantry unit of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

While Tuesday was a holiday for most Americans, it wasn't for the residents of Wyoming Valley and Co. "C."

Most Kingston residents joined Guardsmen in a 12-hour work day. The only fireworks, according to one Guardsman, were the "explosions" caused by front end loaders crunching into tons of debris piled in the streets.

Sgt. Dennis Moyer, of 532 W. Pennsylvania Ave., Pen Argyl, noted "no one likes being away from home for an extended period of time, but by working holidays and weekends, the job will be completed faster and we'll possibly be home sooner."

"There's a job to be done here and I'm willing," said Specialist Fourth Class Harold Marvin, of Stroudsburg. "I know the men are willing to give up a holiday to clean up this town."

At this time, the state order to active duty has not become a federal one. P.F.C. Bob Jabarra, of Mount Pocono, said many of the men are showing concern over this.

Issuance of federalization orders could result in the substitution of the present active duty stint for annual two-week federal mandate summer encampment.

This year, it was scheduled for July 1-15 at Camp Drum, N.Y.

SPCA shelters open doors to pets caught in flooding

PHILADELPHIA — Agents at the four rural branches of the Pennsylvania SPCA are working to help animals and their owners in flood-stricken areas.

Free food and emergency shelter are being provided for all pets whose owners have lost their homes in the disaster.

Anyone who has lost a pet is urged to visit the shelters as soon as possible to identify their animals.

Donations of canned and dry pet foods, dog houses, and money are urgently needed. They may be sent to the branch office at Stroudsburg R.D. 1. Checks and money orders should be made out to The Pennsylvania SPCA Flood Relief.

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Borough Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in council chambers of the Municipal Building. The regular meeting date of the first Tuesday in the month was changed because of the July 4 holiday.

Farmers' lament: 'A few mistakes and you're out'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a two-part series dealing with the financial plight of Monroe County's farmers which was brought to light recently as the federal government froze wholesale and retail farm product prices and kept alive the possibility raw farm products may yet be frozen.

BY ANDREA B. STERN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — John Schultz is one of the largest dairy farmers in Monroe County — yet his annual income would qualify him for welfare payments.

And Schultz's predicament appears typical from the somber cries raised by county farmers threatened with a price ceiling on their raw products — many of which today bring them the same prices as 20 years ago.

Schultz turned to farming in 1955 because he thought it had a future. Now, he's not so sure.

"Back prior to World War II and until 1950 farming was good. Land prices were low, taxes were down and you could make a decent living," he recalls.

"But today we're still getting the same prices for commodities that we got then and we're paying out more in expenses. And land assessment for school taxes has hit us hard."

Schultz began operating his father-in-law's Snyder'sville farm in 1960.

"You could buy land anywhere in the county for $250 an acre then," he notes. "Today it's $1,000 an acre and, while our land assessment rises, our commodities stay the same."

Although all the feed raised by Schultz is turned back to his cows, he's forced to buy more because he "just doesn't have enough land."

Farmers gamble "I'm making a larger gross profit on 55 cows now than on 36 cows a few years ago, but the net profit has stayed the same because of expenses increases," he winces.

"It just seems that we're the biggest gamblers in the world. We go to the bank in the spring to borrow money for feed and fertilizer and hope like crazy we get a good growing season or we have nothing to pay them back."

Working a six and a half day week, Schultz is usually out at the barn at 6 a.m., cutting off some 15 hours later. He used to employ three full-time workers but the price of labor has risen and now he works alone, assisted only by his young children.

"I've had to go more and more to automation," he explains. "I've already automated 75 per cent and I'm thinking of going the rest of the way but that means more expense and more debt. A little sickness to the herd, a few management mistakes and you're out. It's just that simple."

Schultz tries to buy new machinery whenever possible to prevent depreciation which means "paying off a note or two" each year. But he believes the only way a farmer can stay in business today is through efficiency — trimming on labor, and by using labor-saving equipment and machinery that can cover the ground more quickly.

If the government freezes milk prices he thinks he could become still more efficient and "be able to cope" — providing the prices of machinery, feed and fertilizer remain constant.

At this point, he says a solution must rest outside of the farming community. He remembers a farmers' decision to unionize in 1964 caused a near disaster.

Caught in drought "I had just started farming then and, caught in the middle of a drought, decided to breed dairy cows to beef."

"The organization decided to put a squeeze on the consumer and stopped beef shipments to raise the price. You couldn't get anything to auction because you couldn't cross the picket lines."

Schultz says the only ones hurt by that strike were the farmers.

"The farmer had his bills to pay, but couldn't get his animals to slaughter so they quit the strike after three weeks. But the cows came to auction all at once. The buyers just looked at each other and winked. No one bid against each other and the prices dropped. The steer I sent brought five cents a pound because the market was flooded."

"But the slaughter houses had a field day. The packing houses raised their prices to the consumer and, at the same time, filled up their warehouses for a fraction of what it normally cost them."

Why isn't there some assistance from the government?

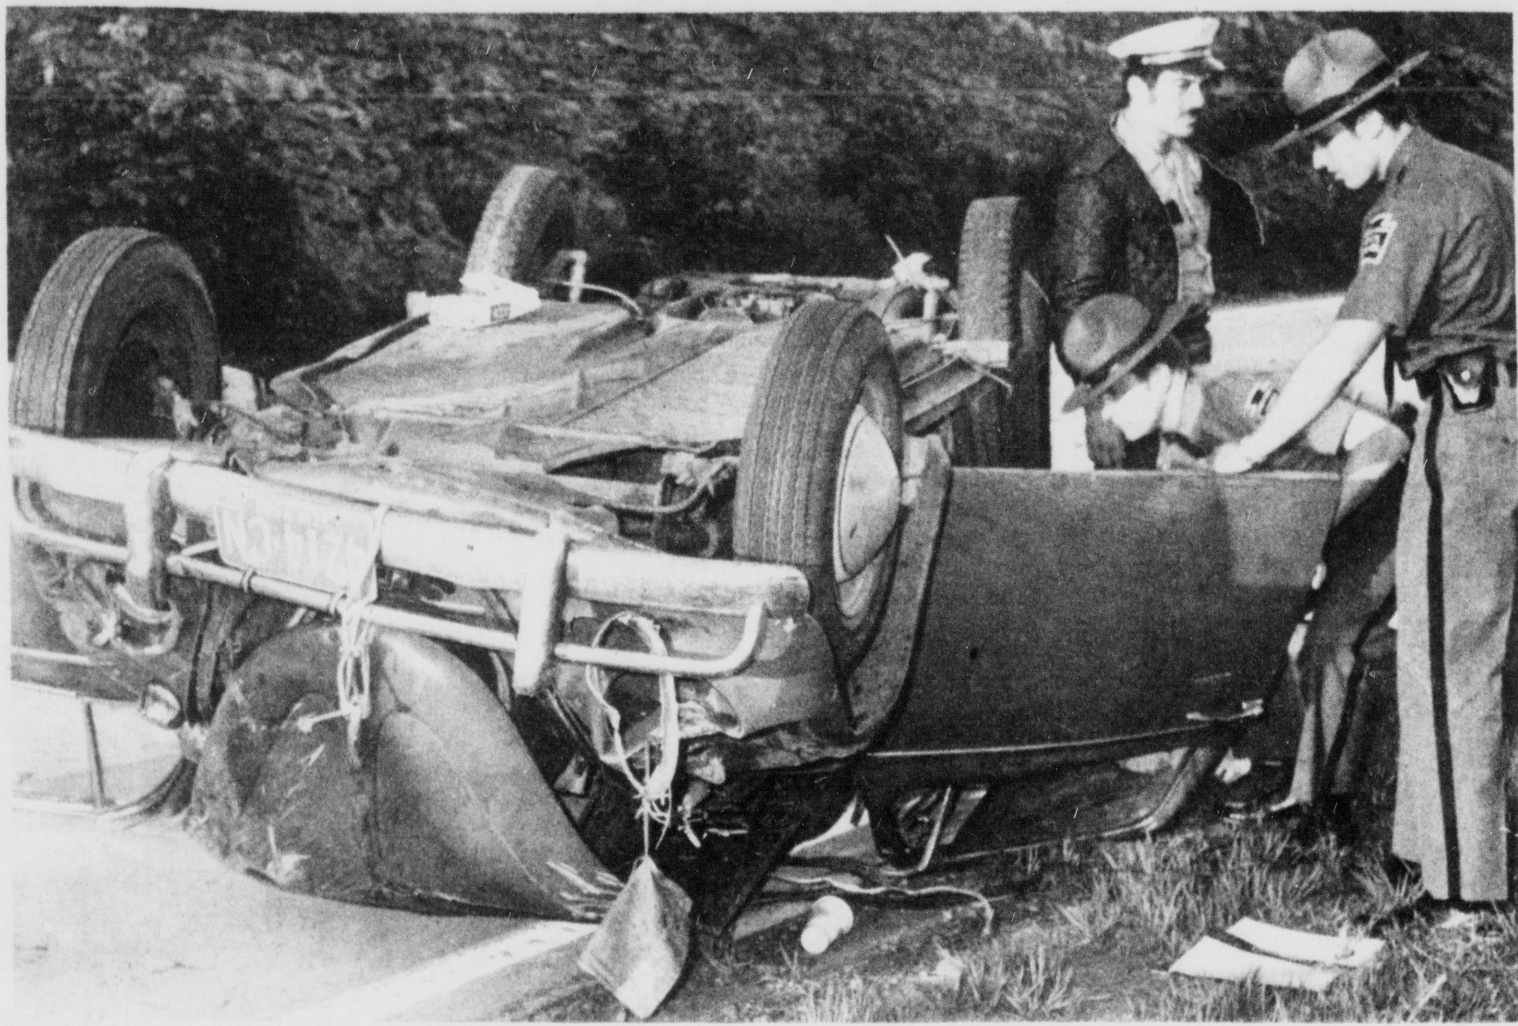

"Farmers make up only two per cent of the vote," Schultz claims. If the consumer goes to the store and has to pay high prices during one administration and another comes along, that man will get elected."

Schultz is discouraged. He has stayed with farming for the same reason he initially began it 17 years ago — he believes it has a future.

"With only two per cent of the population in farming, by the law of supply and demand, profits should go up," he explains. "I like to farm — even though the hours are long — that's a big part of it."

"Maybe there is a living here. That's what keeps us in it. — That and a heavy mortgage hanging over our heads."

Supervisors believe the action—for which no timetable has been announced—would lower police protection in their township and have sent letters to Gov. Shapp and area legislators decrying the possible move.

The state purchased about eight acres of land about two years ago in Swiftwater, with plans to consolidate the Stroudsburg, Mount Pocono and Fern Ridge barracks.

Bids for a building to house the men haven't even been sent yet, according to a state police spokesman. The spokesman said a prime reason for the proposal is to free policemen time to desk jobs at the three barracks.

John Zukowski, chairman of the supervisors, said the reason for the letter was to remind governmental officials Smithfield Township needs more protection.

"It's a matter of common sense that if you reduce the number of barracks, you've got to reduce the number of men and consequently, the coverage," contends Samuel Newman, township solicitor.

Newman said he has seen no statement claiming state police plan to increase the number of men in Monroe County.

He also said the federal government is "dragging its heels" in providing coverage in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area.

The letter sent to Gov. Shapp, Senators T. Newell Wood and Jeannette Reibman, and representatives William Foster and Russell Kowalshyn reads in part:

"As you know, there is an increasing police protection problem in the area of the Tocks Island Dam and National Recreation Area, which is located in large measure, in Smithfield Township.

"The closing of the barracks in Stroudsburg will only serve to reduce the measure of police protection available.

"As the township is small, with a relatively large tax base, it finds itself financially unable to support its own township police force. Therefore, it is very much dependent upon the police protection afforded by the state police.

"We very strongly feel that rather than closing this barracks, the amount of police protection afforded by the state police should be increased, not decreased."

ESSC scatters student teachers

EAST STROUDSBURG — Student teachers from East Stroudsburg State College were placed in 11 Pennsylvania counties in 46 school districts and in four districts in New Jersey, according to a report prepared by Dr. Lester J. Bowers, ESSC, director of student teaching.

A number of innovative programs were also conducted on an experimental basis during the school year. Two student teachers were assigned to the English department at East Stroudsburg High School for a full semester. Normally, student teachers are assigned to specific cooperating teachers.

Through this experience, the students were able to gain insights as to what goes on in a total teaching program, through exposure to more levels of ability, more varied backgrounds and grade levels and different groupings of students. Dr. Bowers said the program will be continued during the next school year.

Student teachers assigned to East Stroudsburg High were also assigned a mini-lesson for presentation. In both instances, the courses were adopted as a part of the school's mini-course elective program.

Another pilot program conducted during the year was the assignment of students in the public nursing curriculum to a field experience situation. Students worked with the public school nurse in this program, which also will be continued next year.

A breakdown of assignments indicates 171 students taught in the elementary area, 114 at the secondary level, 166 in physical education, 12 in speech correction and 12 in public nursing.

ESSC receives $30,000 grant

EAST STROUDSBURG — Congressman Fred B. Rooney has been advised by Department of Health, Education and Welfare officials that East Stroudsburg State College has been awarded nearly $30,000 in funds for Work-Study Program recipients through June 30, 1973.

claims. If the consumer goes to the store and has to pay high prices during one administration and another comes along, that man will get elected."

Schultz is discouraged. He has stayed with farming for the same reason he initially began it 17 years ago — he believes it has a future.

"With only two per cent of the population in farming, by the law of supply and demand, profits should go up," he explains. "I like to farm — even though the hours are long — that's a big part of it."

"Maybe there is a living here. That's what keeps us in it. — That and a heavy mortgage hanging over our heads."

At this point, he says a solution must rest outside of the farming community. He remembers a farmers' decision to unionize in 1964 caused a near disaster.

Caught in drought
"I had just started farming then and, caught in the middle of a drought, decided to breed dairy cows to beef."

"The organization decided to put a squeeze on the consumer and stopped beef shipments to raise the price. You couldn't get anything to auction because you couldn't cross the picket lines."

Schultz says the only ones hurt by that strike were the farmers.

"The farmer had his bills to pay, but couldn't get his animals to slaughter so they quit the strike after three weeks. But the cows came to auction all at once. The buyers just looked at each other and winked. No one bid against each other and the prices dropped. The steer I sent brought five cents a pound because the market was flooded.

"But the slaughter houses had a field day. The packing houses raised their prices to the consumer and, at the same time, filled up their warehouses for a fraction of what it normally cost them."

Why isn't there some assistance from the government?

"Farmers make up only two per cent of the vote," Schultz

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Pearson outfoxed Richard Petty and Bobby Allison in a three-way duel Tuesday to win the Firecracker 400 stock car race by a scant three feet in his Wood Brothers Mercury.

Pearson, filling in for the injured A. J. Foyt, grabbed the lead with 15 miles left and blocked repeated efforts by Petty and Allison to overtake him in the scary dash to the finish line.

Petty grabbed second place in his Dodge with Allison's Chevrolet sticking close to his bumper for third place.

Pearson, winning his fourth superspeedway race this year, averaged 160.821 miles per hour in the accident-free race, which was slowed only twice for 16 laps by caution flags. There were 23 lead changes involving six drivers.

The 37-year-old Pearson, who won the Firecracker when it was a 250-mile race in 1961, said he was surprised Petty was not able to pass him on the long back stretch on the final lap.

"Richard was running a little bit stronger than I was up the straightaway. I was kind of ticked when he didn't pass because I didn't think he could get by me from the fourth turn to the finish line."

STROUDSBURG — Brian Metzgar pitched a two-hitter Tuesday as Bowmanstown moved back into first place in the Pocono Mountain Baseball League with an 11-1 win over Kunkletown.

Paradise, which had gone into Tuesday's action in the lead, was dropped, 6-3, by Paradise while West End routed Redders, 11-2, in the league's other game.

Metzgar allowed just a second inning single to Denny Frantz and Rick Meixsell's fourth inning double in Bowmanstown's victory.

Ron Spinner struck out 12 and scattered seven hits to lead Saylorsburg to its victory over Paradise. Harry Possinger collected three hits, drove in three runs and scored two to lead West End to its win as Bob Staples fired a four-hitter.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Pearson outfoxed Richard Petty and Bobby Allison in a three-way duel Tuesday to win the Firecracker 400 stock car race by a scant three-feet in his Wood Brothers Mercury.

Pearson, filling in for the injured A. J. Foyt, grabbed the lead with 15 miles left and blocked repeated efforts by Petty and Allison to overtake him in the scary dash to the finish line.

Petty grabbed second place in his Dodge with Allison's Chevrolet sticking close to his bumper for third place.

Pearson, winning his fourth super-

speedway race this year, averaged 160.821 miles per hour in the accident-free race, which was slowed only twice for 16 laps by caution flags. There were 23 lead changes involving six drivers.

The 37-year-old Pearson, who won the Firecracker when it was a 250-mile race in 1961, said he was surprised Petty was not able to pass him on the long back stretch on the final lap.

"Richard was running a little bit stronger than I was up the straightaway, I was kind of tickled when he didn't pass because I didn't think he could get by me from the fourth turn to the finish line.

Leader changes in P.M.

STROUDSBURG — Brian Metzgar pitched a two-hitter Tuesday as Bowmanstown moved back into first place in the Pocono Mountain Baseball League with an 11-1 win over Kunkletown.

Paradise, which had gone into Tuesday's action in the lead, was dropped, 6-3, by Paradise while West End routed Reiders, 11-2, in the league's other game.

Metzgar allowed just a second inning single to Denny Frantz and Rick Meixsell's fourth inning double in Bowmanstown's victory.

Ron Spinner struck out 12 and scattered seven hits to lead Saylorsburg to its victory over Paradise. Harry Possinger collected three hits, drove in three runs and scored two to lead West End to its win as Bob Staples fired a four-hitter.

Seaver loses no-hit bid in ninth; Mets gain split

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tom Seaver pitched the fourth one-hitter of his career, allowing only a one-out ninth inning single to Leron Lee as New York won the opener 2-0, but San Diego's Derrell Thomas drove in the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning of the nightcap to give the Padres a split of the Independence Day double-header with a 4-2 victory.

Seaver, who has pitched one-hitters in each of the previous three seasons, had allowed the Padres only four walks until Lee's clean single to centerfield. Nate Colbert then grounded into a game-ending double

American eliminated at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Jimmy Connors, one-half of America's teen-age tennis combo, was eliminated at Wimbledon Tuesday, leaving 17-year-old Chris Evert in the spotlight on center court Wednesday for her long-awaited showdown match with Evonne Goolagong.

Top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif. was the only American to make it to the men's semi-finals with a 6-2, 8-6, 6-2 victory over Alex Metreveli of Russia while Connors, the 19-year-old sensation from Belleville, Ill. was losing to Ilie Nastase of Romania 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.

Homer backs pair as Indians win

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Mike Kilkenny and Dick Tidrow combined for a four-hit shutout and John Lowenstein belted a two-run homer Tuesday as the Cleveland Indians snapped an eight-game losing streak with a 2-0 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Kilkenny struck out five of the first six batters he faced but had to leave the game in the third inning when a double-play ball was hit back to the Cleveland left hander by Ted Kubiak and broke an index finger on his throwing hand. Tidrow came in to blank the Rangers on four hits to post his fifth victory.

San Francisco in one match, with defending champion Miss Goolagong of Australia taking on Miss Evert of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. in the other.

Of course, it's the match between Miss Evert and Miss Goolagong that will attract the most attention.

Connors and Miss Evert had been trying to make it a teen-age surprise American sweep in the traditional Wimbledon tournament and they even caused quite a stir off the court when British newspapers ran a picture of them holding hands on a date.

The two teen-agers insisted they were just friends and there was no romance but the fortunes of the two teen-agers have been linked throughout the tourney.

Now with Connors on the sidelines, it's up to Chris to keep the teen-agers' hopes alive. Her match with Miss Goolagong, who won the Wimbledon tourney last year at age 19, has been talked about by tennis fans for the last year.

Last year Miss Evert didn't enter Wimbledon while Miss Goolagong didn't enter Forest Hills when Chris stunned the tennis world by making it to the semi-finals at age 16 before losing to Mrs. King. Now this will be the first meeting for Chris and Evonne.

It's generally agreed that Miss Goolagong has more natural talent although her play in this tourney has been somewhat erratic and she easily loses her concentration. Miss Evert, though, has a steadier game and her forte is concentration. Schooled for many years on Florida tennis courts by her father Jimmy Evert, a tennis instructor, she never seems to lose her poise and has been the darling of the tournament.

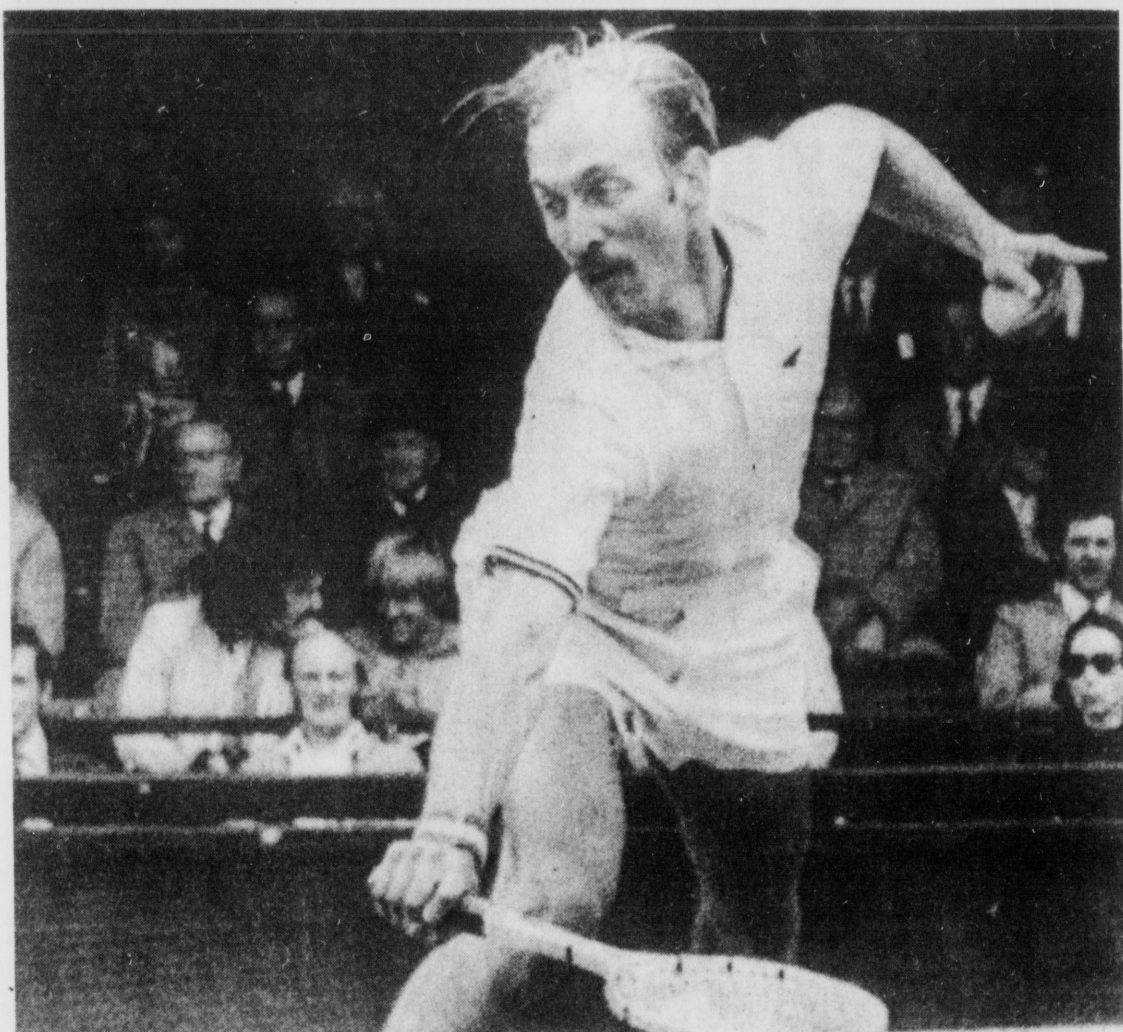

Connors was not too disappointed by his loss. "I didn't think I'd get past the first round. To get to the quarters was quite an experience, as was playing Nastase today," he said.

He paid tribute to the Romanian who "was just more consistent. I played as well as I could and think I did myself justice. He played just great. If he hadn't played quite so well I think I could have beaten him, but he was consistent and just great. That's all there was to it."

Nastase, who has the finest touch game of any of the survivors, showed the 19-year-old Connors that heart is not enough. He hit winners from shots the teen-ager thought would win him points, while his passing shots were straight out of the textbook.

In both the opening sets, Nastase broke early but was hauled back to 4-4. Each time he nosed ahead 5-4.

Afterwards Nastase said: "I got a bad draw. I was surprised to be seeded second on grass, but I guess things have worked out. All those hard matches last week have helped play me in."

Top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., displays winning form against Alex Metreveli of Russia during men's singles quarter-finals Sunday. Smith was the only American to make it to the men's semi-finals with a 6-2, 8-6, 6-2 victory over Metreveli. (UPI Wirephoto)

Rose's double highlights end of St. Louis' streak

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Pete Rose's bases-loaded double highlighted a five-run second inning which carried the Cincinnati Reds and Ross Grimsley to a 6-1 victory and ended the St. Louis Cardinals' winning streak at seven games Tuesday.

The victim of Rose's three-run double was Scipio Spinks, who was tagged with his fifth loss against five victories. Spinks, who retired with a wrenched right knee after sliding into home plate in the third inning, gave up three hits and walked four during the two innings he pitched.

The Reds added their sixth run in the third inning when

That continental breakfast skimpy

NEW YORK (UPI)—Travelers going overseas this summer may find that the traditional European breakfast doesn't give them much energy for a day of sightseeing, a nutrition expert says.

"To do the Louvre thoroughly, it's rumored that one must walk 22 miles," Adelle Davis says. "Yet the continental breakfast of rolls, coffee and marmalade was never designed to promote energy production. Nor are late European dinners conducive to early morning appetites."

Miss Davis gave her nutritional tips for travelers in the June-July issue of Travel & Leisure.

She recommended approximately 20 grams of protein per meal—the amount in two eggs and a glass of milk or a large steak. A continental breakfast provides only two to four grams, she said.

Vitamin B is another essential. Both vitamin B and protein are available in liver and brewers' yeast, she said.

"When my husband and I travel abroad, I sit together equal parts of food yeast—the best source of B vitamins—and powdered milk which is extremely high in protein," she wrote. She packages this in envelopes containing 1-4 cup each, which is mixed in juice at breakfast. When they travel in Asian countries where protein is not prominent in the diet, they take the mixture with each meal.

Miss Davis admitted that yeast is not very tasty.

"However, it seems wise to remember that taste lasts only seconds compared to the benefit of long hours of energy you could derive," she said.

The nutritionist recommended eating one or two cups of yogurt a day, beginning several weeks before vacation, to prevent dysentery. The yogurt bacteria breaks milk sugar into lactic acid discouraging the growth of pathogenic organisms, she explained.

"Two or three yogurt tablets a day can be taken by people who do not like yogurt."

"By all means, take vitamin C with you, either powder or 500-milligram tablets," she said. She recommends a teaspoonful, four grams, taken in juice daily or two or more tablets with each meal. A teaspoonful of vitamin C or six to eight tablets every two hours can be helpful in case of infection or an allergy attack.

Miss Davis feels that while multivitamin supplements usually lack about half the B vitamins, they are sufficient for a short vacation.

For travelers on a hectic schedule, Miss Davis recommends one antistress tablet, containing several B vitamins and 100 milligrams of panthothenic acid, with each meal.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — You might think that Woody Allen, author, comedian, and man-about-nonsense, would be easy to interview. . . . Actually, he is. . . . Mainly because we didn't have to ask him any questions. . . . He just asked the ones he wanted to answer.

Q: You have two big movies out this summer, "Play It Again, Sam," and "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex (But Were Afraid to Ask)." Could you tell me something about them?

A: Yes. "Play It Again, Sam" is about a guy who can't develop any kind of relationship at all with women. "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex" isn't.

Q: The film version of "Play It Again, Sam" is one of the biggest hits of your career. I understand you wholly attribute its success to the fact that it was made when the moon was in Scorpio?

A: That's right. As you probably know, the only other Hollywood movies ever made during a similar astrological period were "Pride of the St. Louis Browns," "The Al Braunschweig Story,"

"Guadalcanal Memo" and "Two Girls and a Myopic."

Q: But they were all flops.

A: See? The law of averages.

Q: Well, what about "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex"? Will it be like Dr. Reuben's book?

A: No. All we're using from the book is the title and the binding.

Q: Interesting. Can you give me some idea of what the movie's about?

A: Yes. It tells you virtually everything you could ever hope to know about every aspect of the sexual experience. It's based on a blind date I once had in Bayonne, New Jersey.

Q: I see. While we're on that subject, there's been word of late that the inept figure you cut as a lover on screen has no relationship to your real life, that you're quite a devil of a screen.

A: That's true. As a matter of fact, I'm flying next month to receive Masters and Johnson's first annual Man of the Year award.

Q: And yet it would seem you have yet to meet the perfect woman.

A: Not true. I once did meet the perfect woman.

Q: And?

A: She was perfect. What did she need me for?

Q: Well, what about your life away from the screen? Any unusual interests or hobbies?

A: I don't know. I spend a lot of time talking to trees.

Q: You talk to the trees? You enjoy talking to trees?

A: No, not really. But at least with trees, I don't have to worry about my grammar.

Q: Back to your hobbies. Do you collect anything, for instance?

A: Yes. Neuroses. The last time I counted, I had over 15,000 neuroses. I keep most of them stored under my bed, so they'll be handy at night.

Q: But I don't understand. After so many years in analysis, why should you have so many neuroses?

Ann Landers

Life saver

Dear Ann Landers: Do you ever wonder if your articles do any good? It might give you a lift to know that you saved my life. I was completely shattered when I picked up the downstairs phone and heard my husband make plans to meet my best friend. When he kissed me goodbye and said, "Don't wait up for me. It will be a late meeting," I thought my heart would break.

I collapsed in a chair and reached for a book, any book to take my mind off my misery. Several of your old columns fell out. I had clipped them from the Akron Beacon Journal. The first column I read was dated March 24,

1971. It was signed, "Territorial Imperative." The woman wrote, "Every man is vulnerable at some time during his life, no matter how faithful, strong and honorable. The most wonderful husband in the world can have feet of clay."

I read that column over and over and over. It was as if someone had pulled the curtains and let the sunshine in. I told myself I could wait. I prayed for strength and patience.

I know for certain he will come back to me one day and when he does I will welcome him with open arms.

There must be thousands of women in your reading audience who will be faced with this problem sooner or later. Not all of them would choose this alternative. Some will shout, "Why put up with it? I'm going to throw the bum out!"

To those women I say, "Each of us must do what she feels is best for her and her family. I'm doing what is best for me and mine."

Thanks for your wisdom, Ann, you've been a life-saver.

—I'll make it now

Dear Friend: Thanks for letting me know. Write again when you have some good news.

Wrong note

By Jean Adams

OFF KEY: (Q.) My friend and I both take piano lessons from the same teacher. I know from what he has told her that he has jumped to many wrong conclusions about me.

He believes that I have many problems at home. He thinks my mother has been divorced and remarried, and that my older sister is a stepmother by my mother's first marriage.

None of this is true. I have no family problems. My mother and father were high school sweethearts and married when they were 18. I have no idea how he got all these false impressions. I feel uncomfortable around him. And I don't know how to straighten him out.

Unhappy Student in Illinois

(A.) Don't try to straighten him out. Doing so would probably mix him up worse.

Your concern should be not with his mistaken ideas but that he talks so personally to other students about your life. This shows that as a person he is immature and has poor judgment — no matter how good a teacher he is.

You need another music teacher. Talk to your parents about one. Give them the details about the one you have now.

HE STOPPED: (Q.) After smoking for two years, I came to my senses and quit. I haven't smoked for four months. A friend told me that after six months my lungs will be clear and back to their normal pink color. Another friend said it would be five years. Can you say exactly how long it will be?

Ex-Smoker in Missouri

(A.) The condition of your lungs now and in the future depends not only on how long you smoked, but also how heavily, also on your physical condition before and while you were smoking, also on many things that may happen to you physically.

If you suspect any part of your respiratory system has been badly hurt by smoking or anything else, your doctor is the person to talk to. He can give you the details about yourself.

If you have no worrisome symptoms, the exact color of your lungs isn't the issue. The issue is that you have won a big victory, and doesn't it feel great!

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Here is a hand where declarer accomplished what might be designated an artistic triumph. True, only a part score was at stake, but, even so, South was entitled to good marks for his performance.

West led the king of diamonds and shifted to a heart. East won with the nine and returned a diamond. West taking the ace and continuing with the jack.

Analyzing the situation perfectly, declarer ruffed and returned a low club! As a result, he made the contract. West did all he could when he took the king and returned a club, but South was now in the harbor. He drew trumps, ending in dummy, and thus scored eight tricks consisting of five trumps and three clubs, three clubs.

Had South relied on a club finesse, instead of conceding the club trick without a battle, he would have gone down one, losing three hearts, two diamonds and a club.

Actually, declarer's play was very well reasoned. He concluded that West's failure to lead another heart at trick four, instead of a diamond, was based on his inability to do so, and that East therefore had started with the A-Q-J-9-2 of hearts.

It followed that East would not have remained silent during the auction if he also had the king of clubs. So declarer credited West with the king — which was also consistent with his overcall — and deliberately by-passed a finesse that was destined to lose.

It is interesting to note that South did not make the mistake of leading the ace and another club. Had he done that, West could have stopped the contract by rising with the king and leading a third round of clubs for East to ruff. With one of dummy's club tricks thus eliminated, South would have finished a trick short.

Harris poll shows increase in sympathy for Wallace

By LOUIS HARRIS

In the aftermath of the attempt on his life, a deep wellspring of sympathy has developed for Gov. George Wallace personally. The number who see him as a "man of high integrity" has risen from 40 to 56 per cent, and 75 per cent of the public agree with the statement that "he is brave to keep running for President after he was shot."

Although there has been a dramatic rise in the favorable estimates of Wallace the man by the American people since the attempted assassination, his actual vote totals have not changed appreciably from what they were just before that tragic event. Paired as the nominee of the Democratic party, Wallace polled 24 per cent of the vote just before the shooting, precisely what he achieved in the latest Harris Survey taken in mid-June. As an independent third-party candidate, Wallace received 17 per cent of the vote against President Nixon and Sen. McGovern and the same per cent in June.

However, another highly important political fact now surrounds the Wallace candidacy. If Sen McGovern is the Democratic nominee, Wallace as a third-party candidate would draw off nearly twice as many votes from President Nixon as from McGovern. If Senator Edward Kennedy were the Democratic candidate, the pattern would be much the same.

Put another way, if George Wallace decides not to run as a third-party candidate this fall, the net result, as of now, would be to add four points to the Nixon margin against McGovern and six points if Kennedy were the Democratic standard-bearer.

Thus, the Democrats have a deep dilemma as they await the possible visit of Governor Wallace to their convention in Miami Beach next week. The Democrats would be much better off if Wallace were to bolt the Democratic party and run as an independent again. On the other hand, public sympathy for the Alabama Governor runs so strong now that any unfair treatment of Wallace could cause deep resentment against the Democrats and their ultimate nominee.

Here is the trend of the public profile of Governor Wallace from surveys in May and June, the latest taken among 1,401 likely voters between June 7 and 12, in response to this question:

"Now let me read you some statements which have been made about Governor George Wallace of Alabama. For each, tell me if you tend to agree or disagree." (Read statements)

x-not asked in May

The delicacy with which Wallace is treated at the Democratic convention is important; if he should leave Miami Beach and endorse President Nixon, he would be in a position to damage the Democratic nominee significantly. On the other hand, a Wallace third-party candidacy at this juncture would harm the Republicans more than the Democrats. In a Nixon-McGovern two-way contest, the Wallace vote divides 50-37 per cent for the President in the North, and an even higher 62-22 per cent in the South. In a Nixon-Kennedy two-way contest, the Wallace vote divides 53-38 per cent in favor of Nixon in the North, and 63-22 per cent in the South.

Harris poll shows increase in sympathy for Wallace

By LOUIS HARRIS

In the aftermath of the attempt on his life, a deep wellspring of sympathy has developed for Gov. George Wallace personally. The number who see him as a "man of high integrity" has risen from 40 to 56 per cent, and 75 per cent of the public agree with the statement that "he is brave to keep running for President after he was shot."

Although there has been a dramatic rise in the favorable estimates of Wallace the man by the American people since the attempted assassination, his actual vote totals have not changed appreciably from what they were just before that tragic event. Paired as the nominee of the Democratic party, Wallace polled 24 per cent of the vote just before the shooting, precisely what he achieved in the latest Harris Survey taken in mid-June. As an independent third-party candidate, Wallace received 17 per cent of the vote against President Nixon and Sen. McGovern and the same per cent in June.

However, another highly important political fact now surrounds the Wallace candidacy. If Sen McGovern is the Democratic nominee, Wallace as a third-party candidate would draw off nearly twice as many votes from President Nixon as from McGovern. If Senator Edward Kennedy were the Democratic candidate, the pattern would be much the same.

Put another way, if George Wallace decides not to run as a third-party candidate this fall, the net result, as of now, would be to add four points to the Nixon margin against McGovern and six points if Kennedy were the Democratic standard-bearer.

Thus, the Democrats have a deep dilemma as they await the possible visit of Governor Wallace to their convention in Miami Beach next week. The Democrats would be much better off if Wallace were to bolt the Democratic party and run as an independent again. On the other hand, public sympathy for the Alabama Governor runs so strong now that any unfair treatment of Wallace could cause deep resentment against the Democrats and their ultimate nominee.

Here is the trend of the public profile of Governor Wallace from surveys in May and June, the latest taken among 1,401 likely voters between June 7 and 12, in response to this question:

"Now let me read you some statements which have been made about Governor George Wallace of Alabama. For each, tell me if you tend to agree or disagree." (Read statements)

Sunday School marms right about drugs

BY AUGUST GRIBBON
Dow Jones—Ottawa News

"What did we do? Where did we go wrong?" Parents of thousands of youngsters found strung out on drugs each year ask themselves those anguished questions.

They're parents whose privileged, affluent children risk arrest, brain damage, psychosis, and even death to play with "uppers," "downers," "acid," "hash," glues, aerosols, and the rest.

Behaviorists have proposed numerous vague answers that nonetheless tend to ease parental pain.

Now Richard H. Blum, Stanford University psychologist, top authority on drug misuse, and consultant to the White House special action office on drug abuse prevention, offers an explanation that is neither vague nor soothing to parents of drug-using children.

Blum accuses the parents themselves. In a detailed study based on exhaustive interviews with 101 families, he concludes that parents err by being "permissive."

He found that children who regularly use drugs consistently view their parents differently than children who eschew drugs. And he has devised a test that he says can spot with 80 per cent accuracy families whose children are likely to become drug users.

He says it is not mere pleasure-seeking, "generation-gap" rebellion, desire to escape society's pressures, or youngsters' drive to please their peers that generally lead them to drugs.

It's the children's desire to please their mostly liberal, often mod parents who have rejected such old-time family traditions as discipline, respect for authority — and the church.

Consciously or unconsciously, averse Blum, permissive parents show the way for their offspring to "engage in behavior that scares the bejesus out of us. It comes back to the exceptionally simple notion that parents teach and children become like them always with some variations, but not with great variations."

Blum is no prude. Neither are his associates at Stanford University's institute for public policy analysis. Rather, Blum characterizes himself and his colleagues as "more or less permissive" themselves.

So if the government-supported study seems only to reiterate what America's Sunday School marms have been saying all along, that's happenstance.

Blum says his scientific report is the first to positively connect family mores with juvenile drug abuse.

Staring at a tape-recorder microphone in a spacious hotel suite here, Blum chuckles grimly: "No, we didn't expect these results — nothing so clear cut. There were agonized faces among us as we read the findings being ground out by the computer."

The researchers chose names at random from the student registry of "A major university," finally coming up with a sample of 101 under-graduates' families. In all the families both parents lived at home with younger children; all families dwelled in the same geographic area.

All told, 545 persons were investigated. Though researchers didn't select only families had had illicit drug involvement, it turned out that all but two or three families had had illicit drug-use experience.

Some are attacking the samples as insignificantly small, and Blum refuses to state positively that his results accurately reflect conditions throughout the country.

He remarks, however: "We certainly believe scientists who reproduce our tests elsewhere will obtain the same results: Joy and misery aren't peculiar to California."

In a so-called "pretest," interviewers gathered information about the illicit drug use of each family member. The researchers confidently verified the statements with every other family member and finally assigned the family to a "low-risk," "moderate-risk," or "high-risk" group according to the extent of the family's drug usage.

Families within each of the three groups reacted with striking similarity in most respects. "The sample contained no caricatures," as Blum puts it. There are no Dodge-commercial sheriffs or minute-men with American-flag decals on their pickups and "Love It or Leave It" stickers on their bumpers.

Still, the 33 "low-risk" families tended generally to venerate the "God-country-family" creed. More often than "high-risk" parents, they professed the importance of disciplining children "a lot" while still "attending to the child's preferences."

They tended to make basic decisions about the children's friends, food, study habits, church attendance, and bedtime longer than high-risk parents did.

More often than high-risk couples, low-risk parents attended church and expressed satisfaction at the way they had raised their offspring.

The researchers reported that children in the low-risk families tended to fight less. They "were more often obedient and got along well."

Though more high-risk families employed maids and other household help, the study says: "Low-risk homes stood out as being more attentively cared for... the atmosphere being inviting, warm... and relaxed."

Low-risk families had fewer medicine bottles around, less booze, and apparently less anxiety. When asked what advice they would impart to newlywed couples, they stressed "being natural, loving, and sincere." Conversely, high-risk mothers and fathers were mostly uncertain about what advice to give.

The 29 moderate-risk family characteristics; the 39 high-risk, or permissive, families shared few.

Like all others, the high risk were "fine people whose values and styles are derived from American life," the study reports.

They swilled more booze and downed more medicine, much of it unprescribed pep pills, tranquilizers, and sleeping doses. They collected more speeding tickets and broke more minor rules and regulations.

Dow Jones - Ottaway News

DETROIT — Although U.S. government agencies continue to push ahead with car emission control devices, increasing numbers of motorists are having the gadgets removed to get more power from their late model autos, the Wall Street Journal reports.

For less than $20, Eugene Weber had his 1971 Chevrolet Monte Carlo's engine "fixed" by Roger Rockenstette, a mechanic at the Wrench Pit Garage in Detroit. Weber says the car runs "noticeably better," and he figures he now gets 16 miles to the gallon, up from 14 before.

The mechanic changed two springs in the car's distributor, retimed the engine and disconnected a solenoid, a switchlike device, in the emission system. The whole job took less than 45 minutes. Now the engine has more horsepower but is probably dirtier.

Nobody knows how many car owners have had similar operations. Bockenstette says about 30 of the 40 tune-ups he does each month involve such modifications. "It's kind of frightening that we don't know the extent to which this is going on," says Norman Shuttler, director of the mobile source enforcement division of the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

For if the practice is very widespread, it could mean real trouble for the effort to reduce auto emissions.

There are indications that the practice is fairly widespread.

Angelo Giampetroni, president of Detroit High Performance Warehouse, says sales of a kit to modify a car's distributor jumped 15 per cent to 20 per cent in the last year. (Distributors have been readjusted for emission control.) Mr. Gasket Co., a Cleveland-based firm that makes the kits, says sales have gone up 25 per cent.

The only time the government finds out that this is being done, says Shuttler, is "when we receive a letter from a mechanic who says he has practically made a career out of removing these devices" and wants to know if he's violating the law.

Is he? Not in most states. Under federal law, tampering with the controls is illegal only for dealers and manufacturers. Some states, including New York and California, have laws against such tampering by anyone, but in most states owners, independent mechanics or tune-up specialists can tamper away.

The main deterrent to tampering may come from the auto designers. 1968 cars were the first to have exhaust-control devices, and the controls are becoming increasingly complex. Eventually, some people in Detroit say, it might become all but impossible to fool around with the controls without almost ripping the car to pieces. (At the moment, the modifications vary from make to make; they involve adjusting various parts of the engine or sometimes removing or replacing certain parts.)

There's no doubt that the emission controls have hurt engine performance. One Detroit engineer says, for example, that a recent change to allow new cars to operate on lead-free gas has cut engine efficiency six to 10 per cent; hurting both gas mileage and full-throttle pep.

"Performance and the emission systems often work in opposite directions," says Richard Kozlowski, an engineer and recent law-school graduate who recently was hired by the government to check and make sure that dealers themselves aren't tampering with the systems. "There's a natural tendency on the part of the owner to have the emission system tampered with," he says. "It's a big potential problem."

The U.S. 29,000 auto dealers face fines of up to $10,000 if Kozlowski catches them messing around with the controls, and many of them are unhappy about the situation because they can't take care of the increasing requests from annoyed customers.

Eliminating controls can be complicated and risky. For one thing, because many controls now are designed right into various parts, there's rarely a readily identified gadget or even series of gadgets that can be attached.

And if someone were to just disconnect all visible pollution-control gadgets, "he would cause some harm" to his engine, warns Charles Heinen, Chrysler Corp.'s top emissions expert. Heinen says tampering with the engine's timing could cause a knock that could harm the pistons. He adds that disconnecting the positive crankcase ventilation valve, the valve keeps crankcase gases from leaking into the air, could lead to bad sludging.

Motorists prefer power, pollution

Dow Jones - Ottaway News
DETROIT — Although U.S. government agencies continue to push ahead with car emission control devices, increasing numbers of motorists are having the gadgets removed to get more power from their late model autos, the Wall Street Journal reports.

For less than $20, Eugene Weber had his 1971 Chevrolet Monte Carlo's engine "fixed" by Roger Rockenstette, a mechanic at the Wrench Pit Garage in Detroit. Weber says the car runs "noticeably better," and he figures he now gets 16 miles to the gallon, up from 14 before.

The mechanic changed two springs in the car's distributor, retimed the engine and disconnected a solenoid, a switchlike device, in the emission system. The whole job took less than 45 minutes. Now the engine has more horsepower but is probably dirtier.

Nobody knows how many car owners have had similar operations. Bockenstette says about 30 of the 40 tune-ups he does each month involve such modifications. "It's kind of frightening that we don't know the extent to which this is going on," says Norman Shutler, director of the mobile source enforcement division of the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

(EPA). For if the practice is very widespread, it could mean real trouble for the effort to reduce auto emissions.

There are indications that the practice is fairly widespread.

Angelo Giampetroni, president of Detroit High Performance Warehouse, says sales of a kit to modify a car's distributor jumped 15 per cent to 20 per cent in the last year. (Distributors have been readjusted for emission control.) Mr. Gasket Co., a Cleveland-based firm that makes the kits, says sales have gone up 25 per cent.

The only time the government finds out that this is being done, says Shutler, is "when we receive a letter from a mechanic who says he has practically made a career out of removing these devices" and wants to know if he's violating the law.

Is he? Not in most states. Under federal law, tampering with the controls is illegal only for dealers and manufacturers. Some states, including New York and California, have laws against such tampering by anyone, but in most states owners, independent mechanics or tune-up specialists can tamper away.

The main deterrent to tampering may come from the auto designers. 1968 cars were the first to have exhaust-control devices, and the controls are becoming increasingly complex. Eventually, some people in Detroit say, it might become all but impossible to fool around with the controls without almost ripping the car to pieces. (At the moment, the modifications vary from make to make; they involve adjusting various parts of the engine or sometimes removing or replacing certain parts.)

There's no doubt that the emission controls have hurt engine performance. One Detroit engineer says, for example, that a recent change to allow new cars to operate on lead-free gas has cut engine efficiency six to 10 per cent; hurting both gas mileage and full-throttle pep. "Performance and the emission systems often work in opposite directions," says Richard Kozlowski, an engineer and recent law-school graduate who recently was hired by the government to check and make sure that dealers themselves aren't tampering with the systems. "There's a natural tendency on the part of the owner to have the emission system tampered with," he says. "It's a big potential problem."

The U.S.'s 29,000 auto dealers face fines of up to $10,000 if Kozlowski catches them messing around with the controls, and many of them are unhappy about the situation because they can't take care of the increasing requests from annoyed customers.

Eliminating controls can be complicated and risky. For one thing, because many controls now are designed right into various parts, there's rarely a readily identified gadget or even series of gadgets that can be attached.

And if someone were to just disconnect all visible pollution-control gadgets, "he would cause some harm" to his engine, warns Charles Heinen, Chrysler Corp.'s top emissions expert. Heinen says tampering with the engine's timing could cause a knock that could harm the pistons. He adds that disconnecting the positive crankcase ventilation valve, the valve keeps crankcase gases from leaking into the air, could lead to bad sludging.

Nearly half grads on to college

BANGOR — Arnold F. Wynne, Guidance Director, announced that a survey of the post high school plans of the members of the Class of 1972 of Bangor Area High School, conducted by Mrs. Kathryn V. Schott, Girls Counselor, and him indicate that 98 of the 213 graduates, or 46 per cent of the class, plan to further their education.

Of this number 54 members of the class have been accepted and enrolled at four-year colleges and universities, 28 members have been accepted and enrolled at two-year colleges and one student will continue her education as a foreign exchange student. This represents approximately 39 per cent of the class.

Six students have been accepted and enrolled in nursing and allied schools — five will enter the registered nursing program and one will enter the practical nursing program. This represents approximately three per cent of the class.

Three students plan to continue vocational training at business colleges and six students plan to continue vocational training at technical or vocational schools. This represents approximately four per cent of the class.

Ninety-four members of the class have secured employment at the present time. This represents approximately 44 per cent of the class.

Six members of the class plan to enter the service during the summer months. Fifteen members of the class are not employed at the present time.

Snakeweed remedy

A New England clergyman wrote in 1630 of a contemporary snakebite remedy: "Yea there are some Serpents called Rattle-snakes that have Rattles in their Tails, that will not fly from a man as others will, but will fly upon him and sting him so mortally, that hee will dye within a quarter of an hour after, except the partie stinged have about him some of the root of an Hearbe called Snakeweed to bite on."

Your tax problems

"Your Tax Problems" is published as a public service and is prepared by the Philadelphia District Office of the Internal Revenue Service. Send queries to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, 401 N. Broad Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19108. For personal replies give name and address.

Q. I owed $50 this year when I filed my Federal income tax return. Should I increase the amount of tax withheld from my pay?

A. No. Because of recent changes in the tax law, the withholding tables make the amount of tax withheld for 1972 more closely match your tax liability for the year. In fact, many taxpayers should reduce their withholding and increase their take-home pay by filing a new Form W-4, Employees' Withholding Exemption Certificate, with their employer, claiming all the exemptions to which they are entitled.

Q. My son is 22 and works full time during the day and goes to school at night. Can I still claim him as a dependent regardless of how much money he makes?

A. No. Generally you may not claim a person as a dependent if he had gross income of $750 or more during the year. The only exceptions to this rule are if your child is less than 19 at the end of the year or a full-time student during five months of the year. In your son's case, he is over 19 and is not considered a full-time student because he is attending night school and is employed full time during the day.

Q. I paid my daughter's Federal and State income taxes last year. Do these payments count toward support I furnished for her when I figure out whether or not I can claim her as a dependent?

A. No. Federal, State or local income tax payments are not to be considered in determining total support.

Q. My doctor has prescribed that I take two oz. of whiskey twice a day for relief of pain resulting from a coronary disease. Is this deductible as a medical expense?

A. Yes. If you itemize deductions, payments for a special food or beverage, prescribed by a physician solely for the alleviation or treatment of an illness are deductible as a medical expense subject to the one per cent limitation on medicines and drugs and the three per cent limitation on general medical expenses. The special food or beverage must be in addition to your normal diet and in no way a part of your nutritional needs. In such a case, you should submit a statement from your doctor with your return.

Q. It has been two months since I filed my return. When am I going to get my refund?

A. If it has been at least 10 weeks since you sent in your return and you have received no word about it, then write the Internal Revenue Service Center where you sent your return. The Service Center will need to know approximately when your return was mailed, your Social Security number, the exact name and address shown on your return and your present address if different.

Q. I received an automatic two-month extension of time to file my return. Will I be charged interest on any taxes I owe?

A. Yes. Interest at an annual rate of six per cent will be charged on unpaid tax from the original due date of the return.

Q. Can I deduct as a charitable contribution tuition paid to send my child to a parochial school?

A. No. Tuition or amounts in place of tuition are payments for services rendered and are not deductible as contributions, even though paid to parochial schools.

Q. Can correspondence courses ever be deductible as educational expenses?

A. Yes. You may deduct the ordinary and necessary expenses you incur for correspondence courses that:

1. Meet the requirements of your employer, or requirements of law or regulations, for keeping your salary, status or employment, if the requirements serve a bona fide business purpose; or
2. Maintain or improve skills required in performing the duties of your present employment, or trade or business.

If the education is part of a program of study that will lead to qualifying you in a new trade or business, you may not deduct your expenses. The same is true for expenses incurred for education you need to meet the minimum educational requirements for qualification in your employment, trade or business.

Q. Are contributions for the purchase of tickets to a political dinner or function eligible for a Federal income tax deduction or credit?

A. Yes. The cost of the ticket will be eligible for deduction or credit so long as the dinner or function is clearly in the context of a campaign of an announced candidate and is not primarily a device to confer private benefits in the form of meals or entertainment to the contributor. Of course, you may not deduct more than $50 ($100 for married taxpayers filing jointly) or claim a credit of more than $12.50 ($25 for married persons filing jointly).

Q. Can an employer take a business expense deduction for wages paid in excess of those permitted by the Economic Stabilization Program?

A. No. Payments of wages, as well as of rents and prices, in excess of those permitted by the Economic Stabilization Program are not deductible as a business expense.

Q. My father pays my tuition at college. Can he include the cost of tuition in the amount of total support he furnished me when figuring out whether or not he can claim me as a dependent?

A. Yes. Total support includes expenditures for education. A scholarship, however, is not included in figuring total support.

Q. I'm a Federal employee. When are amounts I contribute to the United States Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund taxable — at retirement or each year?

A. Such employee contributions are taxable in the same year they would have been included in income if they had been paid to the employee directly. Thus, the contributions are taxed currently instead of at retirement.

Q. How can I correct an error on my tax return?

A. Form 1040X is the preferred form to use to correct an error on your original return. The 1040X calls only for information that relates to that part of the original return which you wish to change. It is not necessary to include all of the information furnished on the 1040 which you filed.

Forms 1040X and instructions are available at your local IRS office.

Q. Does the increased deduction for child care and household services apply to amounts spent to care for a teenager?

A. You are allowed a deduction of up to $400 per month for expenses for dependent care and household services provided in your home: (1) if your dependent is under 15 and you are entitled to claim an exemption for him; or (2) if your dependent is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself, regardless of age. Of course, these expenses must be incurred to enable you to be gainfully employed and you must furnish over half the cost of maintaining the household that includes the dependent.

Q. I'm single and claim the one withholding exemption to which I am entitled, yet I'm still having too much tax withheld from my paycheck. Is there anything I can do about this?

A. Yes. Each single person, and each married person whose spouse is not also employed, is entitled to one "special withholding allowance" which is like another exemption. This allowance may not be claimed by any employee who has two or more concurrent jobs or by either husband or wife when both are employed.

Q. What's the deadline for paying my second estimated tax installment for 1972?

A. Payment of the second installment of estimated tax should be made by June 15, 1972. Using the pre-addressed voucher and envelopes that came with the 1040ES tax package IRS mailed you will help to insure that your payments are properly credited to your account.

Q. Where should I write about a delayed refund?

A. If it has been at least ten weeks since you sent in your return and you have received no word about it, then write the IRS service center where you sent your return. The IRS will need to know approximately when your return was mailed, your Social Security number, name and address.

Q. The IRS computed my tax for me and sent me a bill for the additional tax due. Can I pay the tax in installments?

A. No. The entire tax must be paid within thirty days of the date of the bill. Interest and penalty charges will apply if the amount due remains unpaid beyond the due date.

Q. While cleaning out my desk drawer, I found a copy of an old tax return of mine and noticed a deduction I neglected to take. Is it too late to correct the mistake?

A. You can correct an error by filing an amended return, Form 1040X. It must be filed within three years from the date your original return was filed, or within two years from the time the tax was paid, whichever is later. If you filed your original return early, the three-year rule applies from the due date for that year.

Dansbury to run athletic programs

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mike Perfetti, publicity director of Dansbury Park, has announced that the play center will be the scene of many athletic leagues during the summer months.

All boys in grades three through seven are asked to report to the center Monday at 9 a.m. to sign up for a basketball league, with play to begin the same day.

Girls interested in playing in a basketball league should report at noon Monday for registration.

Boys and girls interested in joining the center's competitive swimming team are asked to report to the pool Mondays and Thursdays, which are practice days, from 10 to 11 a.m.

Beginning and intermediate tennis are also offered at Dansbury Park. Beginner lessons are given Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., with intermediate instruction Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 p.m.

A mixed adult volleyball league will also be featured, with registrations being held daily from 1 to 5 p.m. at the park concession stand. League play begins Tuesday.

Registration is also open on the center's table tennis tournament. All entries must be in by Monday and interested residents can obtain further information by calling the park concession stand.

Advisors try fund salvage

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County's Solid Waste Advisory Committee labored Thursday night to salvage a portion of a dwindling Environmental Protection Agency grant to investigate solid waste disposal in the Tocks region.

An original contract between the EPA and the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council called for the investigation of landfills as means of ridding TIRAC counties of solid waste.

Months ago, the county commissioners decided landfill was not the total solution to solid waste disposal in their county.

Since then, the search has begun for alternate means of disposal. Now the Solid Waste Advisory Committee will seek to gather information under the terms of the original contract regarding volume reduction.

A recommendation to the county commissioners asking the county officials to take up an offer for general design and cost information on volume reduction means was passed unanimously.

The offer was made June 1 in a letter to the commissioners from TIRAC. It stated the consulting firm associated with the project could provide general information or more specific information if the county was willing to expend more funds on sub-surface explorations.

The advisors opted for the general information, noting such a course would not mean additional expenditures yet.

Trash pickup

MOUNTAINHOME — Barrett Township's regular trash pickups will begin at 7 a.m. Monday and Tuesday. Residents are asked to have trash out early.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Snakeweed remedy

A New England clergyman wrote in 1630 of a contemporary snakebite remedy.

Yea there are some Serpents called Rattle-snakes that have Rattles in their Tails, that will not fly from a man as others will, but will fly upon him and sting him so mortally, that hee will dye within a quarter of an houre after, except the partie stinged have about him some of the root of an Hearbe called Snakeweed to bite on.

Your tax problems

"Your Tax Problems" is published as a public service and is prepared by the Philadelphia District Office of the Internal Revenue Service. Send queries to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, 401 N. Broad Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19108. For personal replies give name and address.

Q. I owed $50 this year when I filed my Federal income tax return. Should I increase the amount of tax withheld from my pay?

A. No. Because of recent changes in the tax law, the withholding tables make the amount of tax withheld for 1972 more closely match your tax liability for the year. In fact, many taxpayers should reduce their withholding and increase their take-home pay by filing a new Form W-4, Employees' Withholding Exemption Certificate, with their employer, claiming all the exemptions to which they are entitled.

Q. My son is 22 and works full time during the day and goes to school at night. Can I still claim him as a dependent regardless of how much money he makes?

A. No. Generally you may not claim a person as a dependent if he had gross income of $750 or more during the year. The only exceptions to this rule are if your child is less than 19 at the end of the year or a full-time student during five months of the year. In your son's case, he is over 19 and is not considered a full-time student because he is attending night school and is employed full time during the day.

Q. I paid my daughter's Federal and State income taxes last year. Do these payments count toward support I furnished for her when I figure out whether or not I can claim her as a dependent?

A. No. Federal, State or local income tax payments are not to be considered in determining total support.

Q. My doctor has prescribed that I take two oz. of whiskey twice a day for relief of pain resulting from a coronary disease. Is this deductible as a medical expense?

A. Yes. If you itemize deductions, payments for a special food or beverage, prescribed by a physician solely for the alleviation or treatment of an illness are deductible as a medical expense subject to the one per cent limitation on medicines and drugs and the three per cent limitation on general medical expenses. The special food or beverage must be in addition to your normal diet and in no way a part of your nutritional needs. In such a case, you should submit, a statement from your doctor with your return.

Q. It has been two months since I filed my return. When am I going to get my refund?

A. If it has been at least 10 weeks since you sent in your return and you have received no word about it, then write the Internal Revenue Service Center where you sent your return. The Service Center will need to know approximately when your return was mailed, your Social Security number, the exact name and address shown on your return and your present address if different.

Q. I received an automatic two-month extension of time to file my return. Will I be charged interest on any taxes I owe?

A. Yes. Interest at an annual rate of six per cent will be charged on unpaid tax from the original due date of the return.

Q. Can I deduct as a charitable contribution tuition paid to send my child to a parochial school?

A. No. Tuition or amounts in place of tuition are payments for services rendered and are not deductible as contributions, even though paid to parochial schools.

Q. Can correspondence courses ever be deductible as educational expenses?

A. Yes. You may deduct the ordinary and necessary expenses you incur for correspondence courses that:

1. Meet the requirements of your employer, or requirements of law or regulations, for keeping your salary, status or employment, if the requirements serve a bona fide business purpose; or
2. Maintain or improve skills required in performing the duties of your present employment, or trade or business.

If the education is part of a program of study that will lead to qualifying you in a new trade or business, you may not deduct your expenses. The same is true for expenses incurred for education you need to meet the minimum educational requirements for qualification in your employment, trade or business.

Q. Are contributions for the purchase of tickets to a political dinner or function eligible for a Federal income tax deduction or credit?

A. Yes. The cost of the ticket will be eligible for deduction or credit so long as the dinner or function is clearly in the context of a campaign of an announced candidate and is not primarily a device to confer private benefits in the form of meals or entertainment to the contributor. Of course, you may not deduct more than $50 ($100 for married taxpayers filing jointly) or claim a credit of more than $12.50 ($25 for married persons filing jointly).

Q. Can an employer take a business expense deduction for wages paid in excess of those permitted by the Economic Stabilization Program?

A. No. Payments of wages, as well as of rents and prices, in excess of those permitted by the Economic Stabilization Program are not deductible as a business expense.

Q. My father pays my tuition at college. Can he include the cost of tuition in the amount of total support he furnished me when figuring out whether or not he can claim me as a dependent?

A. Yes. Total support includes expenditures for education. A scholarship, however, is not included in figuring total support.

Q. I'm a Federal employee. When are amounts I contribute to the United States Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund taxable — at retirement or each year?

A. Such employee contributions are taxable in the same year they would have been included in income if they had been paid to the employee directly. Thus, the contributions are taxed currently instead of at retirement.

Q. How can I correct an error on my tax return?

A. Form 1040X is the preferred form to use to correct an error on your original return. The 1040X calls only for information that relates to that part of the original return which you wish to change. It is not necessary to include all of the information furnished on the 1040 which you filed.

Forms 1040X and instructions are available at your local IRS office.

Q. Does the increased deduction for child care and household services apply to amounts spent to care for a teenager?

A. You are allowed a deduction of up to $400 per month for expenses for dependent care and household services provided in your home; (1) if your dependent is under 15 and you are entitled to claim an exemption for him; or (2) if your dependent is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself, regardless of age. Of course, these expenses must be incurred to enable you to be gainfully employed and you must furnish over half the cost of maintaining the household that includes the dependent.

Q. I'm single and claim the one withholding exemption to which I am entitled, yet I'm still having too much tax withheld from my paycheck. Is there anything I can do about this?

A. Yes. Each single person, and each married person whose spouse is not also employed, is entitled to one "special withholding allowance" which is like another exemption. This allowance may not be claimed by any employee who has two or more concurrent jobs or by either husband or wife when both are employed.

Q. What's the deadline for paying my second estimated tax installment for 1972?

A. Payment of the second installment of estimated tax should be made by June 15, 1972. Using the pre-addressed voucher and envelopes that came with the 1040ES tax package IRS mailed you will help to insure that your payments are properly credited to your account.

Q. Where should I write about a delayed refund?

A. If it has been at least ten weeks since you sent in your return and you have received no word about it, then write the IRS service center where you sent your return. The IRS will need to know approximately when your return was mailed, your Social Security number, name and address.

Q. The IRS computed my tax for me and sent me a bill for the additional tax due. Can I pay the tax in installments?

A. No. The entire tax must be paid within thirty days of the date of the bill. Interest and penalty charges will apply if the amount due remains unpaid beyond the due date.

Q. While cleaning out my desk drawer, I found a copy of an old tax return of mine and noticed a deduction I neglected to take. Is it too late to correct the mistake?

A. You can correct an error by filing an amended return, Form 1040X. It must be filed within three years from the date your original return was filed, or within two years from the time the tax was paid, whichever is later. If you filed your original return early, the three-year rule applies from the due date for that year.

A. Form 1040X is the preferred form to use to correct an error on your original return. The 1040X calls only for information that relates to that part of the original return which you wish to change. It is not necessary to

Dansbury to run athletic programs

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mike Perfetti, publicity director of Dansbury Park, has announced that the play center will be the scene of many athletic leagues during the summer months.

All boys in grades three through seven are asked to report to the center Monday at 9 a.m. to sign up for a basketball league, with play to begin the same day.

Girls interested in playing in a basketball league should report at noon Monday for registration.

Boys and girls interested in joining the center's competitive swimming team are asked to report to the pool Mondays and Thursdays, which are practice days, from 10 to 11 a.m.

Beginning and intermediate tennis are also offered at Dansbury Park. Beginner lessons are given Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., with intermediate instruction Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 p.m.

A mixed adult volleyball league will also be featured, with registrations being held daily from 1 to 5 p.m. at the park concession stand. League play begins Tuesday.

Registration is also open on the center's table tennis tournament. All entries must be in by Monday and interested residents can obtain further information by calling the park concession stand.

Advisors try fund salvage

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County's Solid Waste Advisory Committee labored Thursday night to salvage a portion of a dwindling Environmental Protection Agency grant to investigate solid waste disposal in the Tocks region.

An original contract between the EPA and the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council called for the investigation of landfills as means of ridding TIRAC counties of solid waste.

Months ago, the county commissioners decided landfill was not the total solution to solid waste disposal in their county.

Since then, the search has begun for alternate means of disposal. Now the Solid Waste Advisory Committee will seek to gather information under the terms of the original contract regarding volume reduction.

A recommendation to the county commissioners asking the county officials to take up an offer for general design and cost information on volume reduction means was passed unanimously.

The offer was made June 1 in a letter to the commissioners from TIRAC. It stated the consulting firm associated with the project could provide general information or more specific information if the county was willing to expend more funds on sub surface explorations.

The advisors opted for the general information, noting such a course would not mean additional expenditures yet.

Trash pickup

MOUNTAINHOME — Barrett Township's regular trash pick-ups will begin at 7 a.m. Monday and Tuesday. Residents are asked to have trash out early.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)
Not everything will please you, but the real go-getter (and that's you) is always searching for a better way — and better results. Just do not overlook the advantages that are about.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)
Is it time for a review? Be honest with yourself as you mentally go over situations. Be sure that all tactics are sound and failure-proof.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)
An above-average day in certain areas; possibly trying in others. Don't do half a job nor get only half of a story. In discussions, listen to all — carefully.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)
Gauge everything accurately; be quick to perceive erroneous information. Some "tricky" spots indicated. Make decisions to act in a well-balanced, foresighted manner.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)
Especially favored now: Teachers, students, homemakers. In all conferences, negotiations, discuss matters quietly. Curb emotions.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)
Labourious efforts and tedious tasks can both be profitable — no matter how trying they may seem at the moment. Returns may not be immediate, however.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)
Remember the potency of the soft answer, the quiet voice. Many things could distract, but if you concentrate on your goals, your strength of purpose will carry the day.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)
Guide fixed intentions with wisdom; some may have to be modified. Subdue excitement, encourage healthy interests and arrangements. Control dissatisfaction.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)
Give ear to intelligent suggestions. Many heads can produce variety of thought and substantial judgments, but temperaments must be governed.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)
Saturn, favorably aspected, stimulates your talents, but be warned against making errors through haste. Emphasize your innate originality.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)
You have a great appreciation of the outdoors, are a lover of music, tradition, the arts. Make the most of these gifts, and you should have an enjoyable day.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)
Routine may tend to irk. Do not let it. Neither be over-anxious, nor strain to accomplish more than healthfully possible. Develop improved methods.

YOU BORN TODAY are a more outgoing person than many other Cancerians, and could make a tremendous success in any field which involves dealing with the public. You would make a salesman without peer, a politician with enormous influence or an entertainer with sensational crowd-appeal. You are also attracted to science and, along this line, could succeed most eminently in medicine or chemistry. Other areas suited to your talents: Merchandising, education, sociology and finance. Birthdate of: P.T. Barnum, Amer. showman; Adam, David Farragut, U.S.N.; Dwight B. Davis, Amer. statesman.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)

Not everything will please you, but the real go-getter (and that's you) is always searching for a better way — and better results. Just do not overlook the advantages that are about.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)

Is it time for a review? Be honest with yourself as you mentally go over situations. Be sure that all tactics are sound and failure-proof.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)

An above-average day in certain areas; possibly trying in others. Don't do half a job nor get only half of a story. In discussions, listen to all — carefully.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)

Gauge everything accurately; be quick to perceive erroneous information. Some "tricky" spots indicated. Make decisions to act in a well balanced, foresighted manner.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)

Especially favored now: Teachers, students, homemakers. In all conferences, negotiations, discuss matters quietly, dispassionately. Curb emotions.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)

Laborious efforts and tedious tasks can both be profitable — no matter how trying they may seem at the moment. Returns may not be immediate; however.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)

Remember the potency of the soft answer, the quiet voice. Many things could distract, but if you concentrate on your goals, your strength of purpose will carry the day.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)

Guide fixed intentions with wisdom; some may have to be modified. Subdue excitement, encourage healthy interests and arrangements. Control dissatisfaction.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)

Give ear to intelligent suggestions. Many heads can produce variety of thought and substantial judgments, but temperaments must be governed.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)

Saturn, favorably aspected, stimulates your talents, but be warned against making errors through haste. Emphasize your innate originality.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)

You have a great appreciation of the outdoors, are a lover of music, tradition, the arts. Make the most of these gifts, and you should have an enjoyable day.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)

Routine may tend to irk. Do not let it. Neither be over-anxious, nor strain to accomplish more than healthfully possible. Develop improved methods.

YOU BORN TODAY are a more outgoing person than many other Cancerians, and could make a tremendous success in any field which involves dealing with the public. You would make a salesman without peer, a politician with enormous influence or an entertainer with sensational crowd-appeal. You are also attracted to science and, along this line, could succeed most eminently in medicine or chemistry. Other areas suited to your talents: Merchandising, education, sociology and finance. Birthdate of: P.T. Barnum, Amer. showman; Adam, David Farragut, U.S.N.; Dwight B. Davis, Amer. statesman.

Public Notices

NOTICE Notice is hereby given that the Supervisors of Smithfield Township, Monroe County, Pennsylvania, will hold a public hearing and will consider a proposed ordinance, on Thursday, July 20, 1972, at 8 p.m., at the Smithfield Township Election House, 10 Minisink Hills, amending Ordinance No. 29 in the manner and form herein following.

Frank Dreisbach Secretary of the Board of Supervisors of Smithfield Township, Monroe County, Pennsylvania. An Ordinance amending Ordinance No. 29 entitled "An Ordinance regulating and controlling the subdivision of land and the approval of plans, plots, or replots, of lands laid out in building lots with Smithfield Township, Monroe County, Pennsylvania, providing standards for the design of streets, lots, easements, blocks and other improvements, requiring certain minimum improvements on all streets and required dedications, specifying certain construction standards, providing for the administration of this Ordinance by the Smithfield Township Planning Commission, and setting forth penalties for the violation of this ordinance."

BE IT ORDAINED AND ENACTED BY THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF SMITHFIELD TOWNSHIP, MONROE COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA: Ordinance No. 29 of Smithfield Township, Monroe County, Pennsylvania, ordained and adopted at the meeting held on the 9th day of July, 1970, is amended as follows:

Section 4.00(d), of Article 4, is deleted in its entirety.

2. In all other respects, the provisions of said Ordinance No. 29, are ratified and confirmed.

3. All ordinances, or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith, are hereby repealed.

4. This ordinance shall become effective five (5) days after date of its final passage as provided by law.

Samuel W. Newman, Esq. Mervine Brown and Newman 712 Monroe Street Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania 18360 Solicitors

INVITATION FOR BIDS

Sealed bids for the construction of a Storm Water Collection System, Earthen Basin, and Appurtenances will be received by Union Oil Company of California, 620 East Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio, 43215, Attention: Robert H. Smith, Regional Construction Manager, until 4:30 p.m. E.D.S.T., July 25, 1972.

A Bid Bond with corporate surety satisfactory to Union Oil Company of California in the amount of 10 percent of the base bid must be submitted with the proposal, naming as obligee, Union Oil Company of California. The bid bond must be satisfactory to Union Oil Company of California.

The Contractor shall furnish, before starting work, a Surety Bond acceptable to the Owner covering the faithful performance of this contract and the payment of all obligations arising hereunder. The bond shall be in the amount of 100 percent of the contract price and shall be paid for by the Contractor and included in the contract price.

Prospective bidders may obtain complete sets of drawings and specifications for bidding purposes, not to exceed two (2) sets per bidder upon deposit of ten dollars ($10.00) per set. Checks for deposit shall be made payable to Bellante, Clauss, Miller & Nolan, Inc.

Drawings and specifications may be obtained only from Bellante, Clauss, Miller & Nolan, Inc., 130 North Washington Avenue, Scranton, Pennsylvania, 18503.

Full refund will be made for the return of the drawings and specifications in good condition within seven (7) days after bids are received. Additional sets of drawings and specifications may be obtained at the cost of reproduction.

Addenda issued during the bidding period will be furnished to all contractors that have received drawings and specifications.

No bidder may withdraw his bid during the seventy-five (75) day period following the date of the bid opening.

Bidders on this work will be required to comply with President Executive Order No. 11246 and the Pennsylvania Human Relations Act in providing equal employment opportunities in connection with all work performed by them in relation to this job.

Union Oil Company of California reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informalities in the bidding.

UNION OIL COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA Robert H. Smith Regional Construction Manager

Do-good missionaries

It seems you cannot go to a party anymore without finding yourself in the middle of a group of do-good missionaries who are trying to reform you.

These are the sanctimonious people who have forsaken some vice and now want to rack up another convert. I call them the "I quit" disciples.

For example, when you are stuffing your face with a rolled piece of salami filled with cream cheese, an "I quit" person will ppear at your elbow and warn, "That little nibble will cost you 1,325 calories. I quit eating when I stumbled upon this marvelous little diet of bread crumbs and 9 gallons of water day. Of course, you have to wear a nose plug and a life vest but..."

Or the "I quitter" who announces loudly, "Know what's in this glass? Plain soda water. That's right. Ever see what your drink does to a liver in a lab? Incredible. Look at my hand. Steady as a rock."

The other night, I kept count and I was accosted by a caravan of "I quitters" who had abandoned everything from a job (which discriminated), having babies (to control the population), driving a car (which contributed to pollution), watching television (which insulted the average intelligence), using insecticides on roses (which endangered other life), traveling abroad (which contributed to foreign economy), to a woman who quit lying about her age (a woman is only as old as she feels.)

I was still trying to find some loophole in the "age" theory when a man came up to me and said, "I quit smoking a year ago. Did I tell you that?"

"I think that's nice," I said, easing away.

"I think you should know that an expectant mother who smokes is subjecting her unborn child to the adverse effects of tobacco," he continued.

"I think I read that somewhere," I said unsteadily.

"A lot of people don't realize that four-fifths of the country do not smoke. Ever notice when you fly how much space is given over to the non-smoking section? Well, I am here to tell you that I have more energy, I feel better, and for the first time in a long time I can actually taste food."

"Look," I said quietly, "I don't smoke either."

His face fell. "Anything you've quit lately you want to tell me about?"

"Only parties," I said, heading for the door.
